

"TANNHAUSER" SUNG AS OUR SECOND OPERA

The Subscribers Perhaps Better Satisfied Than Had It Been "Goetterdaemmerung."

FREMSTAD NEEDED REST

Perhaps the Wednesday night subscribers who sat in the Metropolitan Opera House last evening observing the second performance of the season were not altogether sorry that the first week's repertory had been changed. As it stood at first they would have had last night to be passionately thrilled by the woes of Brunhilde in "Goetterdaemmerung," and would possibly have rejoiced in the "Nightingale" with its wail and woe and his postiferous brood were thoroughly roasted. But Mme. Fremstad needed a little more time to recover from an ante-season indisposition, and so "Goetterdaemmerung" was postponed to Saturday afternoon and the matinee opera, "Tannhauser," was carried forward to last evening. This gave Mme. Fremstad a less onerous role, that of Venus.

The ancient goddess, shut up in the Horsaeborg, waiting for the days of her power to come again, has a hard first scene and then a long rest before a brief final appearance in the last act. So this lady "Tannhauser" was sung last night and, perhaps, to the real satisfaction of the subscribers, who may not yet be ready to be so serious as the final drama of the great trilogy.

Last night's performance of Wagner's third opera was one of great excellence. It had some defects, but the homogeneity of the presentation, its airy spirit and fervency of utterance seemed to impress the audience deeply. It is seldom that a more quiet and attentive assemblage than that of last night is found in the Metropolitan. It was apparently an audience which had enjoyed German works in the past, for it accorded to Alfred Hertz, the conductor, a prolonged welcome, which must have given him great joy.

An earnest endeavor had been made to improve the presentation of the work. This was most readily noticed in the singing of the chorus of women behind the scenes in the first act. The new and artistic shading reflected credit on one of the unscrupulous members of the organization, Giulio Senti, the chorus master.

There were no new members of the cast. Mme. Destinn's Elizabeth was probably less familiar to the audience than the other impersonations, but even that was not new. This impersonation was what might have been expected from an artist like Mme. Destinn equipped with the necessary training in a German opera house. Mme. Fremstad's Venus had to rely last night more on its plastic beauty and dramatic intelligence than on its pleasant tone, for the effects of her indisposition had not quite worn off.

Leo Slezak, the Himalayan tenor, reappeared as Tannhauser. Mr. Slezak is a Haysian only in bulk and attitude. He is Czech by birth, Viennese by education and partly French by training. In "Tannhauser," however, he sings very much like a German. His impersonation of the wandering knight has already been recognized here as being a hard and dry voice, at its best last night, but it is none the less worthy of much admiration.

It is not possible to get up any great enthusiasm for Mr. Weil's Wolfram, but it is an honest effort. The singer has the misfortune to possess a hard and dry voice. Mr. Witherston as the Landgrave was the other important member of the cast and he sang very well.

For the second night of the subscription there was another big attraction, the boxes being again in brilliant array. The boxes of Howell Carroll in black satin and point lace with mauve orchids at the corsage and Mrs. Frederick R. Couder in pastel blue satin with silver spangled net, were with Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Evers in box 3. Mrs. Merritt wore black satin finished at the corsage with point lace.

Mr. and Mrs. George J. Gould and Mr. and Mrs. Anthony J. Drexel were in box 12. Mrs. Gould wore garnet velvet and gauze of the same shade. Mrs. Drexel wore white satin veiled with white chiffon.

Mrs. William Jay, wearing black velvet relieved by gold spangled net, was with Mrs. James Speyer in box 16. Mrs. Speyer wore a gown of white broadcloth and lace with pink roses at the corsage.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic Courtland Penfield and Mrs. Walter Rutherford were with Miss Leary in box 2. Mrs. Penfield's costume was of white satin veiled with black net with touches of bright green at the corsage. She wore ornaments of pearls and diamonds. Mrs. Rutherford wore dull blue satin brocade with gold.

