

GAYNOR RAPS WILSON AND TAMMANY CHEERS

Much Applause and Signs of a Boom for Mayor at National Democratic Club Meet.

TALKS TRUSTS AND PRICES

Not Tariff but Gold's Overproduction Cause of the Prices That Prevail, He Thinks.

Mayor Gaynor's name was in no wise mentioned in connection with the White House at last night's session of the National Democratic Club...

The leaders of the Democratic League formed at Saratoga two years ago and now supposed to be for Judson Harmon...

Without mentioning his name the Mayor spoke his mind about the Governor of New Jersey and the diners clapped and cried "hooray" at every opportunity.

"Since the trusts can be abolished so easily," he said, "do you not think that they ought to be, or else those that fail even to try to repeal them should stop crying out against them at the top of their voices?"

Then the Mayor spoke of demagogues, whom he called the "most detestable of beasts." And in closing from his speech he observed that it was awfully hard to convince some of the "statesmen" who are now railing around that everybody knows the difference between a tariff and a tariff on anything.

All of its extremes should be cut out. Free trade is a long way off. We must have a tariff revenue and therefore an import tariff tax. But it should be so arranged as to produce no injustice or favoritism.

Let us then stand by the assertion of principle that we recognize no excuse for a protective tariff except to protect the American workingman from foreign competition...

The tariff, continued the Mayor, was only partly responsible for the raising of prices. In connection with the argument that the formation of the trusts and trusts had helped some of the Mayor reviewed the history of some of them, particularly those organized under the New Jersey statutes...

The principal cause of high prices, he held, was the increasing output of gold, the like of which he said the world had never seen before. He concluded: "The time may come when the present great output of gold will have reached its highest point, although some say that they say that the output of gold, according to the waters of the ocean, are so great that it is more likely that the time will come when gold will be so plentiful and therefore so cheap that it will be of no use at all."

David Belasco was one of the active buyers at the sale of antique and modern oriental art pottery, the property of Richard H. Halsted, which began yesterday afternoon at the American Art Galleries, Madison Square South...

Prices paid, experts said, were comparatively low. The highest was $10, paid by the buyer for an unnamed object for a bottle of glass with a handle that belonged to the Ch'ing-ching period (1726-51).

Mr. Kirby stated that it was from the Thomas J. Wagoner collection and that when that collection was put up at auction $25. The first to go over the twenty mark was an old Soto temple basin of a tripod. It was covered with a dull creamy white crackle and had an overglaze of pale coral. It sold for $1.

Mr. Kirby's first purchase was an old blue and white porcelain vase with a flaring neck, date 1800. He paid $4 for it. An old blue bowl with handle with an overglaze of rich green caught his eye. He bought it for $4. An old Kitten red tea box, lantern with flower panels and decorated with crabs and other designs in red and blue enamel, date 1800, went to Mr. Belasco for $7.

Notable among the larger canvases is a Ziem "The Grand Canal, Venice." Unlike Hassam is represented by a sunset view of the Manhattan skyline and J. Francis Murphy by an autumn scene. A. J. Casson's painting, "The Boat," and one of an Indian boy, entitled "Mending the War Bonnet," by E. Irving Crouse are included among the larger canvases.

Other notable paintings whose works are shown include Maitland Armstrong, Joseph Lauter, Arthur H. Willott, C. V. Marsh, "LAKE NEM" GOES TO CHICAGO.

The report that ex-Senator William A. Clark was the purchaser of the "Lake Nem" painting by Corot, which recently brought $50,000 at an auction sale at the Plaza was denied yesterday by an art expert.

LAWYER DISBARRED, BUT STARTS A UNIVERSITY

Armand Spenser Named as Head of "Columbian," Incorporated in New Jersey.

HEADQUARTERS ARE FOUND

Located in House of a Newark Jeweler's Assistant—He Tells How to Get Degrees.

Armand Spenser, a lawyer, who was disbarred a year ago, is at the head of a concern chartered this week in New Jersey under the name of Columbian University and the Faculty of American Dentistry which has among its objects the creation of colleges of medicine, dentistry, law, pharmacy, theology and the liberal, industrial and fine arts.

The present office of the "university" is in a three family house at 98 Elm street, Newark, which is the residence of Victor Mintz, who works for a Newark jewelry firm.

Mr. Mintz filed the articles of incorporation and the other incorporation papers to confer degrees and diploma after the completion of a postgraduate course prescribed by the "university," but the corporation agrees not to give degrees in medicine, dentistry and pharmacy until a special charter has been obtained from the State.

