Roundman Berry kept close to Dodge, who after he had been in Mr. Jerome's room for a minute was taken up to the Broadway Central. County Detectives Hammond and Retzer were on duty at the afternoon and evening at the hotel.

When any one suggested to Mr. Jerome that a good deal of time had been wasted on Dodge in the effort to keep him out of the State, Mr. Jerome said joyously: "Teasing, teasing, I was only teasing 'em."

NOBODY CAN GET AT DODGE. Dodge, when he reached the hotel again, retired at once to his room on the fifth floor and was kept pretty busy by the telephone used up by the strain which he had been under since his arrival in the city and he was also, it was said, suffering from a severe cold caught on the boat from Texas.

Although Dodge when he returned to the hotel was practically a free man so far as the criminal charge against him was concerned, he was nevertheless guarded by detectives from the District Attorney's office almost as closely as he had been before the court proceedings.

Mr. Jerome said yesterday that he had been in the office almost as closely as he had been before the court proceedings. Roundman Berry and County Detectives Hammond and Retzer were in his room most of the afternoon, and when they were not on duty others were. Not only was Dodge never once allowed out of the sight of the Jerome detectives yesterday afternoon, but it was arranged to have a man from the District Attorney's office sleep in the same room with him.

The members of the law firm of Howe & Hummel, including Mr. Hummel and Abraham Kaffenburgh, who raised such a rumpus at Police Headquarters when they were not allowed to accompany Mr. Jerome to the court, yesterday announced rather dramatically at Police Headquarters their interest in Dodge as their client, all refused to sign a retainer agreement.
