

DOMINIE WILSON, SOCIALIST.

NO RED FLAGS, NOT EVEN ON THE HALL, WHEN HE PREACHED.

Got Over Sixty to Hear Him, While Only a Few Persons Attended His Old Church—His First Sermon Proved to Be Very Much Like a Good Many Other Sermons.

The usual Sunday calm pervaded Ridgely Park, N. J., yesterday, although a larger crowd turned out to hear the Rev. Albert L. Wilson in the Town Hall than was wont to attend the services in the little Methodist church, before the Socialist parson had lost caste with the "better element" of that organization.

The village lay green and in the sunlight without a red flag to be seen. Nor was there a red flag on the Town Hall nor on the house of Mr. Wilson in Brinckerhoff street, and despite the "late unpleasantness" in Methodist circles and the proximity of May Day there were no signs of the violent disturbances which had been heralded by the opponents of Mr. Wilson as sure to show themselves now that he had taken the big in his hand and resolved to be entirely independent.

The shutters of the Town Hall where the new People's Church convened for worship and the bright hued clay of the Jersey roads excepted, there was no red in sight. Outside the gatherings at the various churches, of which Ridgely Park boasts some half dozen, no crowds were observed, although a half dozen or eight persons held a long session during the afternoon at one of the three saloons of the village.

The proprietor denied, however, that this was anything unusual. Sixty-odd persons gathered in the town hall at the morning service. If the opponents of Mr. Wilson expected that they would say anything incendiary they were disappointed. To say nothing of Socialism, the preacher did not mention even labor and capital in his sermon. Once or twice he did make references to Mammon, but he did not locate him in a Wall Street office. He made no reference whatever to what the faction opposed to him and led by William Donald and the Abbott family, Amos B. and Warren H. said was a trivial matter and one not worth discussing.

At the Methodist church the Rev. Dr. E. Frank Fowler was equally self-contained in his sermon, though it was very evident that both the minister and the only two of the old board of trustees who have not gone over to the new People's Church were deeply chagrined by the very small attendance at both the morning and evening services. Scarcely a sixth of the sittings in the Methodist edifice, which number between 125 and 150, were occupied and many of the members were absent. Until the Rev. Mr. Wilson seceded, the average attendance each Sunday had been between sixty and seventy-five.

Whatever bitterness was manifested yesterday came from members who have stuck to the old church. Mr. Wilson said yesterday that he had no hard feelings either against the church or against the general organization of the Methodist Church. While he declares that he is a Socialist he asserts he has never preached in any church any doctrine that was not in entire harmony with the tenets of Methodism. He says, in thought, that the organization of the Methodist Church is ranged on the side of mammon and the dollar and is blind to the real issues of the day. So he preferred to get out before the church was disrupted, an outcome which he predicted would occur in twenty-five years at most.

Beyond his socialist affiliations Mr. Wilson is not a reformer and is too practical and too punctilious in carrying his beliefs on the brotherhood of man into practice. If the former minister of the Methodist Church had been more tolerant to the pulpit, it was said yesterday by one of his opponents, there would have been no split in the church, but there was decided objection to the admission of "niggers" and other undesirable elements. The "niggers" referred to were the colored principal of one of the negro schools in New York city and his family, who recently became residents of Ridgely Park and were welcomed by Mr. Wilson into the church, to the great disgust of some of the members. The "niggers" were on hand at the town hall at both services yesterday.

Outside of the church the sympathy of the community seems to be with the Rev. Mr. Wilson. Although the people at large do not approve of his political opinions, the like in personally and are glad to go to hear him. One of the prominent citizens of the town, who is not a member of any church, said yesterday that much sympathy was shown for Mr. Wilson, but he had never been in his presence. Mr. Wilson on account of the "foolish lack of courtesy" which had been displayed by the Rev. Dr. Fowler, had written a letter to the Rev. Dr. Fowler, for the return of the records of the Methodist Church. Dr. Fowler was not willing to do this, and Mr. Wilson had no longer any right to the title.

