

NO MULTIPHONE DIVIDENDS

SELLEY ELIMINATED, BUT MACHINES ARE DISAPPOINTING.

Secretary Fritchard Buys Out Phil Weinsheimer's Friend and Gets Col. Brown and Senator Dick out of Board—There May Be Another Dividend July 1.

Last fall the Multiphone Operating Company of 111 Broadway, which was then under the direction of Edwin J. Selley, was offering stock to the public at $10 a share, basing its claims as to the valuation of the stock on the fact that 1 per cent. dividends had been paid monthly for some time, and that there wasn't much doubt but that the dividend would go on forever, increasing as the country became flooded with the Multiphone Company's nickel in the slot phonograph.

The fact that the price of the stock had jumped from $2.50 a share up to $10 within a few months was pointed to by Mr. Selley and his publicity agent as a reason why every one should step up and become rich. At that time THE SUN looked into the career of Mr. Selley and of Henry G. Pagan, the publicity man. Mr. Selley had been a professional advertising promoter and was the man who according to the court records, introduced Diamond Phil Weinsheimer to the plumber from whom Weinsheimer exported $2,700. Weinsheimer is now in Sing Sing. Selley had had in his employ a dozen or more men who are listed in the Police Headquarters rogues' gallery. As for Pagan, it was learned that the Boston police knew him well.

Immediately afterward William H. Pritchard, secretary and treasurer of the company, who owned the patents for the slot machine phonograph that the company was formed to manufacture and operate, did a little investigating on his own hook. He did away with Pagan's services and notified his partner, Selley, that as there would have to be a change it was a case of either buy out or sell out. Mr. Selley sold out and at the recent annual meeting the company was reorganized and the board of directors increased from three to nine. The new directorate is composed as follows:

Col. Wilbur C. Brown, president; Peter J. Collison, vice-president; United States Senator Charles F. Dick, chairman of the board of directors; William H. Pritchard, secretary and treasurer; Col. H. O. S. Heistand, Dr. J. N. Bishop, Graham E. C. Root, assistant treasurer Lenox (Mass.) Savings Bank; N. E. Matthews, president Putnam County (Ohio) Banking Company, and Isaac Thorman, directors.

At that time it was announced that 24 per cent. of all the cash received had been paid out in dividends, the amount being $90,557.00. It was said that the cash stock subscriptions on which these dividends had been paid were only $248,830.34. The report wound up as follows:

One year ago we predicted a continuous monthly dividend rate of 1 per cent. that time our multiphones were few. Now we own 80, all fully paid for, and the company does not owe a cent. We predict a substantial increase in the dividend rate, and very likely its actual doubling within twelve months.

Multiphone stockholders are now receiving a copy of resolutions passed at a special meeting of the board of directors which reads as follows:

Whereas the Multiphone Operating Company has declared dividends monthly for the past eighteen months; and

Whereas it is the unanimous opinion and judgment of the board of directors that this policy is not conservative and in accordance with sound business principles, and is not the custom of well regulated and sound corporations, and is not for the best interests of the stockholders; and

Whereas it has been proposed to change the company's policy of monthly dividend payments to quarterly dividend payments, now therefore be it resolved:

Resolved, that the board of directors of the Multiphone Operating Company do not declare its customary monthly dividend payable on April 1, and that no further dividends be declared until the first day of the month of May, and that dividends thereafter shall be declared quarterly instead of monthly.

Secretary Fritchard said yesterday that while the next dividend will be computed on June 1, it is not likely to be paid until July 1, and that it will probably be less than 1 per cent. He said that the chief reason the dividend was passed was because the multiphones did not earn enough to pay it, and of course the stockholders could not expect a dividend to be paid out of stock sales.

