

WELLS FARGO MEN TO STICK

THE JERSEY EMPLOYEES VOTE AGAINST THE STRIKE.

They Can Help the Adams Men More by Giving Money—United States Men Not Apt to Quit—No Serious Effort to Move Goods—Hiring New Men.

At the semi-monthly meeting of Local 423, International Brotherhood of Teamsters, composed of drivers and wagon helpers employed by the Wells Fargo Express Company, at Hawkes Hall, 230 Erie street, Jersey City, yesterday afternoon it was unanimously decided not to strike in sympathy for the Adams Express Company's men who quit work on Saturday morning, but to remain on the job and give the strikers all the financial aid possible.

About two hundred men, constituting one-half of the "Fargo's" working force in Jersey City, attended the meeting. Joseph Lyons, president of the local, was in the chair. The grievance committee presented a report that the men were satisfied with conditions and had no fault to find with the company. J. W. Donnelly, the business agent of the local, and others made speeches in which they said that more effective work can be done by the Fargo men in the interests of the Adams strikers by remaining on their wagons than by going out in sympathy.

Members of the teamsters' local to which the Jersey City employees of the United States Express Company belong said last night that there is no present intention on the part of the "States" drivers and wagon helpers to inaugurate a sympathetic strike. The "States" local is scheduled to hold its next regular meeting on Sunday, March 19.

Little effort was made yesterday to move goods by the Adams Express Company and only a few wagons were sent out from the downtown depots. It had been intended to make a vigorous effort to move perishable freight, but later the officials of the company thought it better to wait until to-day in order to find out how many if any of the other companies were to be affected.

No definite arrangements were made for police protection yesterday for the same reason. It seemed to be assumed by the company that when the occasion should come the Police Department would furnish the necessary protection. Three policemen and a police sergeant were on duty yesterday at the large depot of the company at Forty-eighth street and Madison avenue, but no freight was moved there. A number of persons called for packages and a dozen wagons were sent from the downtown depots early in the day with freight, but the wagons could not be recognized as Adams Express Company wagons as there were no marks to distinguish them, in order to avoid interference by the strikers. The employment bureau started by the company at 309 Canal street, in charge of C. E. Wilson, for hiring drivers and helpers was nominally open during the day, but there were few applicants. On behalf of the company the following statement was made yesterday afternoon:

The company will this time not employ the regular strike breakers and is making the effort to man the wagons with trusted employees from other cities. We had intended at first to start on a large scale to move perishable freight to-day, but thought it better to start in with the regular breaking of the strike to-morrow. We know that there are large numbers of good men who want to work.

By a coincidence the trial of the man who is accused of having killed Warner, the driver who was mistaken for a special agent during the strike last fall because he went past a depot carrying a gun on his shoulder, will begin to-morrow. A number of the Adams company strikers were arrested at the time on the charge of being connected with the affair, but were acquitted, and these were since then discharged by the company.

We have no idea yet whether the strike will extend to the other companies to-morrow. It is believed that the American Express will not be involved and it is possible that the strike may not spread, but we never can judge by the indications of a day as the present strike shows.

The striking drivers and helpers held a meeting yesterday afternoon at Washington Hall, 781 Eighth avenue, where President O'Connor of the Jersey City branch was denounced for not endorsing the strike and for refusing to join in the strike himself. William Travers Jerome was also denounced for becoming the lawyer for the Adams company to prosecute those who interfered with the property or employees of the company. Secretary-Treasurer Howard Biggs of Local 423 of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, representing the Adams company's employees, said after the meeting that there will be no new strikes today.

Valentine Hoffman, vice-president of the New York district council of the teamsters, said that a meeting of the council will be held to-morrow at which the question of a general strike of the express drivers will be decided.

It was announced in Jersey City last night that Daniel J. O'Connor, president of Local 423, who refused with a number of other men to join in the strike of one-half of the Adams Express Company's force on Saturday, will quit work this morning and will call out his colleagues.

O'Connor said on Saturday that he did not know who authorized the strike. It was later explained that it had been authorized by the executive committee of the local with the sanction of the joint council of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters.

O'Connor, it was said, had not attended the meeting and did not know what was going on.

Passenger seats Adrift on Ice Flies
The Russian liner steamship Birma, several days late from Libau by way of Halifax, reports that on the way from Halifax the ship passed much drifting ice and with sails. Passengers found fun in following the seals and watching them dive from floes into the sea.

