

MR. ROOT TO CANADIAN CLUB.

TOASTS MEN WHO ARE CROSSING THE BORDER BOTH WAYS.

Hopes They Will Remember Kindly the Land of Their Birth and the Good Citizens in Their New Homes—Visit Out Shows by the Illness of Earl Grey's Daughter.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 22.—Lady Victoria Grenfell, eldest daughter of Earl Grey, the Governor-General, is ill with typhoid fever. In consequence the elaborate party which was to have been given at Government House this afternoon in honor of Secretary of State Elihu Root and his party has been abandoned. Mr. Root, Mrs. and Miss Root left Government House this afternoon for Montreal, where they will be the guests of Lord Strathcona.

The doctors are satisfied with Lady Grenfell's progress. Her condition was favorable last night and no serious danger is anticipated.

In the afternoon Mr. Root was entertained at luncheon by the Canadian Club in the banquet hall of the Russell Hotel. The room was crowded with members and guests. Earl Grey and Sir Wilfrid Laurier were both in attendance, and at the close of Mr. Root's remarks the Premier spoke briefly. There was a fair representation from Parliament, as many of the members neglected the afternoon session to hear Mr. Root. The keynote of his address was the growing good feeling that exists between Canada and the United States. Its climax was this sentence:

"I ask my friends to drink this toast—to the Canadian settlers who are going to New England, and to the British settlers who are flocking to the Canadian Northwest! May they ever, with loyal memory, do honor to the lands of their birth; may they all be loyal citizens and do God's service to the country of their adoption."

Previous to this he touched briefly on the Jamaica incident, but all he said was in reference to the telegram expressing thanks to the American Government for its services toward the Jamaica sufferers, which appeared in to-day's despatches.

"I do not feel at all a stranger in Canada," said Mr. Root; "perhaps it is because you have welcomed me so heartily, and perhaps it is because in this climate (cold recently) blood is thicker than water."

Then he branched off into the advantages of being a part of the British Empire and told his views on this matter, practically paying a series of compliments to Canadians.

It was forty years since he first started coming to Canada and at each visit he noted marked development. Americans and others had seen great examples of constructive genius in the growth of their country and in Canada the spirit of the sturdy American was amply typified. Above all he had seen in the Dominion's growth a nation learning the great national lesson of self-government.

Lord Grey had furnished him with a copy of the debates of the members of the House of Commons lately on the fisheries question and the motus vivendi. He had been much impressed with what he had heard about these and the way in which the matter was debated and presented in Parliament. Public men of the day who were not parliamentarians were largely guided in forming their opinions and in their actions by the cool and sensible way in which these matters were discussed in Canada's legislative halls. Such discussion would lay a good foundation for a nation that would endure.

"I can say for myself and for millions of others that we Americans look upon the material and spiritual growth of Canada without any feeling of jealousy and with the warmest feeling of admiration and hope. I claim, myself, that I cannot be indifferent to the successes of a part of the race from which I sprang. [Applause.] I feel proud to see this great country of Canada go forward."

Mr. Root then touched a popular note when he referred to the fact that Canadians and Americans have lived long "at each other's doors" without going to war. To some the difficulties of the present loomed large, but after all Americans and citizens of Canada had been ninety years side by side living in peace. They celebrated great national events and soon the two countries might be able to celebrate the centennial of a hundred years of peace. [Applause.] During that ninety years [Canada] had advanced at no sacrifice of educational interests or of those succoring the poor and distressed. Mr. Root closed his address by thanks for courtesies extended while here, and lifting his glass to toast the toast given above.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier spoke briefly and touched on the "blood being thicker than water" idea. Canada and the United States had not reciprocity yet, but when he was after good health he went to Washington, while Mr. Root came to Ottawa for the same purpose; so in their case there was at least a measure of reciprocity. [Laughter.]

After the luncheon Mr. Root in company with Earl Grey and the latter's secretary, Col. Hanbury-Williams, C. M. G., drove through the Parliament grounds and shortly afterward he, Mrs. Root and Miss Root started for Montreal.

MONTREAL, Jan. 22.—Secretary of State Elihu Root arrived here to-night from Ottawa and was the guest at a private dinner given at Lord Strathcona's residence to which a number of prominent Montrealers were invited. Mr. Root will remain here until Thursday, when he will leave for Washington.

MORE TAILORS' STRIKES COMING.

3,000 More Clothing Makers Went Out Yesterday in 85 Shops.

The strike of the 3,000 members of the Pants Makers' Union ordered on Monday night went promptly into effect yesterday in eighty-five shops of the middlemen or contractors. They met yesterday morning at 42 Pitt street, where they decided to make a demand for an advance of 25 per cent. on their present wages.

A committee will be in charge of the blank agreements which every contractor will be required to sign before a notary before his employees return to work. Before the contractors can sign the agreement they will have to get a guarantee from the manufacturers who supply them with the work to get higher rates. There are about 8,000 non-union pants makers in Greater New York and the union will try to get them to strike by Saturday.