To fill the places of the trustees who have gone over to the new church in the town hall a meeting of the Methodist body will be held next Wednesday night. Meanwhile Mr. Wilson's name has been stricken from the sign at the entrance door from the church edifice, though he has forsaken his former charge. Those who have been faithful to the church express themselves as highly pleased with their new minister and approve his attitude in the trouble, while the clerical staff which he wears is a great relief to the social—not the Socialist—element to which Mr. Wilson's plain business clothes have long been a source of some distress.

THE LEE BIBLE RESTORED.

It Belonged to Martha Washington and Was Taken From the Lee Home at Arlington.

WASHINGTON, April 29.—A Bible which belonged to Martha Washington and which was taken from the home of the Lee family at Arlington, Va., has been restored to Miss Mary Custis Lee, daughter of Gen. Robert E. Lee, by G. W. Kendrick, Jr., of Philadelphia. It is supposed that the Bible was stolen from Arlington some time during the civil war. It came into Mr. Kendrick's possession many years ago through purchase from a man of the name of Stein. Mr. Kendrick handed it to Miss Lee yesterday.

THE BIBLE WAS PRINTED IN LONDON IN 1702

By Charles Bell and the executors of Thomas Newcombe, deceased, printers to the King's Most Excellent Majesty. It is bound in black leather and is in excellent state of preservation. The earliest birth recorded in it is that of Fanny Parks Countess of 17th. The birth is also recorded in the Parks Custis, 1714, and there is a record of his marriage to Martha Dandridge, who afterward became the wife of George Washington. There is no record of the marriage of Gen. Washington and Mrs. Custis. In the book are many pressed leaves and flowers placed there by members of the Lee family.

BLOODLESS SURGERY CURES.

LOLITA ARMOUR'S CASE NOT CLASSED AS SUCCESSFUL.

Other American Cases, in Some of Which Dr. Lorenz Himself Operated, Said to Average 15 or 20 Per Cent. of Cures—Report on All of Them Next Week.

Lolita Armour, the daughter of J. Ogden Armour of Chicago, is reported to be once more in the private hospital of Prof. Lorenz, the orthopedic surgeon, in Vienna. The child left here with her parents a short time ago and Mr. and Mrs. Armour are now over there with her. This makes the second or third time that the Armour child has been returned to Prof. Lorenz's hospital since the operation which he performed on her in this country in 1903 for congenital dislocation of the hip. It was the case that made so much talk in this country about Dr. Lorenz's "bloodless surgery" and physicians have been following the result with great interest. Now that the child has returned again to the hospital, it is evident, so several physicians said yesterday, that the operation has not yet had the success anticipated for it.

NO MORE SUNDAY BALL GAMES.

So Thinks Mr. Beach, Who Pleaded With Mr. Fagan on Saturday.

Jersey City had its first and last taste of Sunday professional baseball of the year yesterday afternoon on the new Eastern League grounds, in West Side avenue, according to William H. Beach of the West Side Avenue Methodist Church. He headed a delegation to the City Hall on Saturday and pleaded with Mayor Mark M. Fagan and the police authorities to prevent the game. The officials refused to interfere because the baseball management volunteered to donate the entire gate receipts to the local fund for the relief of the suffering San Franciscans.

The church folks made a vigorous effort to convince Mayor Fagan, the Police Commissioners and Chief Murphy that the "charity game" was illegal and was simply intended as an entering wedge in the interest of Sunday games. The officials declared there was a public demand for the contest and gently but firmly told Mr. Beach and his friends that it would take place as scheduled. Then the Methodists resoundingly and tried to get a lawyer to apply to the courts for an injunction restraining the game. No attorney wanted to take the job and lodged his protest by making a statement that they were too busy or that they couldn't find a Vice-Chancellor on a Saturday afternoon.