TEN KILLED IN STRIKE

Queen and Crescent Trains Fired On by Picketets in Rough Country.

SOMERSET, Ky., March 12.—The strike of the firemen on the Queen and Crescent has reached a crisis. Engineers and firemen refuse to go out for fear of being shot by the pickets of the strikers between here and Glen Mary, Tenn., where ten men have been killed in three nights besides three badly wounded.

While Train 78, a freight, stopped at Glen Mary this afternoon for water James Carl, a detective who was in the cab guarding a negro fireman, was shot and fatally wounded. He was taken to the local hospital. Two negro firemen, Tom Johnson and Arch Cook, were killed at Glen Mary last night while Train 9 was taking on the body of a negro who had been killed earlier in the evening.

Johnson was standing in the runway between the firebox and the tender when he was shot. He died within a few minutes.

H. M. Holloway, deputy sheriff, was shot and killed to-night at Stearns, Ky., while guarding the Q. & C. coal chutes. He was shot from ambush. Deputy Sheriff Lovett was also killed at the same time.

Two negro firemen were also killed late to-night at Kings Mountain in their engine cabs.

All of the ten men who have been killed have met death between here and Glen Mary. The road runs through a rough region and it would be almost impossible to capture any one who shot into a passing train.

Physicians are carried on all trains for emergency cases and orders were issued to-night by the railway company not to run negro firemen north of Chattanooga.

TAXI STRIKE TO-DAY

Men of Two Companies Expected to Go Out—Ask $2.55 a Day.

According to a report made yesterday by Cornelius O'Leary, secretary of Local 267 of the Chauffeurs Union, after a meeting of the local at Washington Hall, 781 Eighth avenue, all the chauffeurs employed by the New York Cab Company and the New York Taxi Service Company will strike to-day for a new scale of wages and recognition of the union. The strike may involve all the taxicab companies in the city before the end of the week.

It is said that efforts have been made for several weeks to avert a strike to secure a performance of promises alleged to have been made to the men by the companies, but they were unsuccessful.

The demands of the chauffeurs on the two companies are a flat wage rate of $2.55 a day, a twelve hour working day and 30 cents an hour overtime. They also demand that the companies be responsible for repairs and breakages and that the chauffeurs be allowed to wear their union buttons.

CHINESE WOMAN PUZZLES 'EM

Sent to Bellevue for Examination as to Her Sanity.

A wee Chinese woman with light slippers, gaudy silk pantaloons and blouse was arraigned in the Tombs police court yesterday. Policeman Heutler had found her drenched to the skin in yesterday's early morning downpour, wandering about near the Hudson Terminal Building.

She could not be got to say a word for a long time nor to touch coffee, tea or food. A Chinese laundryman was sent for.

She was silent, except to say they could cut her head off before she would tell who she was.

She understands English well. Magistrate Freschi finally got her to say her name was Sing Sing and that she was married.

Dr. McGuire of the Tombs reported that the woman was suffering from hallucinations of sight and hearing, so Magistrate Freschi sent her to Bellevue for examination as to her sanity.

At Bellevue it was said last night that she was the first Chinese woman to be placed in the psychopathic ward in the recollection of the present force there. The doctors regarded her as quite amenable to treatment. They weren't any more able than the police to find out who she is.

LOVER KILLS GIRL'S BROTHER

Gets Mortal Wound in Return in Fight on Dark Streetway.

NEWPORT, Tenn., March 12.—In a pistol fight here at 4 o'clock this morning Kidwell McSwain, only son of Col. W. J. McSwain, State Democratic committeeman and noted lawyer, was killed, and John Pritchett, a young railroad switchman, was probably mortally wounded.

The tragedy resulted from Pritchett's attentions to Miss Emma McSwain, aged 18, Col. McSwain's daughter. Pritchett and Miss McSwain became lovers following a flirtation. They continued to meet after Pritchett had been forbidden to enter the McSwain home.

Finally Col. McSwain placed his daughter in a convent at Nazareth. Six weeks later she escaped to a relative's home in Knoxville, where Pritchett met her last Friday upon her request sent by telegraph. When her family heard that she and Pritchett were married they were reported to be reconciled and Miss McSwain and Pritchett boarded a train at Knoxville last night for Newport.

A friend hearing that they had not been married wired them to avoid danger and not to stop at Newport. The couple accordingly passed through to Hot Springs, N. C., doubled back through Newport on a fast train and returned to Knoxville, where a friend persuaded the girl to return home, Pritchett agreeing not to come to Newport until the affair blew over.

