

URGES DISBARMENT OF ANDREW D. PARKER

Bar Association Criticizes the Report of Referee Geldersleeve.

THIS STANDARD TOO LOW

"Monstrous Rascality" One of the Accusations to Appellate Division.

The Bar Association of New York, which acted in 1910 for the disbarment of Andrew D. Parker, a Police Commissioner with Theodore Roosevelt in the Strong administration, on charges of deceit and malpractice, refuses to abide by the report in Parker's favor recently made to the Appellate Division by Referee Henry A. Geldersleeve. Through its attorney, Umar Christie, the association has asked the Appellate Division to reject the report and disbar Parker.

In its brief of opposing money to "throw a case of falsehood and of being an untrustworthy person to be a member of the bar of this State." It says, "There was a monstrous rascality," and ends its petition thus: "We are satisfied that if the court will, as we have done to unravel the tangle of this case and to extract the truth from the vast amount of evidence which Parker has inserted upon petition into this record, we will reach the same conclusion which has been so irresistibly forced upon us. It would be indeed a matter of great regret if this man should escape the punishment which he so richly deserves. Strong, vigorous, able and alert, as Parker is, he is sought with every means known to him and to his able counsel to so before the court in this case as to obscure the truth. His address, his professional skill, his plausibility have been his main aids in his rascality. They should not be the means of his escape from punishment."

Referee Geldersleeve's standard of professional ethics, the Bar Association says, "was not sufficiently high" when he exonerated Mr. Parker from all charges.

The disbarment proceedings were begun by the Bar Association on the complaint of Charles Jungman, a Bronx real estate man. Jungman said that he had paid Parker in 1901 to compel him to execute a contract to sell certain real estate in Prospect Avenue. In this action Jungman represented that a young lawyer, Max Montred, Jungman said that Montred arranged that Jungman should pay Parker $3,000. Parker then to permit Jungman to win the suit without real opposition. Parker, said Jungman, was to keep the $3,000 to indemnify himself against possible damages to one Mehan, who had contracted to buy the property from Jungman after Parker had decided not to complete the sale to Jungman.

Jungman says that after Parker got the $3,000 he broke his agreement and defended the suit so vigorously that he won. Then Jungman says he demanded his money back and Parker denied that he had ever got any money. Jungman asked Lawyer Montred about it and Montred finally got a receipt from Parker which said that for $3,000 Parker had agreed not to attack Jungman's character in the trial of the suit. Jungman later sued Parker for $3,000 and got a judgment of $1,000.

That this payment of $1,000 by Montred to Parker was made in cash without receipt or written memorandum at the time of payment is undisputed. The Bar Association brief. The Bar Association believes that the money was not to save Jungman from attack on his character, as Parker alleges. The brief says:

"We are convinced that the evidence establishes that the receipt is as Montred testified, a receipt for money and not evidence showing that the real agreement between Montred and Parker was that the cash was paid to Parker in consideration of his promise to let Jungman proceed with the specific performance action, that is, let Jungman win the suit."

Referee Geldersleeve held that the receipt meant just what it said. Even so, says the Bar Association, Parker should be disbarred. It says:

"If this is not blackmail it is a gross approximation. This court should not countenance any scheme by which attorneys may profit themselves by threatening attacks upon the character of witnesses and litigants."

The referee's decision reached the extraordinary conclusion that the phony receipt was true by refusing to believe the testimony of witnesses produced on behalf of the Bar Association. He then rendered Parker's version of the transaction as true.

Parker was removed from the Police Commissioner's office in 1907 by Mayor Strong after he had been accused of failure to attend board meetings and hear cases promptly. Gov. Black disapproved the Mayor's action and therefore Parker went to his job. Parker and Joseph P. Kamp were members of the police board. Kamp has been chairman of the Civil Service Board and an Assistant District Attorney.

CRUSADE ON LOAN SHARKS.

Forty or Fifty Subpoenas Out for Witnesses to Appear This Week.

A goodly number of subpoenas have been issued this week before Assistant District Attorney Lloyd F. Stryker and tell about his experiences with loan sharks. The subpoenas will be served in earnest tomorrow. The District Attorney's office has received a large number of letters in the last few days and many persons have called at the Criminal Courts Building in person to get subpoenas.