Five hundred or more persons attended the game and saw the local team thrashed by the Montreal. The defeat had a depressing effect upon the fans which perhaps accounts for the riotous and disorderly manner in which they left the grounds and walked decorously past Mr. Beach's residence and the church property in West Side avenue and around the baseball park and every crowd car which carried the disgusted Jersey rotators and their hordes and two more cops on board to quell any disturbance. Mr. Beach said after the game:

"We have decided in the circumstances not to present any further objection to the violation of the law, and as far as this particular game is concerned we shall let the matter drop. When I saw Mayor Fagan on Saturday he assured me on his honor that after to-day there would be no more Sunday games at the Eastern League Park. Chief of Police Murphy also said he would stop them at all hazards, and President Poole of the Police Board gave the same promise. They explained that to-day's game was arranged by a large number of citizens so that money could be raised for the San Francisco fund."

"I sympathize sincerely with the Mayor because I believe he is a Christian gentleman and means to do the right thing. I told him at the interview that he had been heretofore a reformer and that he should continue to be the Mayor to stand for the enforcement of the law, but he didn't feel that he could stop the game. The gate receipts to the fund was made by Robert Davis, one of the owners of the baseball club, at last Sunday's meeting of the committee, which he refused to be a member. There were several ministers at the meeting and none of them offered any objection."

"I heard that a plan is under way to play a game next Sunday for the benefit of St. Francis's Hospital. If there is a game I shall be sure to go and will reply to the Mayor. I have been fighting against Sunday baseball playing for thirty-seven years and am not going to let Sunday afternoon and have said, 'You can't play.' I have been told that if I didn't get out of the way I would be run over by a large motor car, but they didn't. I do not think, in view of Mayor Fagan's pleading, that there will be any Sunday baseball playing on the West Side in the future."

Mateo De Stefano, a clerk in the law office of Charles Le Barbier, came as a complainant yesterday morning to the Justice's Market police court, where Magistrate Pool was sitting. He left court two hours later after paying $5 fine and seeing the defendant discharged. Stefano was apparently surprised.

CELEBRATION OF THE CENTENARY OF THE HISTORIC BALTIMORE CATHEDRAL.

BALTIMORE, April 29.—The historic Baltimore Cathedral, in which all the great councils of the Roman Catholic Church in the United States have been held, was today the scene of the most brilliant and picturesque ceremony since the opening of the present cathedral.

The occasion was the celebration of the centenary of the venerable edifice, and it marked another notable event in the ecclesiastical career of Cardinal Gibbons, who, after serving as a priest at its altar, has made it the seat of his archbishopric and cardinalate.

Ten thousand or more people, including not only the faithful of the Catholic Church, but men and women of every religious faith, packed Cathedral Square, Charles avenue, facing the Cardinal's mansion, and the adjacent streets to witness the grand procession of the prelates from Calvert Hall around the Cathedral to the south entrance leading to the sanctuary, preliminary to the ceremonies. The sun was shining upon the cross-borne men in line and the magnificent jeweled vestments of the Archbishops and Bishops made a brilliant picture.

Prominent priests and abbots and the heads of religious orders from all parts of the country were in the procession. Mgr. Falco, the apostolic delegate, and Cardinal Gibbons, accompanied by the highest honor in the distinguished gathering, and during the ceremonies sat upon thrones facing each other in the sanctuary before the main altar, resplendent in hundreds of lights and a profusion of the richest flowers.

The pontifical high mass was celebrated by Archbishop M. Farley of New York, the dean being the Rev. T. S. Lee of St. Matthew's Church, Washington; the sub-deacon, the Rev. George W. Divine of St. John's, Baltimore; Archbishop Ryan of Philadelphia preached the centenary sermon.

After the mass a letter of congratulation to Cardinal Gibbons and to the Catholic hierarchy of America from Pope Pius X. was read from the altar. It bespoke good wishes for the success and progress of the Church in this country and extended the felicitations of the Pope and the College of Cardinals.