Instead Pritchett returned to Newport and dodged behind the railway station and hid behind the railway station with an automatic pistol. Pritchett returning the fire with an automatic, and held another automatic in reserve in his left hand.

CARNEGIE CASE TO GRAND JURY

BANK DEPARTMENT EXPERT A PRINCIPAL WITNESS.

Has Been Going Over Robin's Confessions and the Books and Picking Out the Transactions That Wrecked the Company—Story of Window Dressing Tips.

The Grand Jury will probably begin this afternoon to examine the evidence that District Attorney Whitman has secured concerning the financial operations of the men who were in control of the Carnegie Trust Company when it failed. Most of the District Attorney's evidence has to do with the operations of William J. Cummins, who was in fact the head of the trust company; Joseph B. Reichmann, who was the president, and Liston L. Lewis, a director and legal adviser.

Judge Whitman has intimated that he is satisfied with the progress of the investigation so far as it has had to do with the borrowing and lending methods of the Cummins syndicate. What he is anxious to accomplish now is the gathering of evidence that will make plain to the grand jurors that there was something more than a coincidence in the fact that Mr. Cummins and his friends got big loans from a number of banks soon after these banks had obtained deposits of city money. Joseph G. Robin has told Judge Whitman what he knows about alleged agreements that have been made to get city cash provided they obliged the Carnegie Trust Company management, but his statement as to an agreement lacks corroboration.

Joseph B. Reichmann as president of the Carnegie Trust Company was aware, so Robin has said, of the understanding between the Cummins people, a number of bankers and a city official, and Reichmann will have a chance to tell Judge Whitman how much truth there is in Robin's story. So far the presidents of half a dozen banks that received deposits of city money and then lent money to the Carnegie crowd have been questioned by the District Attorney and other bank presidents will be questioned this week, among them Bradley Martin, Jr., president of the Nineteenth Ward Bank.

The scope of the investigation has broadened in the last few days. It was learned yesterday that the District Attorney will ask the Grand Jury to look into several cases of window dressing. He has been told that the Northern Bank and the Carnegie Trust Company were never caught napping by the bank examiners and were always able to produce bundles of satisfactory securities and to show plenty of cash when the examiners turned up. The District Attorney is trying to find out if any State official was so careless as to let a tip get out that examiners would be around on a certain day.

It is probable that most of the Grand Jury's time to-day will be taken up by Joseph A. Broderick, the expert of the State Banking Department, who has been assisting the District Attorney in preparing evidence. Superintendent of Banks Cheuey lent Mr. Broderick to the District Attorney's office at the outset of the inquiry and Mr. Broderick has been piecing together bits of information obtained from Robin and others. William J. Cummins and Liston L. Lewis will be called early in the week, it is said, and Joseph B. Reichmann will be a witness as soon as he returns from Dayton, Ohio.

Three indictments are expected this week, but a direct intimation comes from the District Attorney's office that others are likely to follow in a short time. Judge Whitman has made it plain that he wants the Grand Jury to look into the activities of persons who were not connected with the Carnegie Trust Company.

Liston L. Lewis was at Cape May yesterday at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Sarah A. Foster, in Perry street. He declined to discuss the story that he took William Ferguson, his law clerk, to the Carnegie Trust Company at the time it was desired to cover loans to Robin by issuing a renewal note in Ferguson's name, explained the law to Ferguson and advised the clerk that the State Banking Department knew all about the loans. Mr. Lewis said he did not know when he would return to this city. His wife is ill and he may stay at Cape May a few days.

DAYTON, Ohio, March 12.—Joseph B. Reichmann, who has been here for a few days, said to-night that he is ready to return to New York whenever he is needed. Mr. Reichmann will go to Cincinnati for a few days. He has been suffering from a severe cold since his arrival here and has been under the care of a physician. He showed improvement to-day and says he thinks he will be able to leave to-morrow.

EUGENIC YOUTH, BAD CHECKS

Went Adolf Plum Says He's Well Born—Others Say He's a Swindler.

René Adolf Plum, who says he is a son of the Mayor of Cologne, Germany, was held in $1,500 bail for further examination by Magistrate Freschi in the Tombs police court yesterday. Although the specific charge against him is passing a worthless check for $25 on August Bagnardi of 151 West Eighty-third street, Lawyer Walter Kennedy says he is an international swindler, who has obtained many thousands of dollars in many countries.