Some of the callers brought along copies of the agreement which they had been asked to sign by money lenders, in which, in addition to a confession of the receipt of money, contained a clause that the borrower was to pay the attorney's fee in the event of a trial. The attorney's fee was to be paid by the borrower's salary.

ASSAY OFFICE MODERNIZED.

Ready for All the Business That Comes—Other Plants Closed.

The United States Assay Office on Wall Street has established an elaborate electric plant for refining gold and is now prepared to do all the business that may be sent to it. The plant is said to be equal to any in the world and has a capacity of $100,000,000 a year.

It is expected that all the gold coming from Europe, Australia and Africa will be handled at the Wall Street office. The branch office in Philadelphia, however, Charlotte, N. C., and other cities have been closed.

GOING OVER?

GIFT TO GATTI-CASAZZA.

Stage Employees Present Opera House Director With Loving Cup.

After the performance of "Madame Butterfly" at the Metropolitan Opera House yesterday afternoon, Technical Director Edward Seidle invited Mr. Gatti-Casazza to the stage, where he found the small army of employees of the stage departments gathered about a silver loving cup which bore this inscription:

"Presented to Director Gattio Gatti-Casazza by the workmen of the stage departments of the Metropolitan Opera House, New York, 1912."

Addressing Mr. Gatti-Casazza, Mr. Seidle said: "The workmen of the stage departments are anxious to express to you through their admiration of your ability as manager and stage director. They offer this loving cup to you as a token of their appreciation of the many kindnesses you have shown them during the four seasons that you have ruled over them and sincerely hope and pray that the kind feeling which has existed in the past may be continued for many years to come."

ANGRY DEPOSITORS STORM CLOSED BANK

Report That All Would Get Money Back Nearly Causes Riot at New Berlin, N. Y.

UTICA, N. Y., April 13.—Investigation of the rumor that a plot existed to blow up the vaults of the First National Bank of New Berlin and thus destroy evidence of the shortage of $250,000 in the accounts of former cashier Frank T. Arnold fails to show any substantial basis for such a report. The statement by the Burns Detective Agency of New York that such a conspiracy had been uncovered is not borne out by developments to-day at New Berlin, and persons who are believed to be in close touch with the case following the exposure of Arnold's defalcation absolutely discredited the story.

Angry depositors of the wrecked bank at New Berlin threatened violence when the doors were opened to-day by Federal examiners to receive passbooks and deposit slips. Hundreds of people were on hand. The belief had prevailed that they were to get their money. When told otherwise they flocked into the building, and for a time it was feared violence would be done the men behind the counters. The crowd was finally dispersed.

Feeling against Frank T. Arnold, former cashier, became intense to-day when it was learned that two nights ago a large quantity of silverware was secretly taken from his home and shipped to Buffalo.

Townpeople who for years looked up to Arnold as the village leading citizen have shifted their opinions completely to-day. They expressed the belief that he is shamming illness and that the doctors and nurses are concealing his real condition. The belief that Arnold's condition was not nearly as serious as had been hinted by the doctors gained ground after a barber had been called in to shave Arnold yesterday afternoon. He declared, it is said, that Arnold was in fair shape and able to chat at great length.

The suspension of the bank has paralyzed business in the Utica Valley. Between twenty and thirty towns in Chautauque county had their deposits in the First National Bank at New Berlin. Those are tied up and the towns cannot procure their money. Two hundred school districts are affected and the teachers in them are without their pay. Many fraternal organizations are also affected and are unable to pay dues or death benefits.

The bank examiners to-night ordered the Arnold home guarded by the police. With the First National Bank closed there is a black-out in the Utica Valley and that reason the police force of the town has been tripled. Night patrols are kept on duty until the day force is on.

CARBOLIC ACID FOR TWO.

Wife Says Gelobter Prescribed It for Her; He Says She Gave It to Him.

