

CASE AGAINST DR. SIMPSON IN ACCUSED DENTIST'S WIFE LAST WITNESS FOR THE PEOPLE.

Says That She Loves Husband, but Gives Evidence for Prosecution—Defense Moves for Dismissal of Indictment, Which is Denied—Case to Continue.

RIVERHEAD, L. I., Feb. 4.—Dr. James W. Simpson, accused of murder, sat for ten minutes in the stuffy court here to-night with his hands tightly bound over his eyes after the Sheriff had called out the name "Mrs. Julia A. Simpson." He heard the swish of his wife's skirts as she passed behind him on the way to the stand, but he would not look up.

He heard his wife's voice as she took care to testify truly about the incidents surrounding the shooting of her father, Bartley T. Horner. He knew that she came to lend her efforts toward sending him to the death chair. He would not look up.

Mrs. Simpson had not spoken a dozen words when District Attorney Furman, who was addressing her, moved aside, and she could see her husband's bowed head behind the lawyer. The wife's voice trembled for a second, then she went on talking evenly. But when she told of how her father had fallen to the floor mortally wounded she choked and stumbled in her speech. Then for the first time the man accused of murder took away his hands and raised his eyes to the face of his wife. His brow wrinkled in pain as she wept.

On direct testimony Mrs. Simpson was asked only the story of the shooting. Her testimony on this score was identical with that given by her mother, Mrs. Ella Horner. She was not asked to go into any particulars of family quarrels or money troubles. The only new point added by her to the facts of the prosecution was the statement that while her husband was playing soldier with the shotgun in the kitchen on the night of the shooting he broke the gun at the breach and looked through the barrel. The gun was not loaded, Mrs. Simpson said.

"You went before the District Attorney to tell him all you knew about the charges made against your husband," said Attorney Manton.

"Yes," answered Mrs. Simpson, with a defiant accent.

"Did you testify before the justice of the peace, when asked if Dr. Simpson had the gun in his hand when you rushed into the kitchen, that you were too excited to notice?"

"Yes."

"When you testified just now that you saw your husband with the gun in his hands after the shooting you were not excited, were you?"

"No."

"And you gave your first testimony only twenty-one days after your father's death, did you not?"

"Yes."

Mrs. Simpson developed several serious lapses of memory during the course of the cross-examination. She could not remember many of the incidents of lesser importance which completed the record of the tragedy.

torsey called upon you since the shooting?" "Twice."

"Was it your purpose to tell him all the information you had?"

This question was objected to, but Mrs. Horner answered "Yes" with a snap of her jaw.

And your daughter, Julia Simpson, visited the District Attorney's office with you?" asked the attorney.

Mrs. Horner said she had.

"You turned over all the letters and documents in this case, or was it your daughter?" "I did it," said Mrs. Horner.

"In the week before the shooting, you say in your direct testimony, that Mrs. Horner asked you to go to the shooting?"

But they played a game of cards for a turkey Thursday before Christmas? Did they play that game of cards without speaking?"

"No; they spoke."

"You have no feeling against the defendant in this case?"

Absolutely none, replied Mrs. Horner, and Dr. Simpson smiled.

The attorney read from testimony Mrs. Horner gave at the preliminary hearing before Judge Justice of the Peace, at which time she said she did not see the gun subsequently to the shooting. Mrs. Horner's direct testimony last week was to the effect that she had seen Dr. Simpson in the kitchen immediately after the shooting with the gun intact in his hands.

Manton read from the statement made by Mrs. Horner to Coroner Gibson after the shooting to the effect that she had seen Simpson in the kitchen holding the barrel of the gun, but that she didn't remember whether the stock was attached to the barrel. Then he tried to draw from Mrs. Horner the fact that she herself had not spoken to Bartley Horner before December 12, or December 25, prior to the tragedy in the Horner home, but the judge ruled this out as immaterial.

The attorney was interrupted by the arrival of a heavy truck, which was carried in by two husky deputy sheriffs. Manton opened the trunk and made Mrs. Horner testify as to the contents of the trunk, which consisted of a suit of evening clothes and several other sartorial exhibits. The prosecution had said.

The attorney specified the list of Dr. Simpson's belongings in the trunk, even down to pearl studs for evening dress.

WABASH ANSWERS POLLITZ.

Denies That Its October Stock and Bond Issue Was Illegal.

The suit brought by James Pollitz, a stockholder, against the Wabash Railroad Company has been transferred to the United States Circuit Court here and the company filed yesterday its answer to the complaint, attacking the legality of its issue of $200,000,000 of fifty year 4 per cent. gold bonds, and $33,000,000 of stock authorized at a meeting of the stockholders in Toledo, on October 22 last. A number of those joined as defendants filed demurrers.

The Wabash denies that it went beyond its powers in making such an issue or violated the laws of Ohio, Indiana, Michigan and Illinois. The money, it says, was imperatively needed for improvements. The plaintiff holds less than 1-100 of 1 per cent. of the capital stock.

HETTY GREEN FIGHTS LAWYER.

Says His Bill of $10,000 Is Exorbitant, and That She Won't Pay It.

Boston, Feb. 4.—To fight the claim of $10,000 which has been brought against her by Attorney Sherman L. Whipple for professional services, Mrs. Hetty Green is in Boston and with fire in her eye, for she says she is determined to fight the suit to the bitter end. Mr. Whipple's bill against Mrs. Green is for conducting a lawsuit against William W. Crapo of New Bedford, three years ago, when she brought action concerning the income of an estate involving about $200,000.

Mrs. Green says she understood that she was to pay the lawyer according to the service he rendered and she thought $5,000 about enough. Attorney Whipple wasn't of the same opinion, however, and when he sent in his bill for $10,000 it was like a challenge for battle which Mrs. Green eagerly took up.

"Some people think that because I am a woman I can't be imposed upon, but after they have done with me they usually find out different," Mrs. Green said. "I don't believe this case will be any different from others. I am contesting the bill because I believe I am being charged far more than I ought to pay. I have offered Lawyer Whipple $6,000 in settlement of the suit, which has not been accepted, and I shall never pay him $10,000, which he asks."

Two Countrymen of Secrates Propose to Prosper Here Immediately.

Two newly landed Greek immigrants, who were making their first trip to this city aboard the Ellis immigration ferryboat Ellis Island, began taking up a collection on the passage yesterday afternoon.

INSPECTOR JOHN J. O'CONNOR, head of the boarding division of the immigration bureau, saw the performance and colored the collectors. They said they were collecting for the Greek Church, and had obtained a dollar from each of twenty-two patriots, all of whom had signed their names in a little book. Mr. O' Connor called off the names and handed the money back. The collectors, Jenn Antopolio and Evangelos Viacosa, were told that they had no right to do that sort of thing on the property of Uncle Sam.

PLANNED TO KILL HER HUSBAND.

The Pistol With Which Abram Seaman Was Shot Was Purchased by His Wife.

POTGHEEPSE, Feb. 4.—Coroner Knox has ascertained that the pistol with which Abram Seaman, the aged husband of Mrs. Nellie Seaman of Matteawan, was killed, was purchased by Mrs. Seaman last Wednesday of Gabriel Hart, a dealer in firearms at Fishkill Landing. A revolver of .22 calibre was at first taken by Mrs. Seaman and subsequently exchanged for a .32 calibre pistol. Mrs. Seaman said the first was too small.
