

MISS ANDERSON WILL LEAVE THE CARNEGIES

Head Household for 25 Years and Now She's Going Back to Edinburgh.

A PARTY IN HER HONOR And Gifts, Including $500, Which She Will Receive Each Year Hereafter.

There was a great deal of quizzing and teasing and bustling about in the New York home of Andrew Carnegie at Fifth Avenue and Ninety-first street yesterday, and one poked his way carefully over the polished floors until he came to a modest little woman who was telling the others what to do and doing a good bit of it herself. There was giggling and smiles when the same little woman got all flustered up over the prospect of talking about herself and telling just what had been done to make her happy her last few days in the Carnegie home.

She is Miss Margaret Anderson and she is the servant of Mr. Carnegie leave in the Cameronia for Scotland tomorrow. Miss Anderson will not be with them for the first time in twenty-five years. She has left the service of the Laird of Salisburgh, having in her long years with the family acquired a competence and something more, so she is going back to her native Edinburgh to open a public house and there spend the rest of her days. So there will be another head household at Skibo this summer.

It will be twenty-five years on June 9 that Miss Anderson left her home in Edinburgh and went up to Kilgraston House in Perthshire to enter the service of Mr. Carnegie. In the following October she came to America with the family and was installed as head household at the home on West Fifty-first street. When the Fifth Avenue mansion was taken, Miss Anderson retained her place and there isn't an employe about the place that doesn't swear she is the best ever, although, being Scotch, they express it somewhat differently.

Therefore there was sorrow among them when she announced that she was going. She thought it would be fine to go back to Edinburgh and open her modest place. But before doing that she is going to visit her brother James, and a married sister who live in San Francisco. When Mr. Carnegie heard of it he immediately presented her with a return trip ticket. The servants made such arrangements to give her such a party as she would long remember and before the Laird and his family left they said it off.

Chalmers Murray and George E. Hall got their tidbits and praised until their fingers were tired, all that they had to say. The party was a very good one. Then they got together over the servants' hall and the big place and the servants' hall was turned into a place of festivity. A table was set up and the table was set with a tablecloth of white and gold. The table was set with a tablecloth of white and gold. The table was set with a tablecloth of white and gold.

Miss Anderson's party was a very good one. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous.

She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous.

She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous.

She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous.

She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous.

She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous.

She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous. She was very kind and she was very generous.

DURSTON—FRANCIS.

Daughter of the Late Ambassador Francis Married at Troy.

Troy, May 23.—Miss Harriet Francis, daughter of the late Charles S. Francis, who was Ambassador to Austria-Hungary in President Roosevelt's second administration and who owned the Troy Times, was married here today at her home, 101 Second street, to Mr. Charles H. Durston of Syracuse. The wedding was held on the thirtieth anniversary of the marriage of Miss Francis's parents.

The Rev. H. E. Fruman, rector of St. John's Episcopal Church, officiated. The drawing room, in which a chancel had been improvised, was decorated with lilies of the valley and apple blossoms. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Eugene Warren of Troy, matron of honor, and Miss Margaret Francis, bridesmaid. The flower bearers were the bride's nephew and niece, John M. Francis, Jr., and Josephine Lovell Francis. The bridegroom's attendant was his brother, Howlett Durston of Syracuse.

Miss Francis wore white chiffon with pearl trimming and a white satin train ornamented with lace that had been in her family for generations. The matron of honor and the bridesmaid wore white chiffon and white tulle hats. The flower bearers wore in white. The bride carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids and her attendants carried baskets of white panies. The boy choir of St. John's Church sang. Before the ceremony the organ played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." While the service was being read the music was "Meditation" from "Thais," and Mendelssohn's wedding march was used after the ceremony. Only the relatives and a few friends were present. Mr. and Mrs. Durston will live at 512 James street, Syracuse.

Wadsworth—Tweed.

Miss Helen Tweed, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Tweed and granddaughter of the late William H. Everts, was married to William Wadsworth, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. Wadsworth, in the Church of the Incarnation at a locked yesterday afternoon, the Rev. Howard C. Robbins, rector of the church, officiating. Only members of the immediate families and a few intimate friends witnessed the ceremony. The church was decorated with palms and bushes of pink rambler roses.

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her away. She wore a gown of old fashioned embroidered crepe silk, also a veil of tulle held by a wreath of orange blossoms, and she carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The Misses Katharine and Mary Tweed, sisters of the bride, were the bridesmaids. They wore gowns of pale blue satin veiled with pink marquisette and finished with wide blue satin girlandes. They wore white leghorn hats faced with black velvet and trimmed with pale blue feathers and pink roses. They carried bouquets of Dorothy Perkins roses and forget-me-nots.

Dr. Augustus Wadsworth was his brother's best man. The flower bearers were Harrison Tweed, brother of the bride, William Hamilton Gibson, William Wadsworth and Joseph T. Wadsworth, cousins of the bridegroom. After the ceremony there was a small reception at the home of the bride's parents, 12 East Thirty-sixth street. Among the guests were:

- The Hon. and Mrs. Joseph H. Choate, Miss Sarah P. Everts, William Worthen Appleton, Mr. and Mrs. Sherman, The Misses Margaret and Miss Elizabeth Everts, Mr. and Mrs. Maxwell, Miss Elizabeth Dodge, The Misses Margaret, Mr. and Mrs. Francis B. M. and Mrs. Charles D. Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. William Hamilton Gibson, Miss Anna Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. William A. Booth, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph P. Lloyd, Mr. and Mrs. L. Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Perkins, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Vesey, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Merritt, Miss Jean Deano.

