

MAKE PLANS TO OUST HAINES

HIS OPPONENTS MAY PUT IT UP TO THE LEGISLATURE

Or Form a New Society—Board of Managers Will First Have a Chance to Act—Darlington Firm on Dog Tax Bill—Hainey Blamed for Blocking Court Cases.

Further conferences were held yesterday by the members of the S. P. C. A. who are opposed to the management of John P. Haines as president and it was decided to make a move to try to oust him from his office. At the meeting which is to be held in a day or two of those who desire to drive Haines from his place it will probably be decided to serve notice on the board of managers that they must ask for Haines' resignation. Whether this notice will be formal or informal has not yet been decided, but it will be made known to the managers that they must take such action, or a bitter war will likely be made not only upon Haines but upon the society.

Three vice-presidents of the society can call for a special meeting of the board at once. If this is not done a regular meeting of the board will be held on March 8, and the managers will be expected to do something then. It is said to be the prevailing opinion of the members of the board that it would be best to resign at once. Haines does not seem to be in a hurry to leave. The opposition members say that the action of Haines in running the annual meeting in a high handed fashion on Thursday has now made this impossible.

The board of managers will be told that unless they ask for Haines' resignation and get it the opposition will probably go to Albany and ask for legislation that will so amend the society's charter as to end the usefulness of Haines and take power from his hands. If this cannot be accomplished, then as a further move a new society will be formed, one that will attract public support and do efficient work in ameliorating the sufferings of dumb animals. One of those active in pushing the campaign against Haines said:

"We shall direct upon a definite plan of action at the coming meeting. It may be a long fight to oust Haines but we shall not let up until we succeed. All public sympathy is now alienated from the management. Haines has done it himself. The usefulness of the society under its present management is practically gone. If the society is to live Haines must go and that is all there is to it. We believe we can make him go."

Another club in the hands of those opposed to the Haines management is the fact that the society, as a result of the fight among the members, is likely to lose its income from dog licenses. Health Commissioner Darlington said yesterday that he had not changed his plan of pushing his bill to put the licensing of dogs in the hands of the Health Department. Dr. Darlington has been in a hurry to get the bill, largely because of other duties, and also in the hope that the S. P. C. A. might change its methods so that some better arrangement of licensing dogs for the benefit of the public health might be reached. He has not wanted to take sides openly in the S. P. C. A. fight. Dr. Darlington made this statement:

"I have not changed my attitude regarding the bill to give the Health Department the right to license dogs. If it was a good bill when I had it introduced it is a good bill now. Nothing has occurred to bring about any change in my ideas as to the necessity of pushing the bill. I have heard that there is likely to be a general State bill pushed. That will give New York the same rights probably as my bill. Yet I do not intend to give up either my bill or a general State bill, applying to all cities and towns pushed along until a law such as I have advocated is passed."

It was brought out yesterday that the Haines management does practically all it can to discourage the prosecution of cruelty cases. A man who has numerous cases of cruelty brought before the courts told of his experiences. His complaint was that Haines has discouraged the police in the idea that they must not make arrests for cruelty cases and must save all such work for the S. P. C. A. This man said that the duty of a policeman is to make arrests for all misdemeanors. When you ask a policeman to make an arrest for cruelty to a horse he invariably demurs. He will tell you that such cases belong to the S. P. C. A. and often you have to take the case to the courts. Haines has succeeded in getting the idea of "hands off" in cruelty cases saturated into the minds of ordinary policemen, and really there is no misdemeanor case in the city so hard to prosecute as that of cruelty to animals. Haines is to blame for it.

This man said that the police invariably will keep such a case waiting at the station house until they send for an S. P. C. A. inspector. Sometimes it takes hours for the police. When the inspector arrives he knows no more about the case than the policeman. It is a mistaken idea that the inspectors are veterinarians. They are experts at all. When the inspector arrives, it is asserted, it is a common thing for the complainant to be abused for causing so much trouble. The case is then referred to the Police Magistrate. That usually means a long wait in the court room. Many of the complainants are women of refinement, and they object to the surroundings of the Magistrate's court. When the case is transferred to the Court of Special Sessions there is another wait in the court room. All this tends to discourage prosecutions.

