

TRAIN SMASHES TWO AUTOS

MRS. C. H. GODDARD AND MRS. JOHN GIROYO HURT IN ONE.

Chauffeur of the Other Is Killed—Crash Occurred at a Grade Crossing in Westchester Park, S. S. Commission Working to Get Rid of Such Crossings.

A westbound electric train on the North Side division of the Long Island railroad crashed into two automobiles at the Thomson Avenue crossing in Westchester Park yesterday afternoon. Both machines were demolished and Peter Horn of 33 East 117th street, the chauffeur of one of them, was instantly killed.

The occupants of the other automobile, which belonged to C. H. Goddard of the Plaza, were hurled to the side of the tracks and badly shaken up. In this car were Mrs. C. H. Goddard, with her friend, Mrs. John Giroyo, a daughter-in-law of Mayor Giroyo, and the chauffeur, Charles Wesley.

According to stories told the police by persons who saw the accident three automobiles had halted for the gates to lift. When the gates were opened the automobiles started across the tracks.

The first of the three was that driven by John H. Wesley, chauffeur of C. K. McCormick of the brokerage firm of McCormick, Brown & Co., 122 Broadway. Wesley had been at the aviation field at Garden City and was bringing the car back to New York.

The second automobile was that of Mrs. Goddard and almost touching his auto as he went across the track was the automobile belonging to Mr. Goddard. The chauffeur, Wesley, occupied the front seat and in the tonneau were Mrs. Goddard and Mrs. Giroyo.

The tonneau of Horn's car was squarely on the westbound track and the front wheels of the Goddard machine were just going across the rails when the train struck. The train motorman, Harry Jeffers of Hempstead, blew his whistle and put on the brakes, but was unable to slacken the speed of his train appreciably.

When it struck the Goddard car it fully seventy-five feet from the track before the train came to a stop. The car was completely demolished and parts of it were strewn along the tracks for the feet. Horn was caught beneath the wreckage. His death was almost instantaneous.

The Goddard machine was skewed around and hurled into the ditch at the Thomson Avenue crossing. The two women were thrown out and they lay stunned. The third car, which escaped being struck by the train, was that of Surrogate Daniel Noble of Queens county, who was going to Long Island City with a party of friends. They stopped their auto when they saw the accident and hurried to those who were hurt. They took the women in his car to St. John's Hospital, about three miles away. Wesley lay unconscious at the side of the track. He was carried to a grass plot, where he lay until Dr. Lawrence came with an ambulance and took him to the hospital. He is not thought to be badly hurt.

POLICE KNEW THE DRIVERS.

No One Stole a Case of Goods, but Two of Them Were Fined Just the Same.

Lieut. Dowling and Detective Landrean of the Central Office were walking through Canal street yesterday afternoon when they saw three men driving an empty express wagon which had no license number on it. The three men in it also looked familiar. So the detectives followed to Lafayette street, where a big case stood on the sidewalk. The wagon backed up to the curb and the men started to hoist the case into the wagon.

One of them glanced around and saw the detectives. He gave a yell and the three dropped the case, jumped into their rig and dashed away. The detectives commanded a passing wagon and overtook the fugitives. One of these jumped from the truck and got away. The others were collared.

In the Tompkins police court the prisoners said they were Charles Donnelly, 28 years old, of 132 York street, Brooklyn, and John Yates, 24 years old, of 124 Bridge street, Brooklyn. The police say they are old offenders. Magistrate Breen wouldn't accept a larceny charge against them, but fined them $10 each for disorderly conduct.

NEW AUTO FIRE APPARATUS.

Commissioner Johnson Expects to Spend $750,000 for 150 Pieces.

Fire Commissioner Johnson announced yesterday that he expected to have at least 150 pieces of automobile apparatus in the department to replace horse drawn machines inside of eight months. The Commissioner has about $750,000 available for the purpose.

The Commissioner has appointed a board composed of officers of the uniformed force and Deputy Commissioner Farley to work out plans for the wholesale introduction of automobile machines. This board has asked for plans for machines from manufacturers of gasoline propelled engines. In the proposed machines the pumping is to be done by gasoline.

It is the purpose to do away with steam pumping engines. There are at present twenty-nine automobiles in the department, but nineteen of these are touring cars and runabouts. There are four automobile hose wagons, one automobile engine, one automobile water tower and four delivery trucks. There are fourteen pieces of automobile apparatus now under construction.