The knee pants makers, who went on strike on Monday, met at 73 Ludlow street and decided to demand 30 per cent. increase in wages. They will also require each contractor who settles to sign an agreement. The tailors in other branches of the clothing trade are preparing demands. The tailors now out are the pressers and the operators.

Last night five strikers were locked up at Eldridge street. They were Sarah Soshinsky, 18 years old, of 24 Attorney street; Samuel Fisher, 304 East Fourth street; Isaac Lesser, 174 Attorney street; Louis Kufner, 106 East Ninth street; and Samuel Magnolin, 145 Monroe street.

make a statement." Alderman Kuntze went on to say that he had never attended any caucus of the M. O. L. members since the original one when it was decided to vote for Judge Palmieri. He then began to denounce District Attorney Jerome and his assistants, but President McGowan rapped him to order. He then continued: "I patiently awaited the pleasure of the Grand Jury for five long hours, herding together with other members of this board in a small room in the Criminal Courts Building. I can well imagine my indignation and surprise when I was called to go for a walk in the corridor I discovered that I was an actual prisoner in the custody of Mr. Perkins. I will not discuss this matter any further than to say that Mr. Perkins will have to answer for his conduct before a court of law, as I may be advised by my counsel."

Mr. Kuntze wound up by intimating that all, each and every one, and all, all and one, who had said things about him would get theirs in the courts. While Kuntze had been giving this reduced statement Little Tim Sullivan had chased Alderman McGowan out of his seat, Alderman McGowan had slid into it and the two had a long chat. As soon as Kuntze finished Peters got up.

Right off the bat he went for the poor Peter. The M. O. L. members all supported them right along and what had they got for it? Less than nothing, it appeared. He, for one, was tired of it.

"I am the only one of the three Intellectual Giants who has not spoken to-day, it seems to be my turn." He moved the reconsideration of the motion by which the record proceeding excluded to the election of a Recorder. Intellectual Giant Peters hopped up at once to show how strongly Little Tim's arguments had impressed him.

"I appreciate the gravity of the situation and that I appreciate how many, that is, the men and the boys, who are in the leadership of the majority has said some things that are true. I hope that my colleagues will see the hopelessness of—I hope they will see it is hopeless—to keep on with this deadlocking of the situation and will see that as they are Democrats in national matters and that there is no hope of electing their own candidate."—Here Mr. Peters.

BAILEY WINS ON FIRST BALLOT.

TEXAS LEGISLATURE REELECTS HIM DESPITE CHARGES.

Gets 107 of the 147 Votes—Will Be Formally Declared Elected Today—Pledged to Resign if Charges Are Sustained—Senators Elected in Other States.

AUSTIN, Tex., Jan. 22.—J. W. Bailey was re-elected to the United States Senate to-day. One hundred and forty-seven votes were cast in the two branches of the Legislature. Of this number he received 107. The remaining forty votes were scattered among nearly sixty members.

The anti-Bailey vote was not much smaller than the more conservative political observers had predicted. Fifteen Representatives and Senators went on record as not voting.

The scene attending the placing in nomination of Mr. Bailey was dramatic. The galleries were crowded with visitors, many of them from other parts of the State. The results of the votes in the two branches will be confirmed and the election of Mr. Bailey formally announced in joint session to-morrow at noon. Mr. Bailey will deliver an address of acceptance.

The nomination and seconding speeches to-day occupied nearly three hours, the balloting not being finished until 3 P. M. The anti-Bailey vote was not much smaller than the more conservative political observers had predicted. Fifteen Representatives and Senators went on record as not voting.

The suggestion in an editorial in a Northern newspaper that Capt. Bill McDonald, the Republican candidate for United States Senator, might be elected, was refuted by Mr. Bailey's victory. As soon as Capt. McDonald heard that he had been named he rushed into the hall and demanded that his name be withdrawn. It was withdrawn.

There are two Republicans in the House, and for the first time in many years there was a Republican candidate for United States Senator. C. C. Pierce, the Republican member from Laredo named Col. Cecil Lynn, chairman of the Republican State executive committee and Texas member of the Republican national committee.

Mr. Pierce made a flowery speech in which he paid high tribute to President Roosevelt, Mr. Bryan and the Republican party in general. It is said to be the first Republican speech ever heard on the floor of the Texas Legislature since the late death of Mr. Pierce's and that of the other Republican member. He ran next to Mr. Bailey in the voting.

The speaker nominating Mr. Bailey was made by W. L. Bainton of Galvestonville, a Republican candidate for United States Senator and referred to him as the peer of any public man in the country. The investigating committee of the House was brief in its report to-day. It is stated that the election of Mr. Bailey will not prevent a thorough investigation.

TOWERS SPLIT OVER MRS. WEIS.

BUT NO DIVORCE EVER CONTEMPLATED BY THE WIFE.

