

THE MIDDY CURE FOR TUBERCULOSIS

Midwinter Sun Does Scalpel's Work in the Mountains of Switzerland.

MANY CHILDREN SAVED

They Lie in the Frosty Air Without Clothes and Receive Their Lessons.

By exposing children without clothes to the sun's rays in midwinter at an altitude of 5,000 feet...

She pictures the mountains on a cloudless January morning with spotless sparkling snow...

My first visit to the children is an event they all seem to regard as a holiday...

I had planned to arrive before 10 o'clock to see the students of the children from the ward...

When I was taken by the matron out to the first gallery my surprise knew no bounds...

The children, those who are well enough to have morning lessons...

These morning lessons, as the doctor has termed them, are held in the open air...

At the head of the beds stands the teacher, as there it is impossible for the shadow of her body to interfere with the action of the sun's rays.

"I think I can safely say," the writer says, "that few people have seen classes of sick children doing their lessons perfectly naked in midwinter out of doors...

Signaling in distress covers the forms that attack the joints and bones, which when treated with the knife are likely to leave patients seared or crippled...

This new method consists in exposing the body of the patient to the sun's rays in open galleries communicating with the ward and facing the south.

The sun's rays are allowed to penetrate only to begin with, as these must be directed in a gradual way to the patient's feet...

At the end of each hour, or ten days, for each case, individual attention is given to the patient's condition...

Where an apparatus cannot be dispensed with an opening as large as possible is made at the seat of the disease...

In all the surgical wards at Leysin the knife is held in far greater aversion than any apparatus," the writer says.

The ultimate results obtained in the different forms of surgical tuberculosis are as follows...

It is in the surgical wards at Leysin the knife is held in far greater aversion than any apparatus," the writer says.

BARR ESTATE $1,500,322

It Increased Nearly $500,000 Since Will Was Filled in 1909.

The sum of $45,126.11 is to be distributed among the heirs of the estate of Thomas C. Barr of Orange, who died on March 9, 1908.

The executors, commissions and counsel fees are to be deducted from the amount.

When his will was filed for probate in March, 1909, the inventory placed an appraised value on the estate of $1,000,226.85.

The receipts and interest increased this amount up to last February to $1,500,322.30, while the disbursements during the four years amounted to $65,195.87.

By the terms of the will Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, receives the income from one-half the entire estate...

The court allowed Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, to receive the income from one-half the entire estate...

By the terms of the will Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, receives the income from one-half the entire estate...

The court allowed Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, to receive the income from one-half the entire estate...

By the terms of the will Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, receives the income from one-half the entire estate...

The court allowed Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, to receive the income from one-half the entire estate...

By the terms of the will Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, receives the income from one-half the entire estate...

The court allowed Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, to receive the income from one-half the entire estate...

By the terms of the will Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, receives the income from one-half the entire estate...

The court allowed Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, to receive the income from one-half the entire estate...

By the terms of the will Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, receives the income from one-half the entire estate...

The court allowed Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, to receive the income from one-half the entire estate...

By the terms of the will Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, receives the income from one-half the entire estate...

The court allowed Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, to receive the income from one-half the entire estate...

By the terms of the will Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, receives the income from one-half the entire estate...

The court allowed Mrs. Barr and Edwin Barr, widow of the testator, to receive the income from one-half the entire estate...

STICK TO YOUR TONSILS. INCISITS THIS DOCTOR

He Says the Wholesale Destruction of Those Organs Has Wrought Many Woes.

DOESN'T KNOW THEIR USE

But Just the Same They Are of Great Value and Should Not Be Sacrificed.

Removal of tonsils, which has been a favorite practice among surgeons for many years...

Dr. Mackenzie says that he has not always been the defender of the tonsil. From early in his career he has been a fallen by the way.

He goes on to remark that there is a host of conditions which warrant the more or less complete destruction of the tonsil.

"My contention is simply this," he adds, "that in selecting our cases for operation we should be guided by a sane and safe conservatism and common sense and not be carried away by those who by their precedent are example are fast bringing our specialty into disrepute in the eyes of thoughtful and honorable men."

He says that some doctors appear to have more interest in tonsil removal than the fees which accrue from the operation.

Dr. Mackenzie says that he has not always been the defender of the tonsil. From early in his career he has been a fallen by the way.

He says that some doctors appear to have more interest in tonsil removal than the fees which accrue from the operation.

Dr. Mackenzie says that he has not always been the defender of the tonsil. From early in his career he has been a fallen by the way.

He says that some doctors appear to have more interest in tonsil removal than the fees which accrue from the operation.