The Commissioner is also considering the adoption of an automobile chemical engine for the suburbs, where a light engine with great speed is desirable.

BINFORD GIRL ADDS TO STORY.

Sends for Detectives and Is Said to Have Completed Case Against Beattie.

RICHMOND, Va., July 24.—Late this afternoon, after receiving a letter from C. Dean of 80 West Seventy-fifth street, New York city, Beulah Binford, the affiant of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., sent for detectives to visit her at the Henrico county jail.

It is said that she made a sworn statement which the officers will not make public, but which strengthens the case against Henry Beattie, charged with the murder of his wife.

Rumors to-day say that a witness to the crime on Midlothian Turnpike has been found, but detectives who investigated say the person passed the scene of the crime after it was committed. Witnesses, however, have been found who saw Beattie and his wife standing in the road at the scene of the crime.

"Beattie is going to the electric chair for financing the murder of his wife. It is a question how many of them he will take with him," said a detective who has investigated the murder. "We do not believe Henry Beattie killed his wife, but we are sure he had grown tired of her and decided to have her slain by a hired assassin."

Though the sorrow of her baby's death had long since passed, Beulah Binford declared in her cell today, her love for the babe, which bearing the name of Henry Clay Beattie would have been 2 years old to-morrow, which is also the twentieth birthday of the girl.

"Did you ever have any knowledge that Beattie and his wife were not happily married?" she was asked.

"No," she replied. "Mr. Beattie had told me that he was a doctor and that he would live and told me time and again he would have to cease going with me when his baby was born. He said it made a 'big' bound and he and his wife were drawn closer together."

She said Beattie never told her that if anything happened to his wife he would marry her, but she added: "I knew he would not displease his family by marrying me."

Asked if she was still in love with Beattie she replied: "No, I have no compassion for him if he really murdered his wife. No pity at all."

The clerk at Weinstein's pawnshop, where Paul Beattie purchased the shotgun with which the murder was committed, made another statement to-day to the effect that at first Paul wanted to buy a pistol, the sale of which is prohibited in Richmond. Being refused the gun he returned later and bought the gun.

Henry Beattie stands to his original story that a "tall man with a scraggy beard" fired the fatal shot.

SHOE STORE HOLDUP FOILED

THIEF HAD KEY TO CASH DRAWER—WIFE FIRED, NO ONE HIT—Several Reasons Why He Didn't Get $5,000.

He Ran Out After a Woman Customer—Shoe Man Followed Her—Wife Fled, No One Hit—Several Reasons Why He Didn't Get $5,000.

Louis Rosenbaum was alone in his shoe shop at 241 Bleeker street early last evening when a stranger came in and asked for a pair of shoes. He was wearing patent leather shoes. He took them off and tried on the pair that Rosenbaum brought him. They were all right, he said, except that they wanted a little stretching. Rosenbaum went to the rear of the shop to stretch them and the man pulled his patent leathers on again.

Rosenbaum was doing up the new shoes when he heard a rattle. He looked around. The man was tugging at the cash drawer with one hand. In the other was a revolver whose muzzle seemed to cover every part of Rosenbaum's body at once.

"Bring me the key to this drawer," said the man in patent leathers. "The shoe dealer laid the key beside the thief's hand on the shelf. Perhaps he looked as if he wanted to yell. At any rate the man gave him some advice on the subject.

"No noise, now," he said, "I'll put a bullet in you. There's no need to get excited. All I'm going to do is to get the cash out of this drawer and then have you open the safe for me. I don't want to hurt you."

As he finished his remarks a woman came in the shop door. "Go back! Police!" yelled Rosenbaum, and dropped flat behind a showcase. The woman slammed the door and ran. The man at the cash drawer fired a couple of snap shots toward the showcase, neither of which hit Rosenbaum, and ran out to the street. Rosenbaum jumped up and followed him. The man turned as Rosenbaum slammed the door and fired three more shots at him. Neither of them hit him, but he hesitated for a minute. The man ran half a block south on Bleeker street and turned east on Cornelia. When Rosenbaum reached the corner the man was not to be seen.

Rosenbaum ran back to his shop and called up Police Headquarters. Detectives were sent around from the Charles street station and Rosenbaum gave them a description of the man. The man got no money, but he has the key to Rosenbaum's cash drawer.