Consequently Lawyer Hancock's Affidavit That Mrs. Weis Expected to Marry the Man Who Had Showered Gifts on Her Made a Great Stir in Poughkeepsie.

Poughkeepsie, Jan. 22.—The affidavit of Lawyer Henry J. Hancock that Mrs. Minnie L. Weis, who retained him to get her a divorce, which she has not yet, and who disagreed with him about the value of his services, had arranged to marry, after her divorce, a rich manufacturer who had already made her presents amounting to $50,000 value, made a stir in the household of Albert Edward Tower on the Hyde Park road here.

It came out to-day that Mrs. Tower has been practically living apart from her husband for several months. She and her husband's aunt, Mrs. Butts, and Mrs. Weis were in a party which cruised in Southern waters on Mr. Tower's yacht Erl King last year. There were disagreements on the cruise. Mrs. Tower protested to her husband and finally refused to tolerate a situation which was insupportable in many ways and left the yacht. She hurried to her home in Poughkeepsie, where she has since lived with Mr. Tower's aunt and her two sisters, Misses Grace and Sophie Bogardus.

Mrs. Butts alone of the Tower family is arrayed on Mrs. Tower's side. She was an eyewitness of some of the incidents complained of by Mrs. Tower. One of these, it is stated, occurred in the dining room of the Erl King, when, in reply to a remonstrance from Mrs. Tower, the husband is said to have told her that if she did not like the voyage she could leave the yacht, which she did.

Mrs. Weis is not known in Poughkeepsie except to the officers and captain of Mr. Tower's yacht, on which she was a guest several times. She made friends of the crew by her liberal tips. It was her custom at the end of a cruise to distribute five-dollar bills to all hands.

Friends of Mr. Tower say that the trouble between Mr. and Mrs. Tower did not originate with his attentions to Mrs. Weis, but began last April, when there was a quarrel on the yacht, which was then lying off Newport News. Mr. Tower had planned a banquet for the officers of a German cruiser stationed there, and his sister-in-law, Grace Bogardus, had a dispute with him which ended in a downright quarrel. Mrs. Tower attempted to justify her sister and this opened a breach which has widened ever since.

It was in August that Mrs. Weis was a guest on the Erl King and became a subject of discussion between Mr. and Mrs. Tower. Since then Mrs. Tower has paid only one visit to his home here. That was two weeks ago, when he called and was unable to see his wife, who looked herself in her room. On this occasion Mr. Tower extended the olive branch. He wanted his wife and her sisters to have luncheon with him in New York. The offer was refused. Mrs. Tower, on the advice of her lawyer, Charles Morschauer, refused. Mr. Morschauer did not have much confidence in the good faith of the offer.

Nothing was accomplished to-day in the way of healing the breach between the Towers. Lower remains in New York. Mrs. Tower late talks with him by telephone this morning. Her activities also included a long talk with Mr. Morschauer. Mr. Morschauer said later that Mr. Tower had agreed to come to Poughkeepsie and have a conference with his wife. He did not make his appearance. One of his business agents got a telephone message from him saying that Mrs. Tower had asked him to come to Poughkeepsie and talk over a settlement. He said that his first inclination was to come, but that subsequently he had changed his mind and would remain in New York.

Mrs. Tower excused herself to all callers from the Erl King. Her sister, Miss Grace Bogardus, said that she was only too anxious to have her husband return and resume his natural place in his home. Mrs. Tower has had a thought of instituting a divorce suit.

Mr. Tower inherited about $1,000,000 from the estate of his father, the late Edward Tower, over ten years ago, and this fortune has since increased through the general advance in the market value of railroad securities and the jump in iron property values in which the Tower millions are largely invested.

Prior to her marriage to Tower, the present Mrs. Tower was an operator in the Poughkeepsie telephone exchange. As such she had charge of the long distance wires over which Mr. Tower transacted business with New York brokers. She was then plain Mary Bogardus and lived in a comfortable little home in the suburbs. Her pleasant voice and good nature attracted Mr. Tower's attention and soon after the tragedy in his home, when his wife killed her son and herself, Mr. Tower began to be attentive to the cheerful little telephone girl. Later, and over a year after his wife's death, society was interested in the announcement that they would be married.

POPE COMES TO KAISER'S AID.

Tells Centre Party That His War on German Government is Intolerable.

LONDON, Jan. 22.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail says he knew that the Pope has intervened in the German electoral struggle, causing the Centrist to understand that warfare in Germany at the same moment the Church is reeling in a death grip in France is intolerable, and notifying the Catholic leaders that they must place the highest interests of the Church above their own selfish lust for political supremacy.

His Holiness has shown them that it would be fatally unwise for the German Catholics to abandon their historic and honorable role as helmsmen to the Kaiser's Government in conducting Germany on patriotic lines.

This intervention will enable the Kaiser and the Government to agree to work hand in hand with their old ally and momentary enemy without making a humiliating submission.