Mr. Fritchard said candidly that prior to the elimination of Mr. Selley and even afterward the Multiphone Operating Company was in pretty bad straits. One of the troublemaker matters was a loan of $100,000 from the Carnegie Trust Company which was made last summer when Selley was viewing the future in an optimistic manner. The loan happened in this way, he said:

"A representative of the Carnegie Trust Company came to us and asked us if we couldn't use a loan of $100,000, as the trust company was money poor. I agreed to take the money and to use it for manufacturing plant if I could have the loan for a year. I arranged for it through an officer of the company. Mr. Dickinson, who was then in Europe, returned at about the same time Selley appeared and demanded that something be done toward settling the loan. I agreed, and did pay back $28,000, but it was like drawing blood. Then the trust company got a chattel mortgage on our manufacturing plant for the balance."

Several other adverse circumstances also operated against the company, Mr. Fritchard said. Stockholders had bought stock at $250 found that they could get upward of $5 for their stock, so they sold it to brokers, who in turn offered it to the public at around $7. Naturally nobody cared to pay the company $10, and the stock sales fell off to nothing. Furthermore, Mr. Fritchard said that he and Selley paid out a good many thousand dollars buying up this cheap stock to protect the market. The multiphones themselves failed to come up to expectations. In the optimistic days of Selley the page advertisements said that the machines were earning from $10 to $14 a week. He said that net earnings of the 300 multiphones in New York city and vicinity from October 23 to March 21 averaged only $14.09.

All this worked against the company, Mr. Fritchard said, with the result that on December 31 last the company's balance sheet showed that it had only $11 left. "The future looks much brighter, with Col. Brown as president and with the company in the company to help me," said Mr. Fritchard. "Col. Brown, you know, was secretary and confidential man for the late Charles Foster, and was Governor of Ohio and Secretary of the Treasury. Col. Brown was on McKinley's staff when he was Governor of Ohio, and that's how he got the title. He was also close to McKinley when he was President. He got Senator Dick and Col. Heistand to make a large investment in the company, as the result of which they were elected to the directorate."

C. C. Dickinson, president of the Carnegie Trust Company, said he wasn't a bit worried about the loan to the Multiphone Operating Company. He would willingly take over the loan himself and would do nothing better than to get control of the company and all its property and patents. "I told Mr. Fritchard," said Mr. Dickinson, "that any time they feel like defaulting I will be glad to step in and take the company. I am told that another trust company president in New York, who made his money running the business in the land, would like to get hold of the company, but there isn't a chance that the present management will let go."

DID THE POLICEMAN KISS HER?

The Woman Says No, but the Officer Puts in a Disclaimer.

Policeman Richard Becker of the Eldridge street station was in the Yorkville police court yesterday, charged with kissing Mrs. Anna Weiser against her will. Mrs. Weiser is 28 years old and lives with her husband Anton at 415 Sixth street.

Becker has been on sick leave for a few days and was in plain clothes when he was arrested late Thursday night in a saloon at First avenue and Second street by Sergt. Charles Becker of the Fifth street station. Anton Weiser went to the station and made a complaint that a strange man had abused his wife and he asked for his arrest.

The husband said that he had been out of work and went to a saloon at First avenue and Second street and asked some men there for a few pennies, as his wife was sick. One of the men gave him a dime and then expressed doubt about the sick wife. The husband offered to take him home to convince him. The visitor sent the husband out for a ball of beer. On his return he says he saw the visitor kissing his wife.

Mrs. Weiser told the court clerk yesterday that the visitor not only kissed her but pinched her. She said she screamed and that some of the neighbors saw the kissing scene and it appeared as a witness.

Capt. Cray of the Eldridge street station was in court and said that Policeman Becker had been in the department for four years but had only been in his precinct a short time. He is 32 years old. Harold Spielberg asked Magistrate Butts to postpone the examination until to-day and requested the Court to parole the policeman.

"I shall not parole him," said Magistrate Butts. "He is held in $500 bail," the Magistrate responded.

Becker was taken down to the court prison. There he said that he had not gone to the Weiser home and had not seen the woman until she appeared in court. He saw the husband in the saloon and gave him a dime when the man asked for assistance and returned to the saloon after that until he was arrested, he asserted.