Rosenbaum said that yesterday morning he had $5,000 in the safe, but that he deposited it later. He thinks the robber must have learned that he had a large sum of money there. There was $35 in the drawer. Many people go past the shoe shop at 6 o'clock in the evening, but none of them knew of the holdup until the woman rushed out of the store screaming. They were too much amazed to help Rosenbaum chase the thief and when shots began to fly every one ran for a hallway.

Some eight or ten months ago there was a similar holdup in a shoe shop on First avenue near Thirty-fourth street. The thief there got away wearing a new pair of shoes and carrying with him the diamond earrings of the proprietress. He was caught later and identified by means of the shoes, which he was still wearing.

WAR NO FUN IN WET WEATHER.

Massachusetts Militiamen Praying for Universal Arbitration.

BOSTON, July 24.—If real war is much worse than the mimic article a great many of the 6,000 Massachusetts militiamen who started last night for a week's firing of blank cartridges in Essex and Middlesex counties are hoping now that universal arbitration will be adopted right away.

The Red Army which is endeavoring to save Boston from capture by the American Blue troops were the worst sufferers in the first twenty-four hours of warfare.

Early last night several million aerial warriors, commonly known as mosquitoes, made a dash by the outposts of the Red camp at Lynnfield and put the soldiers to rout with ease. Every one was driven under canvas, there to spend the hours slapping and scratching until daybreak, when they welcomed the bugle call.

Breakfast, when plenty of grub was served, was the only consolation, for long afterward a deluge of rain fell, soaking every one to the skin. To cap the climax the umpire said: "The Blue of the Red Cavalry had lost many of its men in a skirmish with Troop B of the Blues about a mile east of Reading. The Blues cavaliers had dismantled the worst were scouting through wooded country when they sighted the troop of Reds and opened fire. The Blues made an effort to capture the mounts of the Reds, which had been put in the rear, but they were repulsed with heavy slaughter. The encounter occurred during a heavy rain and did not last long.

The Blue army broke camp early at North Billerica and the entire brigade took the road to Tewksbury, where they pitched their tents in a driving rain-storm on the grounds of the State hospital. There was trouble with the auto trucks on the sandy roads deep in water, but they all came through finally.

TRIAL OF FIVE CENT FARE.

B. R. T. Has Until Thursday to Volunteer to Make the Experiment.

When the Public Service Commission got together yesterday, to take up the matter of a five cent fare to Coney Island between 5 A. M. and 9 A. M. eastbound and 4 P. M. and 7 P. M. westbound, Commissioner Cram, who has been behind the movement, suggested that the B. R. T. have until next Thursday to decide whether or not it would put the five cent fare in operation voluntarily for a trial period of three months to see how it affected revenues. The commission voted with Cram.

Attorney George D. Youmans of the B. R. T. said that it was unfair to take the question up again after it had been decided that a five cent fare was not equitable. He said the company wanted to be in a position to pay dividends on its stock, but that if it was handicapped by such an order it couldn't. Chairman Wilcox said that the commission was considering merely the application of a five cent fare during certain hours. Mr. Youmans was glad to hear it, he said, and he would not be asked to reconsideration of the whole five cent fare matter.

LOST ALPINIST'S BODY.

Homer Diman of New York Dead in a Crevasse of the Dent du Midi.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. ST. MORITZ, July 24.—The body of Homer Diman of New York, who disappeared from the Dent du Midi in the Alps a few days ago, has been found in a crevasse of that peak.

The judicial authorities have gone to the spot in order to go through the necessary formalities.

BOSTON, July 24.—Homer Diman, the eighteen-year-old boy whose body was found in a crevasse of a glacier on the side of Dent du Midi in the Alps to-day, was the son of the late Frederick L. Diman of Arlington and a nephew of Mrs. Louise Homer, the American prima donna. He went to Switzerland with his mother and was lost in the Alps on July 5 while taking a tramp over the glacier alone.

His father, who was formerly a musical director in the public schools of Arlington, killed by stepping in front of a train about twelve years ago. Soon afterward Mrs. Diman and her son moved to New York, where she married a Spaniard, Young Diman was graduated from Worcester Academy in 1910 and determined to wait a year before entering Harvard because of poor health.

