Three Hundred to One. While there was some difference of opinion in the House of Representatives as to the form which the Sulzer resolution should take, there was unanimity on the main proposition, namely the outrage of the discrimination against which this national protest is directed.

Making all allowances, however, the French experience is evidence of a screw loose in the educational system; a defect not peculiar to France or Great Britain, but to be found in the schools of the United States.

Tripoli and the "German Invasion." Several years ago, when the "German peril" agitation in Great Britain was at its height, the amusing declaration that a mightiest despot by German army corps upon British coasts was not only possible but imminent served a useful purpose in the campaign for a larger fleet and a better army than on foot in the British Isles.

Another Bunco Game? About everybody on salary or wages or of moderate means has been and is pinched sharply by the high cost of living. Our Democratic brethren or many of them are or were going to reduce or try to reduce the cost of living, save "the people's" money, shave the robber tariff.

those who are deficient in special classes. The results of an examination of fifty average recruits on matters of general information were published in L'Opinion, which states that they are a fair sample of what the officers find out.

About JOAN OF ARC 37 French soldiers know something, about HENRI IV, 26; about NAPOLEON I, 36; two answerers were "an emperor who reigned at Orleans," and "a Russian emperor." Thirty knew who VICTOR HUGO was. Advocates of la revanche will regret that only 38 knew what Alsace-Lorraine is and 39 what the war of 1870 was about; two men thought it was a war between France and England. The number of men who answered something correctly about BISMARK was 25, about MOROCCO 38, about England 25, about Paris 46. Only 40 French recruits could give the name of the President of the Republic, two answered "LOUBET" and "CASIMIR PERIER." The question "What is your country?" was answered correctly by 43, while 25 could not answer "What was the Great Revolution of 1789?" Only two, however, did not know what an aeroplane was.

The Spectator, rationally enough, does not try to draw any general conclusion from this experience and evidently believes that a similar examination of British recruits might have like results. We have known sceptical college professors who believed that a "general information" paper, containing only questions which the ordinary man would be ashamed to admit he could not answer, would floor a large proportion of their senior classes. The answering of simple questions even on familiar matters upsets a good many people, as census enumerators and election officials and others whose duty it is to have lists of questions made out can testify.

Making all allowances, however, the French experience is evidence of a screw loose in the educational system; a defect not peculiar to France or Great Britain, but to be found in the schools of the United States.

usually taught by Germany to bring to British shores peace and prosperity. The fanatic theories spun by the invasion school have been completely exposed after the most careful investigation first by the Unionist government under Mr. Balfour, then by the present government under Mr. Asquith, and now by the actual experience of war they are shown to have been idle inventions based upon ignorance of all the circumstances that govern one of the most difficult of all naval operations, invasion overseas.

American alarmists of the same "invasion school," who at intervals sight Japanese armadas upon the waters of the Pacific, will find reasons for optimism equally sound in their examination of the Italian experiment.

Wills Moore and the Weather. Chief Prophet WILLS L. MOORE of the Weather Bureau complains that "nobody ever thanks the weather man for fair weather." As he is paid to predict it, why should he be thanked? If he predicted a fair day, thanks would be due him; but he is merely a prophet and always without honor when his weather does not suit one of the sovereign people.

The Chief Prophet holds that 90 per cent. of his forecasts are right. There is not another human being in the United States who will believe this. The record may bear him out, but who has time to go over it, and who that has been disappointed or oppressed by the weather when it was not according to forecast would believe the record? The weather bureau ought to be right all the time to be appreciated, and that is impossible. Says the Chief Prophet, "Providence help the poor forecaster who predicts the wrong weather on a national holiday. He will never hear the end of it, especially if he goes wrong on Inauguration Day. He can never outlive the memory of his error." Certainly not, and the public approbrium is just. Mr. MOORE, as we remember, predicted an open, sunny, wholesome Inauguration Day, and it snowed, hailed, blew and was foul as a storm on the SIXTY. It was a poor guess. Any man with a memory of Inauguration Day weather would make snow and rain a fixture periodically.

Scientific Management. Its Trial at the Watertown Arsenal Does Not Impress Engineers Favorably. The interesting editorial article in THE SUN of December 12 on the trial of scientific management at the Watertown Arsenal and elsewhere due to the introduction of "scientific management" is based on data which are not generally accepted by the engineering profession. The committee on Public Buildings and Grounds by a vote of 14 to 3 has ordered the report of a public building bill in spite of the protest of Mr. UNDERWOOD of Alabama that an appropriation would mar the Democratic record of economy. Economy is all very well in its way as a profession, but the Democrats know that they are about nothing if the world is going to be run by a few men who are good in their own way as a new public building, and it is votes that are wanted.

In 1912 Bulgaria will ask the world to help celebrate the twenty-fifth anniversary of the accession of FERDINAND to the throne. He has proved himself an able, tactful ruler, and while he has made a place for himself among the sovereigns of Europe, he has also helped the little Balkan state to attain political independence of both Turkey and Russia.

The people have advanced in agriculture and small manufactures and have become enterprising, wide awake and desirous of progress. It is to show what they have done in the last quarter of a century as well as to see what the world is doing that they have set aside the months of June, July and August for an international exposition at Sofia. An international affair in the Balkans without a "war cloud" is rare enough to attract the attention of the world.

The Government of the new South African Union is following the lead of Australia and New Zealand in a scheme of national defence. The plan as outlined by the defence bill differs in some respects, however, from that of the two States mentioned. It is modelled after the Swiss system and proposes to train annually only the number of citizens reasonably required for defence.

The bill entirely excludes colored people from war service, except for money contributions. It provides for an active citizen force, composed of a permanent force and a coast and garrison force; a citizen force reserve and a national reserve. The active citizen force will consist of men between seventeen and twenty-five, the citizen reserve of men from twenty-one to forty-five, and the national reserve, which will be called upon only in the gravest emergency, will comprise all citizens from seventeen to sixty.

The active citizen force will number from 20,000 to 25,000 men. This force is liable to war service in any part of South Africa; but only the permanent force is liable to serve beyond the borders of the Union.

Work for a Christmas Tree. To THE EDITOR OF THE SUN:—I have very anxious to get in touch with a number of ladies here in Brooklyn, who have a few hours leisure each day, and will be willing to help personally to decorate a Christmas tree for the poor children of the city by collecting upon us a few dollars in this way. The work of getting ready the materials for the Christmas tree for the poor children of the city is a very interesting and a very noble one. We are looking for ladies who will be able to take part of all the deserving ones which we have called to my attention. We would also like to have the aid of an office or at their homes, secretarial work, dressing dolls, etc. In fact we can make good use of the spare hours of any person who can devote time to this noble work.