He was confident he could get several witnesses to prove this statement.

CHANCELLOR DAY DEFENDED.

The Rev. Mr. Cooke, Who Filed Charges Against Him, Makes No Reply.

SARATOGA, April 17.—The election of delegates from the Troy conference to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was subordinated to-day to the defence of Chancellor Day of Syracuse University, made by the Rev. J. D. Phelps, financial agent of that institution, who appeared at the conference in place of Dr. Day. In defending Chancellor's Day critics of President Roosevelt for his attacks on corporate interests Mr. Phelps said:

"Some people have wondered why our chancellor has defended that modest, quiet and, as I believe, Christian man, John D. Archbold. But what kind of a man would he be if he did not defend a man who has done so much for Syracuse University? Some people have accused Chancellor Day of catering to the Standard Oil and other interests. But we believe that he speaks his own convictions."

The Rev. George A. Cooke of Brandon, Vt., who filed charges against Chancellor Day for criticizing the President, listened to Mr. Phelps but made no reply. Later in the day Mr. Cooke was a candidate for General Conference delegate but received only sixteen votes. To-night he said that he intended to withdraw from the Troy conference to join the Northern New York conference.

The Troy conference will to-morrow adopt resolutions condemning racketeer gambling. To-day the lay electoral conference, composed of laymen, adopted a memorial to the General Conference calling on that body to start a movement for the combination of all churches to fight saloons. The conference also opposed raising money for the support of Methodist churches by fairs and entertainments.

P. S. BOARD WOULD PUNISH.

Orders Suit Against Brooklyn Union Elevated for Not Obeying Orders.

The Public Service Commission for the first time since it has been in existence decided yesterday to penalize a company for failure to comply with its orders. In February last the commission ordered the Brooklyn Union Elevated Railroad Company to furnish the Brooklyn terminal of the Brooklyn Bridge with a wrecking car. The company promised to obey the order, but that is all it has done. The commission directed Chief Counsel Coleman yesterday to bring suit in the Supreme Court against the company for the recovery of a fine of $50 a day for every day since March 1. The total of the penalties up to date amounts to about $2,400.

The commission has started to improve the ferry service in the East River. The commission has been advised that there is no question as to its authority over the ferries, and as a beginning the board has taken up the ferry operated between Thirty-fourth street, Manhattan, and Long Island City and ordered the Long Island Railroad Company to make material increases in the service.

GOW TRIAL NEXT MONDAY.

District Attorney Clarke Refuses to Have It Postponed.

Persistent efforts have been made recently to have the trial of William Gow, who is under indictment for alleged illegal practices in connection with the Borough Bank of Brooklyn, postponed, but District Attorney Clarke has resisted all appeals made to him in that direction and has made arrangements to start the trial next Monday in the County Court as scheduled. President Shears, Vice-President Hurley, Senator McCarty and the directors' committee of the bank all joined in a request to Mr. Clarke to have the trial go over to a later date, but he declared that he would not do so without a valid reason. The reason urged for the postponement was that the trial of Mr. Gow at this time might injure the bank, which resumed business yesterday afternoon after a hard fight. President Shears said that the effort for a postponement was not made to shield Gow or any one and that the attitude of the bank was that every guilty person should be punished.

GAS CO. MUST PAY FOR DEATH.

Verdict of $18,000 for Husband of Woman Asphyxiated.

A verdict for $18,000 was awarded yesterday by a jury in the Supreme Court before Justice Guy to Joseph Jameson, a builder and contractor in business at 2130 Eighth avenue, in his suit against the Central Union Gas Company to recover damages for the loss of his wife, Sarah E. Jameson, who was asphyxiated accidentally on April 7, 1904, in the Jameson flat at 1021 Simpson street. The Jamesons moved into the flat on April 15 and notified the gas company to turn on the gas. The day they moved in Mrs. Jameson, feeling tired, lay down in the parlor room for a rest, and while she was sleeping the gas was turned on by an employee of the company, who failed to make sure that none of the gas jets was turned on before he opened the main pipe.

