GOSSIP OF WALL STREET.

Some of the points emphasized by James J. Hill in his paper on "Wheat," read before the National Association of Millers at Minneapolis on Thursday morning, were transmitted to Wall Street Thursday afternoon.

Others did not reach New York until Friday morning. The late dispatches were incorporated in Hill's views on the outlook, to which the Street paid close attention.

THE BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Advent of Warm Weather and Prospect of Good Crops Bring Cheer.

Warm weather and the approaching adjournment of Congress, with important bills rounding into shape, have brought good business reports this week, with exceptions in the Northwest and South.

THE COTTON MARKET.

Dull and Irregular, Closing Higher—Spinners' Weekly Takings Larger Than Expected—Heavy Spot Sales Here—Liverpool Dull and Disappointing—Favorable Crop Reports.

Wheat and cotton markets were dull and irregular, closing higher. Spinners' weekly takings were larger than expected, and heavy spot sales were reported here.

LOUIS A. CELLA ON THE STAND.

Counsel Says the Chicago Board of Trade Is the Real Mover Against Him.

Louis A. Cella took the witness stand yesterday when the hearing in the case of his brother Angelo and himself, both under indictment in the District of Columbia in the Government's bucket-shop case, was resumed before the United States Commissioner. Cella denied that he had been conducting a bucket-shop business in Washington or that he had conspired to operate one, and he repeated an assertion that he made when arrested several months ago that he had never been in Washington in his life except to pass through on the train.

YIELD TO CLOAKMAKERS.

Some Employers Give in to the Temporary Demands Made Upon Them.

The preliminary strikes of the cloakmakers in the factories where cloaks for the winter trade are being made continued to extend yesterday, and the halls engaged for the strikers were not able to hold them all. As the advances which the strikers demand now are small compared to the increases to be included in the general demands which will be made next month, and to enforce which the general strike will be declared, large numbers of the employers made temporary settlements so as to get as much work done as possible before they are confronted with higher demands.