When Haines has been asked about this delay he always replies that the society is doing its best. As an evidence of the inefficiency of the Haines management it was pointed out yesterday that not long ago it was asserted vociferously one day that it was the duty of a policeman to arrest the driver of a mail wagon when he was cruel to a horse and even when the man takes the driver to the station house. He declared it was not only the law but the rule of the Police Department. When asked to show the rule he produced the book, and it read explicitly that in such cases the policeman must not delay the mails, but must go with the driver and take him to the station house where the mails are delivered.

"What do you mean by saying one thing to me and then producing this book which says the opposite?" asked a man who had complained to Haines about a mail driver. "Well, that is the law, even if the police rules do not say so," was his answer. The Federal courts in Illinois are said to have held that under no conditions may arrests for cruelty to animals delay the progress of a mail.

When Haines has been asked why he has not sought a closer alliance with the Police Department, in order to have the courts brushed out of police hands, the answer has always been vague. He has been jealous of the police, and his discouragement in prosecuting cases is proof of this. He has had the result that the police think they have practically no right to make arrests and that the State has delegated that kind of police work solely to the S. P. C. A.

It is probable that a point will be made against Haines of his action in not providing drinking fountains for animals. After having declared in a report that it was of the utmost urgency and apparently because the Municipal Art Commission would not approve of the design of the fountains which he made, Haines spent, according to the reports of the society, $33 in 1902 for these drinking fountains. In 1903 he spent less than $200. In 1904 he spent less than $100. How much has been spent since then is not known, because the report has not been published.

When Haines was asked why he had not sought a closer alliance with the Police Department, in order to have the courts brushed out of police hands, the answer has always been vague. He has been jealous of the police, and his discouragement in prosecuting cases is proof of this. He has had the result that the police think they have practically no right to make arrests and that the State has delegated that kind of police work solely to the S. P. C. A.

IN SOCIETY.

Washington's Birthday anniversary will be well celebrated at country clubs, and invitations for many house parties from Thursday over the week-end have been sent out. This will be one of the busiest weeks socially of the season in town, many festivities being crowded into the final few days before Lent.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry S. Redmond, who have given a series of dinners this winter, have a luncheon on for to-day. They are going on a Southern trip, and by Easter Sunday expect to be in their Texas outfit. This afternoon Miss Caroline De Forest and Miss May Callender give the last of their big informal musical teas at their apartment at Tiffany Building, 27 East Twenty-second street.

Mr. and Mrs. Ogden Mills are among those who have given their customary teas for Europe, and will again be one of the smartest of the winter. They were among the many New Yorkers at the Longworth-Roosevelt wedding, and have arranged to entertain a large house party at their apartment at Tiffany Building, over Washington's Birthday.

Mrs. Vanderbilt and her daughter, Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, sailed yesterday on the Celtic for Europe, and will again be one of the smartest of the winter. They were among the many New Yorkers at the Longworth-Roosevelt wedding, and have arranged to entertain a large house party at their apartment at Tiffany Building, over Washington's Birthday.

One of the first dances given for some time in the big establishment at Castle Point, Hoboken, G. J. that of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Stevens next Wednesday night. There are two young couples in the family, who will, of course, be conspicuous on the occasion. Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Stevens, daughter and Mr. and Mrs. W. Lewis Stevens.

The wedding of Miss Kate Tilden Willis, daughter of Benjamin H. Willis, and Arthur W. Spencer of Boston will be celebrated on Wednesday, February 21, at the home of the bride's aunt, Mrs. Courtlandt Schuyler Van Rensselaer, 30 East Twenty-second street. The bride is daughter of Park, rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, will perform the ceremony. Miss Portia Willis will attend her sister as maid of honor. There will be no bridesmaids. Prof. Philippe Mason, a Harvard classmate, will assist the bridegroom as best man.