Mr. and Mrs. Wadsworth left afterward on their wedding trip. They will live in this city.

VICTORY EXPECTED BY PRINCESS ROSPIGLIOSI

She Believes Church, After 12 Years, Will Recognize Her Marriage.

HERE FOR A FEW DAYS Story of Her Long Struggle to Secure Ecclesiastical Vindication.

The Princess Rospiogliosi, formerly Mrs. Marie Reid Parkhurst of Bangor, Me., whose effort to have the Roman Catholic Church recognize the validity of her marriage to the head of one of the most distinguished families of Italy has absorbed interest for twelve years, is at the Ritz-Carlton. She has been in this country since January assisting in the settling of the estate of her mother and returns to Rome in a short time to win a decisive victory in her long fight.

The Princess was born Marie Jennings Reid, daughter of Samuel C. Reid of Washington. At the age of 21 she was married to Col. Frederick H. Parkhurst of Bangor, Me., a legislator and an aide on the Governor's staff and prominent citizen generally. Miss Reid was Catholic and her husband a Protestant, so that it was necessary to obtain a dispensation, which was done by Mgr. Charles, then of Washington but now Archbishop of New Orleans. The marriage was not happy and in a few years a divorce was obtained.

Mrs. Parkhurst met Prince Rospiogliosi at Bar Harbor in 1899 and the Prince, then about 51 years old and regarded as a confirmed bachelor, fell in love with her. He was visiting this country and not as a fortune hunter. He is wealthy, his family dates uninterruptedly back to the first part of the fourteenth century and from it have come a Pope, many cardinals, soldiers and diplomats. The Prince and Mrs. Parkhurst were married at Lamorrechio, near Florence, September 2, 1901, and trouble began almost immediately.

Insisting as the Prince had remained a bachelor for half a century certain relatives, nephews, cousins and the like, rather traded on the hope they would some day inherit his fortune. Prince Camillo Rospiogliosi, brother of the bridegroom, was commander of the Vatican Guard; other relatives held high positions about the Vatican and the family generally had great influence in the church. The upshot of the marriage was the excommunication of both the Prince and the Princess because of the marriage of a divorcee without having had the first marriage annulled. The fight was begun immediately to have the decree of excommunication rescinded and the Parkhurst marriage declared void. The reasons advanced for this were highly technical in ecclesiastical law, but it speedily divided Rome into two factions. The case seemed to hinge on whether Col. Parkhurst had been baptized, it being a rule of the church that a man who remains unbaptized is void from the beginning and without a special dispensation to that effect.

The Princess yesterday declared that she had every reason to hope that a decision in her favor would be given very soon. "Really the case has never been decided against us," she said. "The decision has simply been withheld. I have already secured ample evidence which leads me to hope that my marriage to Col. Parkhurst will be declared null and void and my marriage with Prince Rospiogliosi recognized. When the case was presented to the Cardinals they voted eight to five in my favor and this report was presented to Pope Pius, who held up the decision.

In the meantime it is not true that I am excluded from all church society. The Cardinals Martinielli and Vannutelli are frequent visitors to our home. The trouble seems to be that some persons are much put out by the marriage and the further fact that we have now a beautiful little son and daughter who will live after us and inherit the estates."

The Princess will be in New York a few days and will then sail for Rome.

Major John F. Trout. Major John F. Trout died yesterday at his home, 277 York street, Jersey City, at the age of 62. Men's Summer Clothes at Wanamaker's

Forty-seven mammoth crystal cases filled with summer suits—every one proof positive that American tailors are second to none. $16.50 to $40. English styles, correctly interpreted; here, not because they are English, but because they are the thing, because men like them, want them, find them comfortable. All-wool cloths and know-how tailoring back up these styles. Cloth and tailoring never had a more severe test. No padding, no hair cloth, and practically no looseness to obscure faulty lines or bolster up careless work. Wanamaker tailors welcomed the test and have come through with flying colors. Please yourself on fabrics this season. Hairline stripes are still with us—too good to lose. With them pencil stripes—both in worsteds and the soft summer flannels. Soft grays in half a dozen tones of intensity, plain and fancy blues, and browns galore shading off into cool tans. Blue, of course, plain and fancy, including several grades of Wanamaker true blue, never-shrink serge. A feature—blue serge suits of conservative model, full silk lined, with silk sleeves and silk waistcoat back—at $26.50. Summer suit prices are $16.50 to $40. No one can give more at these prices or any in between. No one can give more service and style at any price than we give you at $40.

Advertisement for Men's Summer Suits at $21.50, fit for $25, $28 and $30 cabinets. Made for us, in our way, by one of our regular tailors, who found that continued cool weather had killed expected second orders and threatened to leave him with a large stock of fine Summer woollens on his hands at a time when he should be free to take up fall work. Worsteds and cassimeres, plain grays, pencil and hairline stripes in blue, gray and brown. Gray and fancy blue serges. Half and full-lined, two and three-button coats. All sizes—regular, long, short and stout—from 34 to 46. Burlington Arcade floor, New Bldg.