Dr. Mackenzie says that he has not always been the defender of the tonsil. From early in his career he has been a fallen by the way.

He says that some doctors appear to have more interest in tonsil removal than the fees which accrue from the operation.

Dr. Mackenzie says that he has not always been the defender of the tonsil. From early in his career he has been a fallen by the way.

He says that some doctors appear to have more interest in tonsil removal than the fees which accrue from the operation.

Dr. Mackenzie says that he has not always been the defender of the tonsil. From early in his career he has been a fallen by the way.

He says that some doctors appear to have more interest in tonsil removal than the fees which accrue from the operation.

Dr. Mackenzie says that he has not always been the defender of the tonsil. From early in his career he has been a fallen by the way.

He says that some doctors appear to have more interest in tonsil removal than the fees which accrue from the operation.

Dr. Mackenzie says that he has not always been the defender of the tonsil. From early in his career he has been a fallen by the way.

He says that some doctors appear to have more interest in tonsil removal than the fees which accrue from the operation.

Dr. Mackenzie says that he has not always been the defender of the tonsil. From early in his career he has been a fallen by the way.

INVENTOR ACCUSED OF FRAUD.

Head of $1,000,000 Concern Is Arrested in Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, June 8.—Alfred L. Ruthven, inventor and former president of the Ruthven Railway Signal Company, was arrested at the Gibson House today by Deputy United States Marshal Edward McGuire and Post Office Inspector Morgan Griswold.

The indictment on which Ruthven was arrested was found by the Federal grand jury at New Orleans on information of Leon Zinsler of Lockport, La.

The signal company is capitalized at $1,000,000 and was chartered under the laws of Arizona. Fifty-one per cent of the stock was given to Ruthven for the patents owned by him, and the remainder of the stock went to the treasury to be sold for promoting the company.

The indictment charges that in advertising the "train stopping" device used by Ruthven by Congress, which was untrue, Ruthven denied the charge.

Ruthven was charged with a meeting of the local stockholders of the company at the Grand Hotel, and it was somewhat heated. It was charged that he had had $200,000 of the company's treasury stock and that Ruthven had used the stock selling campaign to sell his own holdings in preference to that of the company.

Ruthven's bond was fixed at $500 by United States Commissioner Adler and June 12 set as the date for a preliminary hearing. He failed to give bond and was locked up in the county jail.

PRINCETON GRADS PARADE.

President Hibben and Gov. Wilson Arm in Arm One of the Sights.

PRINCETON, N. J., June 8.—Woodrow Wilson, Governor of New Jersey and a former president of Princeton, and President Hibben marched arm in arm in a parade of alumni around Osborn Field today.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

The parade was one of the most elaborate ever held in Princeton. It was held in the city of Princeton, N. J., on the occasion of the graduation of the class of 1912.

CASHIER'S ACCOUNTS TO BE INVESTIGATED

Had Charge of Funds of Water Department in Newark Board of Works.

ADMITS CHECK KITING

Accountants Will Begin Tomorrow Going Over Northrup's Books.

A corps of expert accountants will begin adding tomorrow the books of the water department of the Newark Board of Works, which were kept by Henry D. Northrup, the cashier.

The couple were married in 1901, and Mrs. Primrose says that while she was always conducted herself as a dutiful wife her husband "has been wilfully and continually absent from the plaintiff from November, 1911, to the present time without any cause or justification and with intent not to return."

Mrs. Primrose alleges that her husband has treated her cruelly and that since 1907 has been a habitual drunkard and has repeatedly committed acts of cruelty upon the plaintiff and more particularly as follows:

On or about the month of June, 1910, defendant, without any provocation, took hold of plaintiff and violently threw her against the room door of the house situated at 107 West 12th street, Newark, N. J., and she has been in the habit of applying abusive epithets to her and of slandering her in the presence of her neighbors, friends and others.

The couple have no children, and Mrs. Primrose asks that she have a liberal allowance of alimony for her own support and maintenance of $300.00 per month and an income of $300.00 per year, she says.

The water department cashier also said that he deposited $25.71 to his own account and fifteen days later transferred it to the trust fund in the same banking institution. He explained that this was due to an error on the part of the bank.

He admitted that there might be other cases where deposits had been credited to his own account when they should have been made to the trust fund account. He said that all of them had been corrected.

The check kiting was done with the trust fund account that was on deposit in the Second National Bank of Orange. The experts were making the investigation.

Central Park has a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species. There have been many calls for the animals.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

SUES GEORGE PRIMROSE AGAIN.

Wife of the Minstrel Begins a New Action for Separation.