The wedding of Miss Teresa Holmes, daughter of the late John Holmes, and George Emery Daniels, will take place on Tuesday, in Grace Church Chantry. The Rev. Dr. William R. Huntington, the rector, will perform the ceremony at noon. The bride will wear a princess gown of white satin, with point lace. There will be no bridesmaids. The bridal breakfast will be served at the St. Regis.

Francis Cunningham Bishop gave his bachelor dinner at Delmonico's last night, when he entertained some other friends as well as Heber Reginald Bishop, James C. Bishop, Ogden Mills Bishop, his brothers—Alphonse de Navarre, Henry Worthington Bull, Franklin L. Pope, Jr., Gordon Harriman, G. B. Harriman, John Laibner, Andrew Miller, George H. Mairs, Louis Bacon and Walden Pell, who are to assist as best man and ushers at his marriage to Miss Gertrude Pell next Wednesday.

A number of the younger married people and many of the season's debutantes attended the first of the series of dinner dances of which Mrs. De Witt Robinson, Mrs. Richard Mortimer, Mrs. Vanderbilt, Mrs. R. Fulton Cutting, Mrs. W. Starr Miller and Mrs. Benjamin Willis are the patronesses. The second will be on Thursday night.

Mr. and Mrs. William Watts Sherman and their daughters, the Misses Irene Sherman and Mildred Sherman, debutantes of this season, sail on Tuesday for Europe. Mr. and Mrs. Ernesto G. Fabbri also sail on Tuesday for Italy to join Mr. Fabbri's family and Mrs. Elliott at Rome. Mrs. Fabbri's mother, who has been abroad since the early autumn.

Comte de la Valette arrived some days ago from France. Count and Countess Gyzkyk, the latter formerly Miss Patterson of Chicago; Vicomte Jean de Valon, Countess Yarnouche and Vicomte Foy arrived on Monday. Mr. and Mrs. Foy, who are in the city, returned on Wednesday for England. Countess Reese arrived from Italy on Wednesday.

The next of the Saturday evening dances will be on at Delmonico's on February 24. Very few debutantes are in evidence at these popular festivities. The debutantes of the young married set and older girls, Stowe Phelps is the chosen cotillon leader of this series, and there are seldom more than one or two sets of favors.

Miss Florence Guernsey of 180 Central Park South will give a big bridal tea next Saturday afternoon for Mr. and Mrs. H. George Baister, who were married on St. Valentine's Day. Mr. Baister's former home was Baltimore. Mrs. Baister, who was Miss Marion Louise Goodfield, has been married for some years with her cousin, Miss Guernsey.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Whitridge, who have given two dinner dances this winter, one for the visiting British naval officers, and the other for Miss Susan Sedgwick, a debutante, will entertain the Thursday Evening Club on February 22. The last meeting was at Mrs. C. Walder Jones's. A little French play was acted by Mrs. F. McNeil Bacon and Ernest Perrin.

Cards are here for the wedding on Saturday afternoon, February 24, of Miss Carol Beardsley Nye and Lyman Rhoades, Jr. The ceremony will be performed at 3:30 o'clock in the Central Presbyterian Church, Auburn. N. Y. Stephen Nash of this city will assist his cousin the bridegroom as best man. There will be a reception afterward at the home of the bride's father, George F. Treavor of 28 East Fifty-second street. Mr. and Mrs. H. McK. Twombly of 684 Fifth avenue, Gen. and Mrs. Charles F. Roe of 35 East Thirty-seventh street.