Mrs. F. Egerton Webb in white brocade and silver spangled gauze, and Miss Laura Webb, who wore palest rose colored satin combined with gauze of the same color, were in box 19.

Mrs. Herman B. Duryea, wearing turquoise blue satin brocade with gold, and Mrs. Henry W. Bull, in white satin veiled with black net, were in box 6.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Townsend and the Misses Townsend were in box 11. Mrs. Townsend wore pale blue satin and white net, the Misses Townsend both wearing deep rose colored satin and chiffon of the same shade.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Hillhouse, the latter in pale blue satin embellished with gold embroidered net; Mrs. Charles E. Hoffman in cream white satin and Mrs. H. H. Berkley Parsons, who wore old rose satin, were in box 13.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Tuckerman Tower, their debutante daughter, Miss Mary Thorn Tower, and Mrs. Grenville Kane were in box 22. Mrs. Tower wore white satin, Miss Thorn wore a white chiffon over satin of the same shade. Mrs. Kane, wearing pale green brocade veiled with gauze of the same color.

With Mr. and Mrs. E. Francis Hyde in box 33 were Mrs. George Elmore Ide, who wore white satin and Venetian point, and Mrs. George H. Church, who was in palest gray satin veiled with gold spangled net. Mrs. Hyde wore a gown of cerise embossed velvet and ornaments of diamonds.

Mrs. Hamilton Fish Webster in white satin was with Mrs. M. H. H. in box 34. Miss Wetmore wore cerise satin and a scarf of white gauze.

There were also in the audience Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Fowler, Mr. and Mrs. George G. Haven, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert E. Jones, Prince Brancaccio, Lanier Winslow, Mr. and Mrs. Henry M. Tilford, Mrs. Daniel S. Lamont, Mrs. Francis LeB. Robbins, Jr., and Gen. Horace Porter.

Miss Wilbur to be Married Nov. 23. Miss Dorothy Wilbur, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Rollin H. Wilbur, will be married to Richard MacSherry of Baltimore on November 23 at Old Stone House, the home of her parents, in St. David's. Miss Wilbur's father is the vice-president of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company. She is a granddaughter of the late E. P. Wilbur, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, and also of the late E. P. Lehigh, president of Lehigh University.

Columbia's New Mascot Selected. "Alan of Aikland" is the title selected by the Columbia University Players Club for its annual variety show. The book and most of the lyrics are the work of E. M. Janney, 1906.

HORSE SHOW BOXHOLDERS.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt Takes No. 13, as in the Past.

Boxholders for the National Horse Show, when the doors are opened on Saturday afternoon, will include nearly all the regular patrons, especially those who are identified with driving, riding, hunt clubs or polo. As usual Alfred G. Vanderbilt has taken box 13 and his brother, Reginald, has again engaged 14. There are five boxes reserved for the officers of the Belgian, Dutch, Canadian, English and United States army officers. Sir Edward Clouston of Montreal has engaged Box 34 and William H. Moore, the largest exhibitor of harness horses, has booked 45, while his rival, summer Draper of Boston and J. W. Harriman also have taken boxes. Box 46 will be occupied by Mr. and Mrs. E. T. Stoeteburgh of Philadelphia and William du Pont of Orange, Va. has taken 35. This is a list of the boxes subscribed for to date:

JOHN TITUS WILLETS.

Well Known Merchant and Banker Dies at 77.

John Titus Willets, a partner in the old and established firm of Willets & Co., 302 Pearl street, died yesterday at his home, 39 West Fifty-fourth street. He was born in this city Aug. 2, 1835, the son of Robert R. Willets and Lydia Titus Willets. During his entire life he was a member of the Society of Friends. Although the firm has not done much active business in recent years, formerly it was one of the most important firms in the Alaska fur trade and in the shipping and whaling trade of this country. At one time it did over 50 per cent. of the whaling trade of the entire country. It also did a general commission and banking business.