He chose Switzerland in which to convalesce, and he and his mother went there, staying near Lausanne. Young Diman had passed the entrance examinations for Harvard. He was planning to study music and the liberal arts.

NEW FIRE IN STAMBOUL.

5,000 Houses Destroyed by Sunday Night Conflagration—Sheket Pasha Hurt.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. CONSTANTINOPLE, July 24.—The fire has broken out again in Stamboul. Another fire has also broken out in a distinctly different quarter of the city.

The fire has already destroyed some five thousand houses. There is nothing left standing from the great square in front of the Ministry of War to the Sea of Marmora.

Mahmoud Sheket Pasha, the Minister of War, was injured by the fall of a beam. No estimate of the loss has as yet been made and it is not known if any fatalities occurred.

At midnight the flames are still spreading and it is said that 1,500 more houses have been destroyed. The occupants are fleeing in a panic and are making no attempt whatsoever to save their belongings.

There is a widespread belief that the fire is due entirely to the work of political incendiaries who are determined to spoil the festivities in honor of the adoption of the Constitution. Several arrests have been made.

EARTHQUAKES AND TREMORS.

Disturbances Frequent but Not Catastrophic in Guatemala.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. GUATEMALA CITY, July 24.—For the last three weeks there has been an average of an earthquake every day in Guatemala city. The shocks have not been of daily occurrence and there has not been much damage, but the people are very apprehensive.

The first shock was on July 6. There were two short, sharp shudders of considerable severity. The next day there were two shocks. July 9 there were eight tremors, since then there have been several intermittent series of quakes.

A number of cornices have fallen in various parts of the city, several plate glass windows have been smashed and houses have sunk slightly in the heart of the town. Walls of several mercantile houses show big cracks, but business continues practically uninterrupted.

The severity of the tremors is that they have been confined almost entirely to the city itself and the small valley in which it is situated. Towns within fifteen miles report no signs of seismic disturbance except the rest of the State has not been shaken.

900 FOOT CUNARDER.

The Aquitania to Be Lengthened to Be at Big Hamburg-American Boat.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. LONDON, July 24.—It is announced that the length of the new Cunarder, the Aquitania, will be increased to 900 feet, so as to exceed that of the Hamburg-American Imperator.

WALDO URGES ON DETECTIVES.

Only Blind Leads Yet in Murder and Robbery at Jewelry Store.

Commissioner Waldo had several talks with Inspector Hughes yesterday about the taxicab robbery and murder at Jacob Jacoby's jewelry store at Thirteenth street and Sixth avenue on Saturday night. He is anxious that it be cleared up speedily. Inspector Hughes said that his man had discovered a clue yesterday morning out of which an arrest might possibly be made.

Three men are searching the automobile records with the hope that the taxicab which figured in the robbery may be traced. About 300 New York automobiles have been incorporated in their numbers the figures "579," and although it may take a week to narrow them down to ten or twelve the inspector thinks that because of the lack of other information this should not be disregarded. Only one man is sure, however, that the robber's cab bore the figures 579, and it is a matter of surprise whether it bore any genuine number.

The police were handicapped in this part of the inquiry because they have no list of the automobile licenses issued in 1911. The Secretary of State has always asked 2 cents a name heretofore and the delay is caused because the price has been raised and the department does not want to pay it.

BEGINNING THIS MORNING IN MY SIX SHOPS

An Extraordinary Sale of 14,400 Pairs of High Grade "Esco" Lisle and Silk Half Hose Regularly 50c. & 75c. - At 25c. Straight

Not the flotsam and jetsam of a stagnant market. No! Involved is the far-famed "Esco" hose, full-fashioned of gauze lisle, medium lisle, and heavy pure thread silk.

The designs are varied enough to satisfy every taste—conservative blacks, tans and solid colors, with self-colored silk embroidered clocks and individual designs.

For the more daring, plaids, checks, shadow stripes and colored silk embroideries. Now, then, about eight thousand pairs are of the standard seventy-five-cent grade and the rest are the fifty-cent hose—25c straight.

SERIOUS FOE FOR MADERO

Progressives Will Try to Prevent Taft Inauguration—Bryan to Be Ignored.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 24.—Delegates to the Republican State convention, which meets here to-morrow, are gathering to-night and both the La Follette and Taft men have opened headquarters. From all indications the convention will be harmonious and a resolution indorsing Taft and his Administration will be passed, although not without some opposition.