Mr. Mintz said yesterday that he doesn't know Frohlich and that the persons named besides himself and Spenser are only witnesses anyhow. Spenser is secretary of the "university," and Mintz is resident agent, he said.

Mr. Mintz, who was seen while he was at home for lunch yesterday, said that he and Spenser are now raising funds for the corporation to begin work soon, and he declared with some feeling that the Columbian University has not been created for the purpose of enriching the pockets of the incorporators through the sale of stock carrying with it degrees in the university.

Resident Agent Mintz, who said he had authority to speak for Spenser, announced that the latter is well qualified to take charge of the university, which is to be located in Newark.

Mr. Mintz said he was informed that the staff of instructors is being selected now, and that among the professors in the medical school will be Dr. Eugene A. Dupin of 1105 Fox street, the Bronx, and Dr. John Aron of 119 East 10th street.

Dr. Dupin, who has been on the hospital staff at St. Vincent's, said yesterday that he and Spenser, but didn't know he had been chosen for the medical school of the Columbian University.

Dr. Aron, who said he was graduating from the College of Physicians and Surgeons in 1912, has had no experience as a teacher, expects to be connected with the new institution.

The Faculty of American Dentistry really isn't a college at all, Mr. Mintz said, but is the name of a proposed publication which will be published in the next few months in all the States.

Spenser's defense was that the money was paid by his brother, who lived in Newark, but that he had the money and wrote afterward that the bill was still unpaid.

SEEKS EARLY ADJOURNMENT. Republican Leader Thinks Albany Session Will End by April.

ALBANY, Feb. 8. Adjournment by April is the plan of the Republican leaders in the Assembly.

Frank L. Young, the Republican floor leader, said today that few of the bills so far introduced were worthy of more than passing attention.

He said the primary bill embodying the amendment to the present law, making it applicable to spring primaries, would be acted upon and probably passed early next week.

Gov. Dix signed the bill of Assemblyman Murray providing that a corporation acquiring all the rights of any other corporation or corporations by merger may have the same name as the corporation or one of the corporations to whose assets it has succeeded.

He also signed the Whitney bill appropriating $17,000 for the expenses of the Legislature.

STATE COMMITTEE CALLED. Democrats Will Meet Monday to Arrange for Convention.

ALBANY, Feb. 8. John A. Following a conference with Mr. Osborn Gov. Dix said Mr. Osborn had not determined just what he would do, but the Governor hopes he will decide to accept.

Other important matters are to be gone over in connection with the new primary law for the election of delegates to both State and national conventions.

PLEGGED THE DANCERS AT SUFFRAGE BALL Hundreds Came to Waltz and Went Away Enrolled as Marchers in May Parade.

BEAUX ARTS SOIREE Architects Society Has a Costume Night With Songs and Dances.

from King Manuel of Portugal, in the disguise of Walter Greenley. These sang "Oh, You Great Big Beautiful Ball" until they were blue in the face and then "The Gros Lot" and "Willow" hiked off to Lisbon to settle the matter with Manuel in person.

Between times MM. Ware and Boyd danced as Mordkin and Loupoukova. It was good because every one loved it. The singing "Le Gros Lot" by a quartet made an immense hit too.

Before the show they all ate. It was a costume affair, with delegates from all parts of the world and from all the ages. Between courses they danced "those dances," at least some of them did, and the rest enjoyed it.

Some of those who forgot that there was such a thing as an architect were Ernest Flagg in Colonial attire, Whitney Warren in court regalia, Austin Lord as an Earl, and Robert every one he could find, who he said was "mercenary." Henry Hornbostel as Henry II. and H. Van Wageningen, Jr. in sackcloth. The Egyptian quans, the harem beauties and the Irish maidens were without number.

After the grand march there was general dancing, which lasted until this morning, and before it there were over 300 many delightful happenings.

Under a mainmast electric sign which blazed forth "Votes for Women" in letters two feet high, the Misses Fuller in frocks of the early 60's sang old English folk songs, the Misses Lewishin in top boots and knee skirts danced a Polish mazurka and Elizabeth took the bag with every one there to march in the parade and to join the union.

But the hit of the evening was made by Mrs. Osborn and Mr. Rector, who sang this up to date version of "Reuben and Cynthis":

Reuben, Reuben, I've been thinking What a fine world this would be If I could give us votes for women All across from sea to sea.

Rebel, stop that kind of talking. There is one thing, don't forget. What I want's a perfect lady. Not a headstrong suffragette.