Carbolic acid figured in a suit for separation against Max Gelobter, a boss painter, by Mrs. Estelle Gelobter, in which Supreme Court Justice Platzek yesterday directed the defendant to pay $7.50 a week alimony. Mrs. Gelobter said her husband advised her to get carbolic acid and kill herself, and on September 3 last when he gave her ten cents for that purpose she was so overawed that she tried to carry out his directions and was prevented from doing so by a neighbor. The defendant alleges that instead of trying to take the acid herself she put it in his food, and he detected it in time and his wife made two other attempts to take his life, on one occasion opening two gas cans while he was asleep. He avoide in time to save himself, he said.

HARBURGER'S HANDS FULL OF ELEPHANTS

He Obliges a Lady by Attaching All the Circus Animals.

HYENA BITES A DEPUTY

Show Goes Right Along, for All It Has to Do Is to File a Bond.

Four deputy sheriffs and eight keepers from the office of Sheriff Harburger took possession late on Friday night of the Barnum & Bailey menagerie in Madison Square Garden to oblige a lady with a damage suit and will remain on the job to see that no one walks off with any of the elephants and other attached property until to-morrow morning. Then if a bond is not filed by the circus management Sheriff Harburger will direct his men to march the animals out of the Garden to the storage stable for attached animals in East Twenty-eighth street. It is surmised that a bond will be filed.

The animals under attachment include twenty elephants, twenty camels, four zebras, five sacred cows, three giraffes, a collection of monkeys and a few wombats, hartebeests and other animals. The Sheriff acknowledged yesterday that the storage stable has never accommodated such a group of distinguished guests before and will not even afford room for the elephants. For this reason the Sheriff really hopes the bond will be filed.

The Sheriff seized the menagerie under an order of attachment granted by Supreme Court Justice Platzek in a suit against Al. Alf, Charles and John Ringling, owners of the circus, for $25,000 damages. The suit was brought by Miss Florence Kennard, who said she was thrown from a horse in the arena while the circus was exhibiting at Cleveland, Ohio, May 20, 1911, and that before she could recover herself another equestrian act was admitted into the arena and one of the passing horses stepped on her arm. It was injured so seriously that it had to be amputated.

Miss Kennard asked for the attachment on the ground that the Ringlings live in Baraboo, Wis., and are continually on the move from one State to another, so that unless the circus leaves some security in this State an attachment should obtain will be worthless. The attachment calls for a bond of $50,000 or twice the amount named in the suit.

When the attachment was delivered to the Sheriff by Miss Kennard's attorneys the Sheriff called a conference of the deputies as to the particular part of the circus property to be attached. One of the deputies suggested that they attach the elephants, while another thought they could attach the horses. The Sheriff then decided to attach the menagerie, which would cause less trouble than any other part of the circus property. Deputies Winters, Gilmore, Metzger and Donahue then swept out of the Garden with eight keepers. It had been arranged that one deputy and two keepers should work in six hour shifts.

As soon as the attachment was served and the deputies took possession, the circus management sent word to Chicago to John Kelly, general attorney for the Ringlings, to hurry on here at once. Mr. Kelly sent a message back that he was on the way and would arrange to file a bond to-morrow morning.

The press department of the circus, which is usually alert, insisted yesterday that if something must be printed about the attachment on the menagerie, it be made clear that the Sheriff has not taken off any of the animals. A veteran circus man shuddered when they heard the word "attachment" mentioned, but as Dexter Fellows explained, in these enlightened days an attachment doesn't bother a circus as much as it used to, when a person with half an excuse could tie up even the greatest show on earth in a one-night stand somewhere until the circus met his demands. In the days a surety company bond can always be furnished as quickly as may be necessary.

Mr. Fellows said that Miss Kennard was riding in the flat races when she fell off, and that her injuries were not so serious at the time as to prevent her from finishing the season. It was after the circus closed that she had her arm amputated.

Deputy Sheriff Metzger reported that when he was passing one of the animals in the dark basement of the Garden the animal bit him on the hand. It looked to him like an elephant's bite, but the Sheriff thought that was scarcely possible. He instituted an investigation and found that Metzger was bitten by the laughing hyena. If the hyena continues to bite deputies the extra special $10,000 deputies may be called out.