Plum was arrested on Saturday at Maiden Lane and Front street by Detectives Boyle and Harvey. The detectives told the Magistrate yesterday that when they made the arrest they found a check book on the Astor Trust Company in Plum's possession.

They said all the checks but two were out and the stubs filled in. The two checks left were signed and ready to pass.

Last January the Police Department had received a letter from the prefect of police of Cologne which told who Plum was and inquired for news of his behavior.

SOLDIERS BURN HOUSES

Men From Camp Crockett Go In to Avenge Tenebrion Offracts.

GALVESTON, March 12.—The finding of Winfred Joel, a soldier from Camp Crockett, lying in the street with a knife wound in his side precipitated an attack by his comrades on negroes and Mexicans in the red light district about 3 o'clock this morning.

The soldiers demolished the furniture in two houses and then set fire to them, badly damaging these houses. The police attempted to arrest the soldiers and were in turn attacked and driven off. One policeman, Patrick Reagan, was cut several times with a knife.

The fire department was called out, but the fire hose was cut, and not until a provost guard of twenty-five soldiers arrived from the camp were the firemen able to extinguish the flames.

Several Mexicans and negroes were assaulted and the police clubbed four or five soldiers. The soldiers were organized and planned to clean out the neighborhood, but were prevented from doing further damage by the arrival of Col. Bailey, commanding the regiment of Coast Artillery mobilizing here, with a provost guard of forty men from Camp Crockett.

Three soldiers were taken to jail and twelve others placed in the guardhouse in camp. All the men were called in, and from now on not more than ten men will be permitted away from camp at one time. To prevent further trouble a provost guard of twenty-five soldiers will be kept on duty in town to cooperate with the police in all affairs involving soldiers.

FOR WESTCHESTER BOROUGH

Senator McClelland to Introduce a New Annexation Bill This Week.

A new annexation bill drawn by Charles W. Sinnott which provides for the annexation of Mount Vernon, New Rochelle, Yonkers and the towns of Eastchester and Pelham to the city of New York, as the borough of Westchester, will be introduced in the Senate on Tuesday by Senator McClelland, formerly a resident of Mount Vernon. It also became known to-day that the Westchester County Chamber of Commerce and many other civic bodies will oppose the measure.

In one section of the bill provision is made for the referendum and special election in each of the towns and cities concerned on the second Tuesday in May, 1911, when the voters will be permitted to express their ideas concerning annexation by ballot. In another section the educational boards and public instruction departments of the cities are blanketed, the section declaring that all superintendents, principals, teachers and all other employees will be considered as employees of the Board of Education of New York city, including a participation in the teachers' retiring fund, and that they shall receive the same rates of pay that now prevail in New York.

OIL FIRE KEEPS BURNING

High Tide Prevents Fireboats From Drawing Out Williamsburg Blaze.

The fire which destroyed a large part of the Standard Oil Company's plant at the foot of North Twelfth street, Williamsburg, on Saturday night continued to burn yesterday. It was difficult of access to the firemen. An exceptionally high tide prevented the crews of the fireboats Boody and Hewitt from directing streams of water under the explosion and quenching the flames. One explosion after another among the thousands of five gallon tin cans filled with oil ready for shipment caused the black smoke to hang over lower Williamsburg and in the East River. The fire also spread to thousands of cases of paraffin and candles.

Deputy Fire Commissioner O'Keefe of Brooklyn and Deputy Police Commissioner Driscoll of Manhattan didn't leave the scene of the blaze until early yesterday morning and then the fire had reached a situation where it was possible to disperse with military force and let the fireboat crews handle it.

It was said the fire might burn for a day or two.

MINISTER'S SON SHOT BOY

Paul MacMullen Had Air Rifle Held Till Victim Gets Well.

Paul MacMullen, the son of the Rev. Wallace MacMullen, pastor of the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church, at Madison avenue and Sixtieth street, was in the Yorkville police court yesterday charged with shooting Robert Poling, a 15-year-old boy, with an air rifle. The injured boy is in the German Hospital and it was said there that he was likely to lose the sight of that eye.

The shooting took place on Friday. Poling, a Polish boy, who is 9 years old and lives at 69 East Fifty-ninth street, on the roof of his home with Emil Matzmann, another boy. Young MacMullen, who is 16 years old, was in the rear yard of his home at 46 East Sixtieth street and was amusing himself with an air rifle.

The lawyer representing the clergyman's son said the shooting was an unfortunate accident and that there was no criminal in it.