Following the pontifical mass was a dinner in the great hall of St. Mary's Seminary, at which the Cardinal occupied the seat of honor, with Archbishop Williams of Boston, the oldest prelate in the American hierarchy, on his right.

REASONS:

ONE—Every cigar that I sell is manufactured right here in the cleanest cigar factory and under the most careful sanitary conditions that I have ever seen. It is "finicky" clean, according to some.

TWO—This factory is very close to the business center of the third largest city in the United States, within ten minutes of the City Hall and Broad Street Station, and but five minutes from the Reading Terminal. People familiar with Philadelphia will recognize the fact that I am not trying to hide anything in it.

THREE—All visitors to my office are invited to go through the factory and see the cigars made. They can readily see that I am not trying to hide anything in it.

FOUR—My cigars are shipped direct from the factory to my customers, in the best possible condition.

FIVE—The fillers of these cigars are clear Havana of good quality—not only clear, but long, clean Havana—no shorts or cuttings are used. The wrappers are genuine Sumatra. They are hand made, by the best of workmen. The making has much to do with the smoking qualities of a cigar.

SIX (and best)—I sell them to the consumer by the hundred at wholesale prices. MY OFFER IS—I will, upon request, send one hundred Shivers' Panatela Cigars on approval to a reader of The Sun, express prepaid. He may smoke ten cigars and return the remaining ninety at my expense, if he is not pleased with them; if he is pleased, and keeps them, he agrees to remit the price, $5.00, within ten days.

In ordering, please enclose business card or give personal references, and state whether mild, medium or strong cigars are desired.

Yet the People's Institute's Closing Meeting Went as Per Schedule.

The closing meeting of the People's Institute at Cooper Union last evening took on somewhat of a religious tone, which was augmented by the reading of letters of regret from Dr. P. H. Coler and Bird S. Coler, Brooklyn's prominent Methodist. Charles Sprague Smith, managing director of the institute, who presided, announced that he had secured Senator Martin Saxe to take Mr. Coler's place and a chorus of little girls sang "These Things Shall Be" with much feeling.

"The Country's Outlook" was discussed generally by the various speakers. Senator Saxe read a letter which he said he had received recently "from a clergyman interested in a liquor bill" that said the dominion would use the influence of his church publication and his other pulls if Senator Saxe voted in favor of the liquor bill. The speaker regretted that the legislature under present conditions are hampered by party causes and by the personal demands of constituents.

The Rev. Dr. John P. Peters told of our advancement since the days of his New York boyhood and amused the big audience with an interesting story of the old volunteer fire department.

"When our house caught fire once," said Dr. Peters, "my father wouldn't let us turn in at all. He had a fire company and the boys' gang were tougher in those days, and he wanted us to be ready to go to the fire. We were always greeted with the question, 'What engine do you run with?' There was a big list of engines and the boys would say, 'I run a No. 1 engine.' The speaker concluded by scoring the milk canners.

THREE BOYS IN STABBING FRAY.

One Held for Freely Using a Penknife in Dispute on Tenement Stairs.

Joseph Mikofsky, 17 years old, of 293 East Third street, was arraigned in Essex Market police court yesterday morning, charged with stabbing Andrew Poleroesky, aged 22, East Third street. Poleroesky has a cut over one temple, some cuts in the back and slashed hands, which he attributes to Mikofsky's penknife.

Late Saturday night Poleroesky went with Michael Hanak, 18 years old, to the latter's home at 217 East Third street. Mikofsky was standing in the doorway talking to a girl who lives in one of the tenements above. Hanak had a bicycle with him and he and Poleroesky started to carry the wheel up the narrow stairs. Mikofsky refused to get out of their way, and Hanak insisted on his rights and Mikofsky threw him into the street. When Hanak and Poleroesky made another attempt Mikofsky, they say, drew a pocket knife and cut Hanak's hand. Hanak was in court only as a witness, but he had a cut on his throat and a slashed coat to back up his testimony.