Gov. Aldrich, who is a prominent La Follette man, says: "The convention might indorse Taft as a patriot and an honest citizen, but I don't think anything should be said about a second term."

The Republican Progressive League is badly split, and as many delegates belonging to the league will be for Taft as will be in favor of La Follette.

A resolution indorsing Senator Norris, Brown will be bitterly fought by the friends of Congressman Norris, who are grooming the latter as the successor to Brown. The Progressive League is almost solid for Norris.

The Taft men have control of the machinery of the convention, the temporary chairman being A. W. Jefferson of Omaha. President, Neb., July 24.—"Conciliation" is the slogan of the delegates to the Democratic State convention which convenes here to-morrow. Already more than half the delegates are on the scene. On the surface all is serene, but only a split is needed to start such trouble that a hopeless split will result. The Dahlgren faction will fight any resolution indorsing Bryan. The Bryan faction will fight any resolution indorsing any one else, and the Shallenbarger faction will fight both Bryan and Dahlgren if resolutions favoring either are introduced.

The temporary chairman will be M. F. Harrington, once a staunch Bryan man, but violently opposed to him at present.

In the present confused politics of the country and the widespread disorder following the attempt Madero has made to dictate the policies of President de la Barra the launching of Reyes's candidacy is a complication which will prove a setback to the Madero pretensions.

Some political leaders have already begun to agitate through the press the necessity of postponing the national elections, due in October, for a year because of the growing fear that holding them now will turn the present widespread disorder into open anarchy.

Those who have welcomed the advent of Gen. Reyes as an opponent of Madero have already picked as his running mate for the Vice-Presidency Teodoro Dehesa, the present Governor of Vera Cruz, who has always been a Diaz partisan. This is a combination which, it is believed, will draw the hearty support of the Cientifico party, as well as the strength of the army.

It is also generally expected that with Reyes in the field and within a few weeks friends who deserted him when he failed them in their demand that he head an anti-Diaz propaganda in the State of Nuevo Leon and who have been Madero supporters during the revolution will return to their former loyalty.

Madero is still in Tehuacan. Besides the evidence of a cooling of the national ardor for the hero of Cuernavaca it is now plainly apparent that the Madero group is threatened with disintegration because of the standing quarrel between the Madero family and the brothers Vasquez Gomez.

Francisco Vasquez Gomez, who was representative at Washington of the revolutionary party during the early days of the revolution, is Minister of Public Instruction in De la Barra's cabinet and Emello is Minister of Gobernacion, or Internal Affairs.

Both were put in the Cabinet at Madero's dictation and within a few weeks after their installation an open rupture between them and Francisco and Gustavo Madero occurred. The former have freely voiced the criticism that Madero and members of his family are attempting to grab everything in sight and that all the pledges of a free election are being nullified in advance.

The have been some very savage criticisms of Madero in the papers of Mexico city. Attention is called to the fact that by leaving large bodies of Maderista troops still armed in various sections of the country the revolution is playing the old Diaz game of sowing a wary opposition by show of force.

Business men generally are pessimistic, predicting that whatever side wins at the October elections there will be an armed protest from the other. They believe that trouble will start in August, when three national conventions for the nomination of candidates will be held.

TO HEAR TRANCE MESSAGES. Greeks to Assemble in Ithaca To-day to Listen to a Girl's Revelations.

ITHACA, N. Y., July 24.—Greeks from all over the State are to be present at John N. Chacona's residence to-morrow to hear a sixteen-year-old sister of Chacona talk with departed spirits and to hear messages from God. All of the Chacona family in this country are to be present by divine command, according to Mr. Chacona, who is greatly worked up over his constant trances, which his sister has recently undergone.

The young girl says she was told while in a trance last week that more messages would be received immediately after baptismal services in the colony to-day. She was in an apparent trance for twelve hours the other day and talked with relatives of the Chacona family whom she never knew, as she has only recently come to this country.

This has set the Chaconas wild with excitement. The girl also talked in Greek. It is said to St. Peter, Christ and the Virgin Mary. Mr. Chacona, who is a Freemason and well known business man here, says he will have the messages translated and will publish all that is said and done. He is a confessor and has two stores near the Cornell campus which are liberally patronized by Cornell students. He is highly respected here.