Mr. and Mrs. Melbert B. Cary of 33 West Fifty-first street gave a dinner on Monday night. The Misses Furniss of 461 Fifth avenue gave a dinner of thirty covers on Wednesday night, when some of the debutantes of the season were present. Among the Thursday dinner givers were James A. Burden of 908 Fifth avenue, Mrs. A. Holland Forbes of 97 East Fifty-fifth street, and Mrs. Henry T. Trevor of 28 East Fifty-second street. Mr. and Mrs. H. McK. Twombly of 684 Fifth avenue, Gen. and Mrs. Charles F. Roe of 35 East Thirty-seventh street.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Bruce Ismay, who reside in Liverpool, are at the St. Regis and are being constantly entertained by Mrs. Ismay's large circle of relatives and friends. George R. Schieffelin, her parents, have given dinners and luncheons, and Mr. and Mrs. William Grant Trevor, her brother-in-law and sister, have also given dinners. Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Amisick, the latter Mrs. Ismay's aunt, gave a big tea for her on Friday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Gallatin of 870 Fifth avenue gave a dinner last night for their granddaughter, Miss Gladys A. Pell, who made her debut at tea given by her mother, Mrs. Howard Pell, and had since a dance given for her by the Gallatins. Gen. and Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford of 18 West Twelfth street, and Mrs. J. Jacob Schiff, who leave for Japan in a fortnight.

Initial Presentation of Exclusive and Authoritative Models in High Grade Tailored Suits for Women and Misses FOR SPRING SERVICE.

Each new model as it arrives from the hands of our tailors seemingly transcends in beauty and loveliness the preceding ones. The collection is fast coming to its full strength. The garments form a charming array, marked by distinctiveness and exclusiveness.

Our designers have fused their ideas with those of the masters from abroad—borrowed an effect here, adapted something there. In fine, they have merged into these new Spring suits that indefinable chic and grace recognized at once as Parisian.

You may anticipate many surprises and innovations—what they are we won't say—but they'll captivate you completely.

The departures from old lines are daringly radical in some instances—yet all within the gates of good taste and refinement.

For to-morrow we present two groups of suits respectively priced at Twenty-five and Thirty-five dollars.

The New Tailored Suits at Twenty-five Dollars | The New Tailored Suits at Thirty-five Dollars

Double breasted Eton suit. The Eton jacket has notch collar edged with broadcloth in contrasting shades—a girde of the material forms a graceful finish for the jacket. It has a lining of taffeta. The skirt is in the eight gore circular style. These suits are fashioned of gray mannish materials in plain designs.

A Cadet Coat, taffeta lined, has mannish lapels and a tailored vest with viable buttons. The skirt for this coat is a circular model with panel of box plaits at front, back and sides, with straps at bottom. Of self striped Panama in gray, green, navy and black.

Pony Eton, double-breasted effect, scalloped at bottom of jacket—taffeta all lining, shawl collar, with edging of white pique. Three-quarter sleeve, caught up by a broad strap and finished with a frill of lace. Double box plaited panel front full circular skirt. The fabrics of which these suits are made are gray worsteds in invisible plaid patterns and plain weaves.

Constructed of serge in lilac, navy, Alice blue, gray, rose, white, navy and black—here's a bolero Eton Jacket with lining of taffeta. The jacket has tucks piped with satin, a vest done in pastel embroidery, and soft satin girde. The sleeve is a dainty three-quarter shirred affair. The skirt is circular with panel of plaits front and back. A row of plaits also runs over the hips at each side and are piped with satin, to correspond with jacket.

Bolero Eton, fitted over girde, having embroidered vest, touched with gold thread, and a shawl collar of moire silk. The front and back of jacket has narrow self straps and is taffeta lined. Gored circular skirt with straps at bottom. This model is made of broadcloth in Alice blue, gray, navy, rose and black.

Here are the new shadow plaid suits of an exquisite soft-finished material. The colors—bluish gray, oyster gray and gray with a toning of green. The jacket is a double-breasted Eton with peas de Cygne lining and finished with a girde. Shawl collar embellished with soutache. Three-quarter sleeves having tucks and fancy cuffs. Full circular skirts, three folds at bottom.

WOODBURY BACKERS PLEASED

THINK COMMISSIONER'S REPORT ANSWERS ALDERMANIC KICKS.

Figures Tell a Story of Wise Financiering and the Incineration Plant Has Proved Its Worth—The More Money He Has the More Money He'll Save the City.

