

Weber Week at Aeolian Hall

Inaugurated as a fitting climax to the notable series of musical events beginning last fall with Steinway Week—to round out the most successful season in the Aeolian Company's history—and to present to a limited number of discriminating music-lovers an opportunity to secure at an attractive price one of the Weber Pianos used in Grand Opera this year

THE question of adding Weber Week to the brilliant series preceding it—Steinway Week, Metrostyle Week, Stroud Week, Victor Week, etc.—has been seriously considered by the management of the Aeolian Company—proprietors of the Weber Piano.

This famous piano has been so long

Three Great Recitals

To which the Public will be invited without charge. These Recitals will be held in the auditorium of Aeolian Hall on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

The features at these recitals will be:

- The Kneisel Quartet
- The Columbia College Glee Club
- The well-known Artists—
- Mr. Daniel Beddoe, Tenor
- Miss Laura Coombs, Soprano

In addition to these features, the program at each recital will contain numbers rarely heard in concert and of far more than ordinary interest. The solo instruments employed will be

It will be noted that in these Recitals are represented the two foremost tone-producing mediums that are known, viz: the human voice and the violin or cello. A definite purpose has here been served. It is to afford comparison with the Weber itself, which of all pianos approximates most nearly the peculiar sympathetic quality so appealing in voice and string tone.

An Illustration of Weber Progress

To those interested in pianoforte development and capable of appreciating its significance, an opportunity will be accorded after each recital to personally try the Weber Piano with its famous new action—one of the most noteworthy contributions America has made to pianoforte development, and a conspicuous example of modern Weber progressiveness.

The effect of this improved action will be apparent to all who hear the Weber played.

The hitherto noticeable defect in all pianoforte tone—the percussion of hammer on string—is gone. In its place the glorious voice of the Weber flows from the instrument, almost as from an organ—with all sense of impact eliminated.

and favorably known to the Metropolitan public that ordinary exploitation is superfluous.

But to convey some impression of the wonderful development of the Weber during recent years, which even its traditional admirers may not fully appreciate, it has been decided to hold Weber Week and to commemorate it with

A Choice Selection of Artist-Used Weber Pianos At Reduced Prices.

As a timely contribution to Weber Week the pianos used at the Metropolitan Opera House and by individual artists of the Company, have just been relinquished and are placed on special sale this week at Aeolian Hall.

These pianos are the choice of the Weber factory. Selected last fall by such critics of tone as Mme. Geraldine Farrar, Mme. Louise Homer, Antonio Scotti, Otto Goritz and many other famous artists, they have been in use only during the 22 weeks of the opera season. Needless to say they have suffered nothing by such expert use.

To those who appreciate the distinction a Weber Grand or Upright would add to their home, and to whom the mellow, sympathetic, voice-like tone, for which the Weber is pre-eminent appeals, this opportunity is unparalleled.

Prices Will Be As Low As $365.

Moderate Monthly Payments If Desired.

Weber Week and its memorable predecessors this season illustrate better than ever before the breadth, the importance, the democracy of Aeolian Hall as the Musical Center of the Metropolis.

Steinway Week—demonstrating the magnificent Steinway Pianola Piano; Metrostyle Week—illustrating the vital feature that has carried the Pianola and Pianola Piano to the pinnacle of supremacy among similar instruments; Victor Week—showing that whatever the nature of the instrument, the best alone is found at Aeolian Hall; Stroud Week—proving that here not only are the world's most famous and costliest pianos obtainable, but the most economical as well; and finally Weber Week—emphasizing those supreme qualities that have given the American pianoforte, its dominating position among the musicians and musically cultured of the world.

BATTLE NEAR JUAREZ ALL DAY

BEYOND RANGE OF U. S. BORDER—MANY WOUNDED.

American Troops in El Paso Plan to Prevent Casualties if Mexican Town is Attacked—No More Bloodshed at Agua Prieta—Maderos Turn Back.

El Paso, April 15.—A battle has been in progress south of Juarez all day. Several men have been wounded and at night the Federals sent in for field guns and reinforcements.

All the troops that have been standing in Juarez went out this evening to reinforce the Federals who are fighting at Baucha, some fourteen miles north of here. The firing went on until darkness stopped the battle.

The last detachment to leave Juarez was a train loaded with six field pieces and equipment. The Federals have been ordered to hold their position until the reinforcements can attempt to execute a flank movement and cut the rebels off before the reinforcements from the south arrive.

The entire garrison with the exception of a few guards, about 700 soldiers in all, have now gone to the front, leaving Juarez unprotected. Fighting, it is expected, will be resumed at daybreak and an effort will doubtless be made by the rebels to capture the town as soon as it is light enough to see.

A reporter returned to Juarez from the battlefield at 5:30 P. M. and two wounded men were brought in the same motor with him. The battle was a sharp engagement. Insurrectos had come up to the point where the battle was taking place—seventeen kilometers, or about fourteen miles, south of Juarez and just north of Baucha—in a freight train. The train is still standing on the track.