Following the reconciliation of George H. Primrose, the minstrel, and his young wife, Mrs. Esther Norway Primrose, a few months ago after Mrs. Primrose had brought suit for separation and her husband had sued in Oregon for a divorce on the ground of abandonment, they have separated again.

Mrs. Primrose, who lives at Primrose Hall, one of the finest residences in Mount Vernon, alleges that her husband had contributed nothing to her support for more than two years and that the Mount Vernon property is under foreclosure proceedings for the non-payment of taxes. She says she has also been obliged to sue her husband to recover $18,000 as the amount of mortgages he has placed on the property, although he knew the property was to be hers free of encumbrances.

The couple were married in 1901, and Mrs. Primrose says that while she was always conducted herself as a dutiful wife her husband "has been wilfully and continually absent from the plaintiff from November, 1911, to the present time without any cause or justification and with intent not to return."

Mrs. Primrose alleges that her husband has treated her cruelly and that since 1907 has been a habitual drunkard and has repeatedly committed acts of cruelty upon the plaintiff and more particularly as follows:

On or about the month of June, 1910, defendant, without any provocation, took hold of plaintiff and violently threw her against the room door of the house situated at 107 West 12th street, Newark, N. J., and she has been in the habit of applying abusive epithets to her and of slandering her in the presence of her neighbors, friends and others.

The couple have no children, and Mrs. Primrose asks that she have a liberal allowance of alimony for her own support and maintenance of $300.00 per month and an income of $300.00 per year, she says.

BUFFALO IN DEMAND.

Central Park Herd Attracts Attention Throughout Country.

The many inquiries made at the Central Park menagerie as to the chances of buying some of the buffalo there convince the menagerie authorities that there is a growing interest in the breeding of the American bison, whose extinction was predicted ten years ago.

Many animal men believe that it is still possible to restock the country with herds of many thousands of the animals. Central Park has a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

The menagerie is compelled to dispose of some of the herd now and then, as the accommodations are restricted. There are seven now in the paddock, and inquiries were made yesterday as to whether any of the buffalo were to be put up at the sale of surplus animals to be held here Friday. But none of the herd will be sold.

Lloyd Taylor, who owns a tract of 500 acres of woodland and pasture in Orange county, approaches Head Keeper Snyder (Central Park) with a small herd and that has increased so rapidly that it has drawn the attention of men interested in the species.

MINISTER ACCUSED OF FATHER-IN-LAW'S DEATH

Maine Pastor Arrested on Charge of Shooting Farmer and Hiding Body.

SON OF VICTIM ONCE HELD

Writing in Note, Which Freed Former Suspect, Now Points to Clergyman.

NEW SWEDEN, Me., June 8.—The Rev. Charles Emelius, a Lutheran minister, was arrested here today on the charge of murdering August Jacobson on June 12, 1911. The authorities at the time pronounced Jacobson's death a case of suicide, but representatives of the Attorney-General's office maintained had been murdered.

The Rev. Mr. Emelius was taken by train to Presque Isle and witnesses accompanied the officers. Among them was Edgar Jacobson, son of the dead man, who was arrested in April last charged with having murdered his father, but was discharged after the Grand Jury had returned a "no bill" in his case.

The prisoner, who is about 30 years of age, came to New Sweden a year and a half ago and assumed the pastorate of the Lutheran Church. Soon after Jacobson's death he moved to the neighboring town of Stockholm. Last fall he was married to Jacobson's daughter.

August Jacobson was a prosperous farmer of New Sweden, which was founded by colonists from Sweden in 1820. He was found dead in a clump of trees on his farm. There were four bullet wounds in his body and beside it was a rifle. Near by was a fishing rod, to which was attached a note in Swedish saying he had committed suicide.

The case was investigated by the attorney-general's office and the direction of Attorney-General Pattangall expressed the opinion that the man could not have committed suicide. The case was then referred to the attorney-general's office for a hearing. It is understood that his report led to the arrest of Mr. Emelius. One of the reasons for the failure of the Grand Jury to indict Jacobson's son was said to have been the discovery that he could not write Swedish.

Presque Isle, Me., June 8.—The Rev. Charles Emelius was arraigned here today on the charge of murdering August Jacobson on June 12, 1911. The authorities at the time pronounced Jacobson's death a case of suicide, but representatives of the Attorney-General's office maintained had been murdered.

The Rev. Mr. Emelius was taken by train to Presque Isle and witnesses accompanied the officers. Among them was Edgar Jacobson, son of the dead man, who was arrested in April last charged with having murdered his father, but was discharged after the Grand Jury had returned a "no bill" in his case.