Supporters of Street Cleaning Commissioner Woodbury declared yesterday that his annual report, submitted the previous day, fully answered the criticisms directed against his administration and placed on the defensive those who clamored for an Aldermanic investigation. Especially opportune, it was declared, was the report, since it was made on the very day of the beginning of the investigation and Mr. Woodbury's supporters insisted that if the Aldermen were unable to impeach the report they must perforce give the Commissioner a certificate of high efficiency.

Particular stress was laid by the Woodbury supporters upon the fiscal portion of the report. It disclosed, they said, prudent and wise business management, and that more had been accomplished with the money at the Commissioner's disposal than had ever been accomplished.

Generally the conclusion was based on the increase of the percentages of expenditure and work performed in the last four years. While the expenditure, according to the report, was 10.05 per cent greater in 1905 than in 1902, the work performed had increased 27.98 per cent in the same period.

More precisely, it was pointed out that in 1905 there were 7.8 more tons of refuse than in 1902, 180,780 more carloads of material collected and 119,520 more loads of permit material collected. The total expense of the department in 1902 were $6,153,167.53 and in 1905 $7,911,815.76. In this period there was an increase of population of 286,390 in the five boroughs.

The figures, Mr. Woodbury's supporters contended, told a story of wise financiering. For improvement in method of handling refuse, they pointed with considerable pride to the establishment of rubbish incinerators, and the great saving in expense and improvement in sanitation produced by them. In this connection they referred to this comment of the Engineering Record on the plant established under the Williamsburg Bridge.

The first attempt on a large scale in this country to utilize the heat made available by burning rubbish has recently been begun in New York city. The practice in garbage and refuse disposal in New York provided for three classes of these materials, which are collected and hauled away separately, namely, ashes, garbage and rubbish. The rubbish class includes waste paper, cardboard, discarded garments, wooden boxes, broken furniture and other bulky and unwieldy articles. Owing to the impossibility of securing space for dumping, this rubbish had formerly been towed to sea and dumped several miles off shore. This proved costly, and in addition the greater part of the material floated ashore.

THE HALL ORCHESTRA.

Marie Hall Plays Mendelssohn's Violin Concerto Tootally.

The Boston Symphony Orchestra's matinee concert at Carnegie Hall yesterday was a most agreeable but unexciting entertainment. It is certainly not essential that the orchestra should always bite. It is, on the contrary, better for art that they should provide wholesome, unsensational enjoyment. At the same time the appearance of an element of sleepiness is to be deprecated.

Yesterday's programme was cheerful and satisfying, but it was hardly enough in the performance to keep one wide-eyed. Haydn's D major symphony, with which the concert began, is one of the most melodious of the master's works, and it is also one for which conductor Wilhelm Gericke has a great fondness. He conducted it admirably yesterday, and the orchestra played it with beautiful finish and lovely refines.

Marie Hall, the young English violinist, came forward as the soloist, and her number was the violin concerto. She played it with daintiness of style but without distinction. Her tone is so small that she seems to do things in miniature. In the first movement her playing was not even technically accurate, but in this respect it improved greatly in the second and third movements, through it was a small performance.

Vincenz D'Indy's symphony for piano and orchestra (on a mountain song) was the last number, with Heinrich Gelhard in the first movement. It was a very interesting piece, but it was not very different from the other pieces of the same kind, and it was not very different from the other pieces of the same kind, and it was not very different from the other pieces of the same kind.

YESTERDAY AT THE OPERA.

"Marta" in the Afternoon and "Tannhauser" in the Evening.

At the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday afternoon "Marta" was repeated before a very large audience. The cast was the same as at the previous performance. Mme. Sombriech, who was the Lady Eriehetta in most excellent voice and spirit, and that is equal to saying that she provided her hearers with abundant delight. Mr. Caruso sang with his customary beauty of tone and passionate manner. Miss Walker and Mr. Plancon were the other principal singers.