The insurrectos were sheltered in a small cañon and the Federals had very little shelter. The reporter and his party met at the battlefield an officer of Gen. Navarro's staff, who said that there had been a number of his command wounded, but he did not know how many. Besides the three brought back to Juarez in the auto the officer knew of one more wounded man who had started to walk to Juarez.

The battle was fought much closer to Juarez than the former battle of Baucha. The staff officer said it was estimated, after a close survey of the field, that there are at least 500 insurrectos in the command. The Federals are only 250 strong. A hundred cavalrymen met the insurrectos this morning early and reinforcements of 50 cavalry and 100 infantrymen were sent out. These are outnumbered, but are in a position to retreat if necessary, as they are between Juarez and the insurrectos.

The reporter accompanied Dr. Freiherr A. von Matthesius to the battlefield. The doctor gave what attention he could to the wounded men who were brought back. The Federals thought a number of the insurrectos have been wounded. The Federals so far had not any dead.

Consult T. D. Edwards telephoned from Juarez that he has been notified in that city, that an embargo is to be placed at once on traffic between the two towns and that only persons with passes will be permitted to cross to that side. Passes will only be issued by Señor Torres, Mexican Consul, and Col. A. C. Sharpe, commanding the United States troops in El Paso.

Fiscal guards reported seeing last night a body of insurrectos near Baucha but there was no exchange of shots. At 5 o'clock this morning a troop of cavalry under Lieut.-Col. Angel Jimenez left for the scene and at 10 o'clock a courier came back and reported that fighting was in progress. Shortly before 11 o'clock 100 infantry and fifty cavalry under command of Lieut.-Col. Pueblita were sent from Juarez.

When the reports of the fight reached Juarez the one saloon was the only place to hang out a foreign flag. When Orozco was attacking a couple of months ago everybody had out foreign flags.

The bullfight impresario announced today that the bullfight was called off for Sunday. Mme. Bernhart and party had engaged two boxes.

Water supply may have an effect upon the movement of Madero's command into Juarez. At Baucha there is no water. It is believed that Orozco's men away a few weeks ago when they were besieging Juarez.

Gen. Navarro has sent requests to a number of the leading men of Juarez to volunteer in defending the town. Only two have responded, it is said. The remainder left immediately for the American side. There is a dearth of young men in Juarez at present and a corresponding increase of Mexicans in El Paso and in the parks.

An additional troop of cavalry has been ordered to El Paso in anticipation of trouble in Juarez. Troop B of the Fourth Cavalry, which has been stationed near Rachtia, N. M., has been ordered here to join the other troops of the Fourth. The new troop will arrive some time to-morrow.

The El Paso Chamber of Commerce held a special meeting this afternoon to ask President Taft to take steps to protect the city in case of an attack on Juarez. It is believed that Col. Sharpe and the military had the matter in hand and sent no message to the President.

Should the expected battle of Juarez occur, El Paso will practically be under martial law. No one will be permitted to go to the south side of town without a permit, and the street cars to Juarez will be stopped. Nobody will be permitted to cross the bridge except those who have permits from Gen. Navarro. This will be a part of the precautions to keep the border and to prevent the possibility of looting from the river to the south.

Col. A. C. Sharpe, commanding the American troops, will order a line thrown across the town at Seventh street and will prevent any crowds collecting near the river. His force, he says, is strong enough to establish a line of fire across the river.

There has been no fighting to-day at Agua Prieta, opposite Douglas, Ariz. The insurrecto command has grown to such proportions that here and there the Federals will not attack for the time being. The insurrectos are now said to be 1,200 strong. Juan Cabral and his men fought with the Federals during the night to keep them back while the insurrecto reinforcements slipped in, and to-day he came into Agua Prieta himself.

The insurrectos are preparing to allow the American forces to resume operations to the south, as they are in need of supplies for their horses and themselves, and these can be brought up from Nacozari and its vicinity.

NABS CONVERSE KIDNAPPER

Arrest of Mexican Rural Guard Made in Texas Territory.

EL PASO, April 15.—State Ranger Charles Moore arrested to-night a man giving the name of Ascension Achuleta on a charge of kidnaping. The ranger charges that the man is Arriete Achuleta, a Mexican rufale, one of the four who kidnaped Lawrence Converse and Edwin Blatt from Texas soil and took them to Mexico.

The man says his father is the man wanted. The Grand Jury returned indictments against all the men recently.

LONDON HASN'T HEARD OF IT

Landing of Marines at San Quentin Not Officially Reported.

LONDON, April 15.—The Foreign Office has received no information of the landing of British marines or blue-jackets at San Quentin in Lower California.

The view is held here that under the circumstances, the town needing protection, the Captain of the English ship has not seen any necessity for direct communication with his home Government.

NO MOVE IN DIVISION CAMP

But Gens. Carter and Duncan Get Long Instructions From Washington.