Mr. Willets was one of the trustees of Swarthmore College, which institution was started by his uncle, Samuel Willets, and by a number of the Society of Friends. He was for a number of years president of the Leather Manufacturers' National Bank, and on its consolidation with the Mechanics & Metals National Bank, he became a director of the latter institution. He was also a director of the Market & Fulton National Bank since 1879. He was formerly treasurer of the Hahnemann Hospital and also of the New York Infirmary, and was a trustee of the Society of the Ruptured and Crippled at the time of his death. He was a member of the Union League Club and of the Down Town Association.

He is survived by his widow, his son, Howard Willets, and two daughters, Mrs. Samuel W. Lambert and Mrs. Henry Carson.

Samuel Charig. Samuel Charig of Brooklyn, who constructed the Nassau Trust Company building, Oppenheim, Collins & Co. building and scores of business residences in the borough, died on Tuesday at his home, 324 Park place, in his fifty-first year. He was formerly a member of the firm of Charig & Co., and was a member of the Hebrew Federation of Charities and a director of the Young Men's Hebrew Association and the Unity Club. His wife and a daughter survive him.

The Rev. Dr. John A. McElwain. BOSTON, Nov. 12.—The Rev. Dr. John A. McElwain, pastor evangelist of the Clarendon Street Baptist Church, died this morning in Brooklyn of heart failure, aged 75. He was pastor assistant for twenty-four years. Since his resignation as pastor assistant he has been actively evangelist, giving his strength to evangelistic work in England. He was associated with the Rev. Dr. B. A. Gordon in founding the missionary training school now known as the Gordon Missionary Training School.

Richard F. Schmidt. Richard F. Schmidt, former and long president of the Brooklyn branch of the German-American Alliance, died on Tuesday at his home, 7134 Quincy street, in his sixty-seventh year. He came from Hamburg in 1854 and after working as a reporter for several years on German papers in the West settled in Brooklyn. He was the owner of the Shamrock Stock Food Company. He was a member of the Arion Singing Society and the Zoeliner Maennerchor. His wife and four children survive him.

Ferrand Hartwell Cleveland. AMSTERDAM, N. Y., Nov. 12.—Ferrand Hartwell Cleveland, a soldier in the civil war, is dead at his home in Amsterdam at the age of 72 years. He was born in the same county. Mr. Cleveland was wounded while carrying despatches when attached to the staff of Gen. A. V. Knaut. His grandfather fought in the revolution, and his grandfather in the War of 1812. Mr. Cleveland is survived by his wife, a son and a daughter.

Charles M. Frouke. WASHINGTON, Nov. 12.—News was received in Washington to-day of the death on Tuesday at Tucson, Ariz., of Charles M. Frouke of Washington, son of the late Charles M. Frouke, who was the minister to the Belgian Minister. The Frouke home in Massachusetts avenue, now the Belgian Legation, was for years the centre of a delightful social life.

T. Henry Turner. HARTFORD, Conn., Nov. 12.—T. Henry Turner, former treasurer of the Case, Lockwood & Brainard Company and one of the best known publishing men in New England, died here to-day. Mr. Turner was born in Montville, Conn., August 26, 1848, and was graduated from Wesleyan Academy in Wilbraham, Mass., and from the Eastman Business College in Poughkeepsie. He leaves a widow, one sister, Mrs. James R. Moore, and two nieces.

MRS. BELMONT TIFFANY BETTER. Sister Ends Wedding Trip on Account of Illness.

Mrs. Belmont Tiffany, who underwent a successful operation in the Presbyterian Hospital on Sunday, following an illness of several weeks, was reported yesterday to be doing nicely. Miss Margaret Cameron, who was with her at the time of her operation, has returned to her home in Syracuse, N. Y., with Mrs. Tiffany. Her sister, at 63 West Ninth street, concluded her wedding tour on account of her illness. She has returned to her home in Syracuse, N. Y., with Mrs. Tiffany.

Expert Declares That Farmer Volumes Sold at Astonishing Figures.

RULES OF THE BUSINESS

Selling Price Depends on Buyer's Means and Discrimination, Witness Declares.