The prisoner, who is about 30 years of age, came to New Sweden a year and a half ago and assumed the pastorate of the Lutheran Church. Soon after Jacobson's death he moved to the neighboring town of Stockholm. Last fall he was married to Jacobson's daughter.

August Jacobson was a prosperous farmer of New Sweden, which was founded by colonists from Sweden in 1820. He was found dead in a clump of trees on his farm. There were four bullet wounds in his body and beside it was a rifle. Near by was a fishing rod, to which was attached a note in Swedish saying he had committed suicide.

The case was investigated by the attorney-general's office and the direction of Attorney-General Pattangall expressed the opinion that the man could not have committed suicide. The case was then referred to the attorney-general's office for a hearing. It is understood that his report led to the arrest of Mr. Emelius. One of the reasons for the failure of the Grand Jury to indict Jacobson's son was said to have been the discovery that he could not write Swedish.

Presque Isle, Me., June 8.—The Rev. Charles Emelius was arraigned here today on the charge of murdering August Jacobson on June 12, 1911. The authorities at the time pronounced Jacobson's death a case of suicide, but representatives of the Attorney-General's office maintained had been murdered.

The Rev. Mr. Emelius was taken by train to Presque Isle and witnesses accompanied the officers. Among them was Edgar Jacobson, son of the dead man, who was arrested in April last charged with having murdered his father, but was discharged after the Grand Jury had returned a "no bill" in his case.

The prisoner, who is about 30 years of age, came to New Sweden a year and a half ago and assumed the pastorate of the Lutheran Church. Soon after Jacobson's death he moved to the neighboring town of Stockholm. Last fall he was married to Jacobson's daughter.

August Jacobson was a prosperous farmer of New Sweden, which was founded by colonists from Sweden in 1820. He was found dead in a clump of trees on his farm. There were four bullet wounds in his body and beside it was a rifle. Near by was a fishing rod, to which was attached a note in Swedish saying he had committed suicide.

The case was investigated by the attorney-general's office and the direction of Attorney-General Pattangall expressed the opinion that the man could not have committed suicide. The case was then referred to the attorney-general's office for a hearing. It is understood that his report led to the arrest of Mr. Emelius. One of the reasons for the failure of the Grand Jury to indict Jacobson's son was said to have been the discovery that he could not write Swedish.

Presque Isle, Me., June 8.—The Rev. Charles Emelius was arraigned here today on the charge of murdering August Jacobson on June 12, 1911. The authorities at the time pronounced Jacobson's death a case of suicide, but representatives of the Attorney-General's office maintained had been murdered.

The Rev. Mr. Emelius was taken by train to Presque Isle and witnesses accompanied the officers. Among them was Edgar Jacobson, son of the dead man, who was arrested in April last charged with having murdered his father, but was discharged after the Grand Jury had returned a "no bill" in his case.

The prisoner, who is about 30 years of age, came to New Sweden a year and a half ago and assumed the pastorate of the Lutheran Church. Soon after Jacobson's death he moved to the neighboring town of Stockholm. Last fall he was married to Jacobson's daughter.

August Jacobson was a prosperous farmer of New Sweden, which was founded by colonists from Sweden in 1820. He was found dead in a clump of trees on his farm. There were four bullet wounds in his body and beside it was a rifle. Near by was a fishing rod, to which was attached a note in Swedish saying he had committed suicide.

The case was investigated by the attorney-general's office and the direction of Attorney-General Pattangall expressed the opinion that the man could not have committed suicide. The case was then referred to the attorney-general's office for a hearing. It is understood that his report led to the arrest of Mr. Emelius. One of the reasons for the failure of the Grand Jury to indict Jacobson's son was said to have been the discovery that he could not write Swedish.

WILLET AND WALTERS SAFE.

Grand Jury Finds to Indict—May Go Free This Week.

The Queens county Grand Jury reported yesterday to Justice Garretson that no indictment had been found in the case of William R. Willet and L. T. Walters, who were under investigation in connection with the stories circulated as to how Willet came to be nominated for Supreme Court Justice last fall.

The foreman of the Grand Jury and Assistant District Attorney Heaughing had been in conference with Justice Garretson before the court received the Grand Jury. It is thought that at that time the court advised that if no indictment was to be handed in the Grand Jury refrain from making any kind of a presentation.

A big batch of indictments were handed up, and after the court had run through them all accepted them and said:

"As you have completed your labors there is nothing for me to do, but to discharge you. I understand that you have investigated certain matters the District Attorney had ready for your consideration and that you have reached your