SAN ANTONIO, April 15.—No orders from the War Department indicating any activity because of the situation at Douglas, Ariz., were received to-day either by Gen. William H. Carter, in command of the mobilized division of the army at Fort Sam Houston, or by Gen. Joseph W. Duncan, commander of the Division of Texas. It was the opinion of officers of Gen. Carter's staff that the border patrols would not be augmented from the force of American cavalrymen with the division.

The reported landing of marines by the British man-of-war Shearwater at San Quentin, on the peninsula of Lower California, was taken by the army officers as a far more significant development in the Mexican situation than the trouble at Douglas.

Late in the afternoon Gen. Carter visited the office of the commander of the Department of Texas, carrying a long despatch. With Gen. Duncan's two aids they were in consultation for more than an hour. There was considerable study of the big map of Gen. Duncan's district. At the end of the conference both Generals said that they could not give any information as to what the nature of their talk had been.

Douglas is in the Department of Colorado, and consequently not in Gen. Duncan's district. The points within his province that are reported to be threatened by a repetition of the events that led to the fatalities in the Arizona town. These threatened points are El Paso and Laredo.

El Paso seems at the present time to be far more likely to hear the clatter of Mexican rifles than Laredo. Within the last week rumors of the gathering of forces below Nuevo Laredo, across the Rio Grande from the American town of Laredo, have been increasing and the insurrecto junta in San Antonio has said that Laredo would be the line for attack as soon as the rebels take the important towns.

Col. Edward F. Glenn is in command of the troops at Fort McKvenzie near Laredo, who are doing the border patrol. It is reported that some of the Gen. Duncan was asked what order he would send to Col. Glenn in case Nuevo Laredo was attacked, he answered that his order would be to hold the town. The commander of the troops now strung along the border was capable of meeting and acting upon any situation that might arise.

MEXICO BY REBEL AGENTS AND SYMPATHIZERS.

The Government has ordered troops from Toluca and Salina Cruz to the border section.

The reported attempt on the part of Rosalino Torres to form a band on Guatemalan territory to invade Chiapas is not regarded by local Government officials as offering any particular menace to the peace of the southern section of the country. While there is no question that Guatemala would be unable to maintain a border guard such as the United States has on the northern border, yet there is little fear that any movement of consequence could be started on Guatemalan territory.

This view is based principally on the fact that the extreme southern portion of Mexico is scarcely inhabited and being remote from any centre of population it would be very difficult to mobilize a force there. Another reason advanced is that the high wages paid on the coffee haciendas to the south, where the demand for labor is always greater than the supply, will prevent any considerable number of men leaving a comfortable station to take up the dubious fortunes of an insurrecto band.

The Government is unable to enforce its orders it shall not try again," exclaimed the color Madero. "There is no safety for us in Mexico."

The promised Federal passports were not in evidence when the peace party arrived here in the afternoon, and the private car of the party was held in Ciudad Porfirio Diaz for two hours. Catarino Benavides, a cousin of the elder Madero, who joined the party there, was arrested by a district judge, a revolutionary, and would have been carried to jail had not a telegram from Gen. Treviño, commanding the military zone at Merrey, who was appealed to, secured his release.

Customs officials were with difficulty prevented from searching the baggage of the party and the Maderos were thoroughly convinced that Minister Limantour's inability to control conflicting authorities would mean loss of their liberty should they proceed.

MONTREY, Mexico, April 15.—A despatch from Mexico city says a despatch received by the Government from points in the State of Chiapas bordering on Guatemala give accounts of the smuggling of large quantities of arms and ammunition into

MADEROS WIN IN PARIS.

Boy Brothers of Mexican Insurgent Become School Heroes.

SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT IN THE SUN. PARIS, April 15.—Maderists are winning popularity in the Paris colleges. Until now the younger brothers of Francisco I. Madero, who are at school here, have been sternly boycotted, particularly by numerous Mexican students.

The Maderos are now the heroes of their college.

FOUR DIE IN CESSPOOL.

Two of Them Rescuers—All Were Struck Down by Gas.

An excited Italian ran into the store of Herman Frank at 177 Corona avenue, Corona, L. I., yesterday and told him that four men had gone into a hole in the sidewalk and had not come up. Frank, who is chief of the volunteer fire department, turned in an alarm and sent for police reserves.

When the firemen reached the hole, which is a cesspool under the sidewalk in front of 56 Floyd street, they found so much gas that their work had to move slowly. The bodies of four men were brought up. They were Vito Cirigliano of 80 Floyd street, who owned the property where the pool is; his son Peter Lado Arcanello of 56 Floyd street; Mac-fall Kue of 141 Mott street, Manhattan; Cirigliano had started to clean the pool, which is about eighteen feet deep and contains six feet of water. His son followed him down the ladder. Arcanello and Kue, who was a friend of Cirigliano, were down when they saw the others had not come out and shared their fate.
