CUBA PROSPERING.

Fruit Full to This Country and Gets Growers From It.

It is said that the orange crop which was gathered in Cuba in January is the largest the island has known. Nearly 700,000 crates were shipped to the United States.

As for pineapples, the shipments from Cuba to this country grew from 311,657 crates in 1906 to 579,000 crates last year.

When tomatoes, raised in large quantities near Havana, forty miles from Havana, were commanding $5 a crate in New York on New Year's Day. About 400,000 crates have been sent to the United States this year.

Tomato raising is a new idea in Cuba and has not as yet been entered into very extensively, but growers are devoting more attention to tomatoes than ever before. They can be raised much more cheaply than any other vegetable grown on the island and thirty-five acres can be set out at a cost of less than $100.

Buyers on the island pay 30 cents a crate and often $1 during the season. The duty is but two cents and the freight but 35 cents. The heaviest shipments are made in March and early April, at a time which is not favored with by the Florida vegetable.

Early in January the exports of onions began from Cuban ports and these proved greatly in demand in New York, selling for $125 a crate. The stock is reported nice and clean, but exceptionally scarce, says the National Magazine of Cuba.

And recently conditions in Cuba have been unsettled, because the wealthy Spaniards who have been advancing the grower money were not putting any money out or fear there might be another insurrection when the American soldiers withdraw in June. But this situation has been relieved by Americans who have readily advanced what money was necessary.

The number of growers in Cuba has multiplied over that of a year ago. More than six hundred citizens of the United States have acquired lands on the island and are setting out orange groves, sugar and pineapple plantations, tobacco fields and so like.

Explaining Who He Is.
From the Kansas City Star.

A Colorado man who is visiting in Wellington told B. L. Woods this story: The game warden of Colorado was walking out in the mountains the other day when he met a hunter with his gun. The official suggested that that ought to be a good country for hunting.

"It certainly is," said the hunter, proudly. "I killed one of the best bucks yesterday I ever saw and he weighed over 200." It was the season when deer meat is not to be shot without subjecting the hunter to a heavy fine. "Well, that is a fine one," said the warden, "and do you know who you are talking to?" "Being assured that he did not, the official said: 'Why I am the chief game warden of Colorado.' The hunter was only taken back a moment, when he asked, 'And do you know who you are talking to?' The warden didn't know.

"Well, sir," said the hunter, apparently much relieved, "you're talking to the biggest liar in the whole State of Colorado."