Magistrate Herbert said that would be determined at the examination when the other boy is able to appear in court. He held the MacMullen boy in $500 bail, which was furnished.

ROBERT S. BROWN HELD

To Be Extradited to Boston for Trial on Forgery Charge.

Robert S. Brown, the broker from Brookline, Mass., who was arrested on Saturday on the charge of having forged the name of George Otis Draper to a note for $5,000, was arraigned yesterday in the Jefferson Market police court. He did not appear at all disturbed and did not say a word during the whole proceeding.

Detective William Brown charged him with being a fugitive from justice and asked that he be held to await extradition from Massachusetts.

Magistrate Corrigan asked if there was any one present to identify the prisoner. There was not.

The detective said that Brown admitted his identity. Magistrate Corrigan held the prisoner for forty-eight hours, but would not fix any bail. He said that was a matter for Supreme Court Justice to determine. Brown was locked up in the court prison.

MENINGITIS FROM GREECE

SIX STEERAGE PASSENGERS DIE ON THE STEAMSHIP PATRIS.

Five Were Sick on Arrival and Treated With the Flexner Serum Here—The Ship Had None of the Serum Aboard—Greece Productive of This Disease.

From the classic port of Piræus, where once the trimme dreadnoughts of the Athenian war skippers assembled, and from the less famous town of Patras there arrived yesterday at this barbaric port the Greek steamship Patris with a tale of stress and loss by disease of six of her 630 steerage passengers, all from the isles of Greece. The ship's surgeon surmised that three of the dead Greeks, whose bodies were weighted and sent to the bottom of the sea, had died of pneumonia.

Health Officer Doty found that the symptoms of these three were the same as that of the others, who had succumbed, the surgeon said, to spinal meningitis. This disease seems to abound in Greece, as in the last several years nearly all the deaths on Greek ships arriving here have been due to it.

All the dead aboard the Patris were adults and all were in the same compartment. Two died as the liner neared Sandy Hook on Saturday night and the skipper decided to bring them in. Health Officer Doty held the liner up yesterday and the two bodies, those of Andreas Karkoalatos, aged 30, and Kalligie Donkeli, aged 17, were taken from the ship to Swinburne Island. There was some uncertainty about the exact nature of the disease that had carried off the two Greeks and Dr. Doty made a very careful autopsy and bacteriological examination, which clearly established that the cause of death was spinal meningitis.

Five adult passengers, men and women, had been removed from the liner because of illness, and when it was established that the disease that had carried off the six was indubitably spinal meningitis Dr. Doty felt somewhat pleased that he had already applied the serum of Dr. Simon Flexner of the Rockefeller Institute to the five patients removed to Hoffman Island. The surgeon of the Patris did not have any of the serum. It might have been possible to save the lives of all the dead Greeks if there had been anti-toxin aboard, and it is likely that Greek steamships heretofore will be supplied.

Within the last two years nearly all the spinal meningitis that has come into this country has been aboard Greek ships, and there is an impression among physicians who have made a study of the disease that it may be indigenous to Greece; at all events, most of it comes from Greek ports and from certain localities in Greece. There is mystery about its origin and about the manner in which it is contracted. Dr. Doty said yesterday that it does not spread through a ship like typhus, cholera or smallpox, but seems to confine itself to certain groups in which it appears at first. Dr. Flexner was even more anxious than Dr. Doty to find the pedigree of these cases, and Dr. Doty will send to Dr. Flexner to-day a complete history of the cases on the Patris.

There seems to be no doubt that Greeks in certain sections of their country are peculiarly susceptible to the disease and that it is in some way yet definitely determined communicable. Dr. Doty hopes to assist in finding out more about it by paying particular attention to the Greek ships that bring it here.

This morning he will go through the steerage of the Patris again with his assistants and carefully examine every immigrant. If he should find any illness in the compartment where the disease seemed to be epidemic he will send the patient or patients ashore. It is probable that the Patris will be released from Quarantine to-day unless there should be another outbreak of the disease.

LAUNCH IN DISTRESS

Two Men in It Burn Newspapers and the Boat.

As John Lavelle, a watchman at the Barge Office, was looking out upon the harbor lights last evening he saw flames arising from a 300 foot power boat. He watched the fire for a few minutes and realized that two men in the boat were signalling for help. They were drifting out toward the Statue of Liberty.

Lavelle called up Headquarters on the telephone and Headquarters told the harbor squad about it, but before the police got there the launch had disappeared. A tug had come along and picked it up. They headed for the East River.