Isaac Weill, attorney for James J. Farmer, seller of "rare editions de luxe," was called to the stand in the United States District Court yesterday to testify in the $50,000 suit brought against Farmer and others by Mrs. Emma Bird, a wealthy widow of Salt Lake City, Utah. Weill, under pressure from Clifford Baer of counsel for Mrs. Bird, admitted that he had visited the latter's brother, Clarence McCornick, a broker with offices at 71 Broadway, for the purpose of asking McCornick to persuade his sister to withdraw her suit.

Another admission made by the lawyer witness was that he had sought some one who knew of Mr. Baer's legal activities in an effort to discredit the attorney for the plaintiff.

"Is that your usual method of procedure in such cases," asked Mr. Baer.

"When I know what kind of a man I'm dealing with I usually take any kind of measures to prevent him from hurting me," retorted Weill.

Attorney Baer's ostensible purpose in calling his opponent to the stand was to question him about the Nemerov affidavit. Weill insisted that he had not forced Nemerov to sign this affidavit, as the latter testified at yesterday's hearing in the trial. Weill further denied that he had aided in any way the deposition after attorney Nemerov had signed it.

Two other witnesses corroborated the testimony of Irving Nemerov, the ex-employee of the Kellar-Farmer company, concerning the affidavit signed by him at the request of Attorney Weill. These were "Sham McAdam, a lawyer, and William H. McCue, an ex-employee of the Anglo-American Bank in the case of Mrs. Bird, known to be the daughter of W. L. McCornick, one of the richest bankers of Salt Lake City, the price would probably be boosted up a peg or two.

WEDDINGS.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 12.—Frederick C. Neill of this city married here to-night Miss Mollie Megarage, daughter of U. S. Grant Megarage, at Stoneleigh Court, the residence of the bride's parents. The bride was given in marriage by her father and was attended solely by Miss Elizabeth McCandless as maid of honor, while William Neill, the brother of the bridegroom, acted as groomsmen.

A reception at the Rittenhouse followed the ceremony and Mr. and Mrs. Neill left the city for a trip South. Klaw—Ash. Alonzo Klaw, a landscape painter, and Miss Alma Ash, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mark Ash of 316 West 103d street, were married Tuesday evening at the bride's home by the Rev. Dr. Maurice Harris of Temple Israel. Mr. Klaw is the son of Marc Klaw of the firm of Klaw & Erlanger. The couple will make their home at Lake Mahopac, where a studio is being built on the farm of Mr. Klaw.

Son Born to Willard D. Straight. A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Willard D. Straight on Wednesday last week at their home, 22 East Sixty-seventh street. Mrs. Straight was Miss Dorothy Whitney, younger daughter of the late William C. Whitney. Her marriage to Mr. Straight was celebrated in Switzerland a year ago last August, and soon afterward Mr. and Mrs. Straight went to China, where he represented various banking interests. They went to England early last summer, returning here late in August. Mr. and Mrs. Straight leased for the winter the house of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Kidder.

NOBODY KNOWS OF NEW BIBLE.

Baptist Publishers Think Philadelphia "News" 50 Years Old.

The American Baptist Publishing Society, at 23 East Twenty-sixth street, was puzzled yesterday by a news despatch appearing in a morning newspaper which said that a "most radical" version of the Bible had been placed on sale at the society's rooms in Philadelphia. It was a Baptist Bible for Baptists only, said the story, and among other changes had replaced the "baptize" of the King James Version by "immerse," in order to conform with Baptist teachings.

No one at the American Baptist Society's rooms heard that a new Bible for Baptists had been published. It was said there that since the Bible spoken of in the despatch from Philadelphia was referred to as an "improved version" some one had perhaps stumbled on news a half century old and thought it new, for the change from "baptize" to "immerse" was made about fifty years ago, when the American Bible Union brought out a new version of the New Testament, which in the '50s was somewhat revised and called the "Improved Version."