He was fined $2 and Wheedo was discharged.

CHANDLER SUIT TO JURY.

Federal Court on Appeal Reverses 'Town Topics' Libel Decision.

The decision of the United States Circuit Court on the question of submitting to a jury the facts contained in the suit for libel instituted by John Armstrong Chandler, brother of Lieut.-Gov. Lewis Stuyvesant Chandler, against the Town Topics Publishing Company and William D. Mann was reversed yesterday by Judges Laocome, Cox and Ward, sitting in the Circuit Court of Appeals. The jury is to determine the meaning of the words in the alleged libellous article. The court expresses the belief that the article could reasonably be construed as holding the plaintiff up to ridicule and contempt. The opinion reads:

This is an action for libel against the owner and editor of a paper called Town Topics because of the following publication: "The sensation of the country round about where Amelia Rives-Chandler-Troubetzki lives in her singularly independent way reached a climax when the interchange of two despatches was made between Prince Pierre, her present husband, who is somewhere else than at home, and her former husband, John Armstrong Chandler, who is hanging round Char. lotteville, Va. The first telegram read: 'Our Amelia is ill—needs money—will you supply it?' The answer came: 'It will be my pleasure—how much?'—Chandler's gossip says that Mr. Chandler is constantly riding or driving with 'Our Amelia' and is to be seen sitting on the porches of the Rives mansion; that he makes 'Our Amelia' presents of silver and whinnies and is continually carrying or sending flowers and candies to her. Moreover it is said that when Prince Pierre is at the house he and Chandler are bon camardes, hunting, fishing, golfing and hobnobbing like two brothers."

No special damages were alleged in the complaint, and the defendant demurred on the ground it did not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action. Unless the words are incapable of any reasonable construction which will make them defamatory the demurrer should have been overruled. We think that the article could reasonably be construed as holding the plaintiff up to ridicule and contempt. For this reason the case should be submitted to a jury to determine the meaning of the words used, and judgment is reversed.

POLICEMAN'S HARD FIGHT.

But He Got His Man in Spite of the Revolver Tued Drev.

Rafael Tuoci, who has been missing from his home at 128 Mulberry street since April 14, when he is alleged to have shot Alfred Pino, was arrested by Policeman Londrigan of the Mercer street station yesterday afternoon after a hard fight. Londrigan saw Tuoci standing at Mulberry and Houston streets and recognized him from the description of some stiletto scars on his forehead.

He put his hand on Tuoci's shoulder, but the Italian broke away and grabbed for a revolver which he carried in a side pocket. The policeman caught the man's hand as it emerged from his pocket. In the struggle for the pistol the combatants rolled off the sidewalk and into the roadway. Londrigan finally got the weapon from his assailant's grasp. Then drawing his club he beat his prisoner into submission.

SENSITIVE AARON.

It Wasn't Beethoven the Women Should Look at Him So He Made Objection.

Aaron Friedman, a school teacher living at 247 South Third street, Brooklyn, was crossing the Williamsburg Bridge on his way to New York yesterday morning in a trolley car in which were Mrs. Tillie Lanson of 189 South Fourth street and Bonnie Aaronowitz of 149 South Fourth street, Brooklyn. Friedman got the idea that the women were flirting with him and in sign of displeasure spat on the floor. The women thought he was spitting at them and waded into him.

At the Manhattan end of the bridge Policeman Evans rescued him. "Why did you treat those women so?" asked Magistrate Droegge in the Essex Market court. "I wouldn't let them look at me as they did even if they were angels," replied Friedman.

"Did you spit at them?" asked the Court. "No, I spat on the floor."

"Well, that is against the law," replied the Court, and he was fined $10.

He did not have the money and was looked up.
