

MAJOR BUTT'S OFFICE HAS BEEN ABOLISHED

President's Personal Aid Lost on Titanic Had Place Peculiarly His Own.

DIFFERENT DUTIES NOW

New Appointee Will Not Be Intimate Personal Friend, as Was His Predecessor.

WASHINGTON, May 4. WHEN Major Archibald de Graffenhord Clevering Butt, U. S. A., known to the nation as Archie Butt, went down with the Titanic the office of personal aid to the President expired.

This is because, though there have been aids and aids in the history of the White House, there has been only one personal aid to Presidents. The place was created by Major Butt during the last year of the Roosevelt administration, and grew in popularity and importance under the Taft administration, until it came to be looked upon as one of the most desirable in public life at the capital.

The organization of the President's staff provides for nine aids besides the chief White House aid. The list is headed by the senior military aid and superintendent of public buildings and grounds, who is at present Col. Spencer R. Crosby.

Major Butt brought to the discharge of his duties a simple and genuine democracy that endeared him to hosts of people in every rank and walk of life. His position was one of national prominence and in a less democratic country would have been held by a man of high rank in the army or navy.

Major Butt never had West Point training, but rose from the ranks. When a young man he came to Washington as correspondent for a syndicate of Southern papers. It was as a newspaper man that he accompanied Gen. Matt Ransom to Mexico when the latter was appointed Ambassador to that country.

WHEN DEALER DOES NOT DECLARE SPADES

Situations at Bridge Which Require Very Careful Handling.

TWO SURE TRICKS NEEDED

Rules for the Third Player to Observe Under the New Count.

If we pass from the dealer's side of the table to his partner's we shall find that the new count completely changes the scheme upon which the third hand's declarations are based.

While the same conditions exist for any position at the table when a player is called upon to bid after his partner has been heard from it will simplify matters if we confine our attention to the third hand first, because his partner has always declared himself, and these original calls by the dealer are, or should be, among good players, absolutely reliable.

According to the principles already laid down on a basis if the dealer declares one trick in any suit other than spades he should have at least two sure tricks in that suit, or tricks enough outside to make up for whatever is lacking in the suit itself.

This is not an arbitrary rule, because, as already pointed out, any player is at liberty to declare on less or to refuse to declare on so little. But the point for the good player to remember is that if he changes the unit of measurement by which his declarations are to be sized up he must change the unit of measurement by which he estimates the value of his partner's answer.

The greatest danger in the declarations of the third hand lies in the foundations upon which they are built. There is nothing that will so rapidly and surely discourage a player who is conscientiously trying to acquire a sound style as to find the bottom continually falling out of his game, because it is standing upon a declaration by the dealer which is not sound.

Among the most common of the dealer's faults there are two that stand out conspicuously from the rest. The first is an original call of a suit that does not contain the necessary winning cards to justify it.

There is an example which recently came under the writer's notice that shows almost completely the dealer may sometimes lead his partner astray in calling one of these near no-trumpers, when he has a legitimate call in a suit. As all suits have a chance for the game under the new count, the error is less excusable than it was at auction.

THE OLD TIME HOSTESS

Misses of Ceremonies and Carver - Announced Congress at Dinner

From the London Chronicle. In the old days, when the etiquette at the table on recalls that played by the lady of the household.

She was also the menu, for if she gave a dinner of several courses it was her duty to announce to the guests, seated expectantly, what was due to appear at table.

Then her power was generally confined to a guest when he had stumped sufficiently placed the handles of his knife and fork into his plate, and the sight of a knife in position was the signal for the hostess to inquire if he would please to have something more.

Had Z bid a diamond, Y would have at once overcalled with one royal, and they would have made five by cards to a certainty, unless B held one or two aces at the start, because if B leads a heart, Y will get two rounds of trumps and then lead hearts, getting a diamond discard on

THE CHESS BOARD; GAMES AND PROBLEMS

Holland Beats Great Britain in a Grand Team Match at London.

NOW FOR DECORATION DAY

Annual Encounter Between Manhattan and Franklin Chess Clubs.

The double round match between picked teams, eight a side, of Holland and Great Britain, under the auspices of the Imperial Chess Club, says the London Field, "was played at the Curzon Hotel on April 19 and 20, Friday's play, the home team having had the first move, resulted in their favor by five games to three; but on Saturday, the Dutchmen having the first move, scored six games to two, turning defeat into victory.