Lavelle said that the men in the boat had been tinkering with the motor in the afternoon and that he supposed the engine didn't work. The signals consisted of lighted newspapers. It was too dark for Lavelle to see the name of the boat and the occupants of it didn't offer their own names.

FOR CLOSED SUNDAY P. O.

Jersey City Audience Asks Postmaster Wanser to Shut Up Shop Once a Week.

More than 1,000 people voted at the high school building in Jersey City yesterday afternoon in favor of a resolution asking Postmaster P. Farrer Wanser to close the Jersey City post office on Sundays and give his carriers and clerks a day of rest.

The Rev. Dr. John L. Scudder, manager of the People's Palace, presided and made a red hot "boost humanity" speech.

Other speakers were the Rev. George Grannis, general secretary of the Lord's Day Alliance of the United States; the Rev. Mark Duffy, assistant pastor of St. Michael's Catholic Church; Representative James A. Hamill and Eugene F. Kinkaid and the Rev. J. Madison Hare, pastor of the Parly Memorial Baptist Church. A concert by the Brooklyn Letter Carriers Band preceded the meeting.

SPUR OF VESUVIUS FALLS

Contour of the Great Volcano Changed by Earthquake Disturbances.

ROME, March 12.—The shape of Mount Vesuvius, which it will be recalled was altered by the last eruption, has been changed again by the collapse of a huge spur of lava. The latest change is ascribed to earthquake disturbances.

The rim of the crater is now much lower than it was and is truncated in appearance.

Twenty tourists had started to ascend the crater when the lava spur collapsed. No one was hurt.

MARSHALL FIELD BUSINESS

Department Heads to Become Part Owners and Perpetuate Corporation.

CHICAGO, March 12.—John G. Shedd, president of Marshall Field & Co., last night announced a plan whereby a number of department heads are to become joint owners of the business.

This move will assure the permanency of the corporation and may result ultimately in its separation from the Field estate which is held in trust for the two grandsons of the late Marshall Field, who are being educated under the supervision of their mother, Mrs. Mildwin Drummond, in England.

According to reports twenty-five department heads of Marshall Field & Co. will take part in the new arrangement, which in reality is a profit sharing plan.

Some department heads, it is said, will buy outright the stock to be allotted to them. To others not in position to buy shares of stock will be allotted and they will pay for them out of their share of the profits of the business.

CORONATION RENTALS

Huge Bids Said to Be Made by Americans for Houses in London.

LONDON, March 12.—It is stated here that wealthy Americans are making huge bids for furnished houses in the West End during the coronation days. One Liberal peer is reported to have refused the offer of an American of $50,000 for his London residence for six weeks. Another American, it is said, offered $85,000 for a house in a fashionable street for a period of three months. The owner refused to accept less than $100,000.

It is said that John Hays Hammond, special Ambassador from the United States, will pay $10,000 a week for the Burlett-Coutts mansion.

CIGAR INDIAN ASSAULTED

With a Sword Came by a Man Arrested Even as He Runs the Redskin Through.

Policeman McGuire of the Delancey street station was standing on the corner of Grand and Ludlow streets early yesterday morning listening to a man scolding the wooden Indian in front of a cigar store.

Suddenly the man unscrewed the top of his heavy cane and producing a sword lunged at the stomach of the silent redskin, bowing him over. Then he waved his sword and shouted that dead Indians were the only good Indians anyway.

Policeman McGuire arrested him. He told Magistrate Steiner that he was August Crucke of 129 East Ninth street.

Magistrate Steiner thought the sword cane a pretty dangerous weapon and held him in $200 bail for trial.

ARRESTS AT CHURCH BLESSING

Anarchists Who Persist in Shouting Their Minds Gathered In.

Antonio Crevello of 617 East Sixteenth street left a meeting of anarchists yesterday afternoon with several of his comrades and finding that ground was being blessed for a new church on the opposite side of East Twelfth street cried:

"Long live anarchy! Down with the church!"

Antonio got arrested. So did Domenico Bonomo, who presses clothes and lives at 518 East Twelfth street, but who talked so loudly that a detective interfered. Thereupon Domenico produced a loaded revolver, threatening the detective. He was locked up on over so many charges.

The police had learned that anarchists were to hold a meeting at 413 East Twelfth street at the same time that Mr. Murphy of the Church of the Immaculate Conception was to bless the ground for the new Church of Mary Help of Christians. So they had taken a detective around.