FEDERATED CLUBS HOLD A BRILLIANT RECEPTION

Social Event of State Convention Follows Day of Economic Discussion.

ALBANY, Nov. 13.—A discussion of industrial and social conditions and of household economics occupied much of the attention of the delegates to the State convention of Women's Clubs at the second day's session. Miss Helen Varick Boswell made an interesting report on industrial and social conditions and Miss Martha Van Rensselaer one on household economics.

Mrs. Gardner Raymond of Rochester outlined what had been accomplished in industrial reforms in her city, which is said to have the most modern factories in this part of the world, and Mrs. Eva Macdonald Valesch discussed the protection of workers, particularly against fire risk. Secretary Robert W. Holbrook of the State Federation, including Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Mrs. William Todd Helmutz, Mrs. Alfred G. Hausenstein, Mrs. Eugene J. Grant, Mrs. Charles H. Stockton, Mrs. John Francis Yawger, Mrs. Walter L. Brown, Miss Florence Guernsey and the former presidents of the federation, Mrs. Jennie Cunningham Croly, Mrs. William A. Montgomery, Mrs. Hopkins and Mrs. M. D. Dow, Mrs. Philip M. Carpenter, Mrs. Stoddard Hammond and Mrs. Elmer Blair.

Representatives of the Progressive Economic Club of New York also were to appear before the federation with the outline of the plan of the new city market for their city. It would cost $7,000,000 to build, they say, and would benefit not only big and small consumers but the producers as well. It is the aim of the Progressive Economic Club, which is not federated, to interest club women all over the State in the movement in the hope that similar markets may be established in all cities.

The social event of the convention was the reception to-night in the ballroom of the Hotel Ten Eyck. The receiving party was Mrs. John A. Dix, honorary chairman of the reception committee, and the officers of the federation, including Miss Mary Garrett Hay, Mrs. William Todd Helmutz, Mrs. Alfred G. Hausenstein, Mrs. Eugene J. Grant, Mrs. Charles H. Stockton, Mrs. John Francis Yawger, Mrs. Walter L. Brown, Miss Florence Guernsey and the former presidents of the federation, Mrs. Jennie Cunningham Croly, Mrs. William A. Montgomery, Mrs. Hopkins and Mrs. M. D. Dow, Mrs. Philip M. Carpenter, Mrs. Stoddard Hammond and Mrs. Elmer Blair.

$16,500 ADDED TO HOE TOTAL.

Book With Frontispiece by Madame de Pompadour Brings $1,200. Rare editions of books by French authors were the features of yesterday's sale of the Hoe library at the Anderson Galleries, Madison avenue and Fortieth street. The proceeds of the day totaled $16,230.50. The highest price paid was $1,200 for a book by Pierre Corneille, entitled "Rodogune, Princess of Parthos." The book is an especially rare one, being printed in Paris by Corneille's Zerbelle. It is said to contain a frontispiece etched by that famous lady herself. A note on the flyleaf of the Corneille volume reads: "I bought this with one exception the book was the finest edition of that story he had ever seen. It was sold to me by a collector of books. A first edition of William Congreve's 'Incognita' was sold to George D. Smith for $100. The book was printed in 1692 and is said to be especially rare. Even the British Museum does not possess a copy. The works of Prosper Jolyot de Crebillon, in two volumes, printed in Paris in 1797, containing the life and death of the author and etchings, were sold to Mr. Drake for $50.

Eleventh Corps' Tribute to Gen. Lockman.

At a special meeting of the officers of the Eleventh Army Corps Association, at which Capt. J. B. Greenleaf presided, resolutions were adopted commending the services in the civil war of Gen. John T. Lockman, recently deceased, and extending to his family the condolence of the association.

Notes of the Social World.

Mrs. Frederick Edey will give a reception this afternoon at her home, 10 West Fifty-sixth street, when she will introduce to society her daughter, Miss Julia Heyward Edey, her niece, Miss Pauline Livingston Clarkson, and her husband's ward, Miss Audrey Nelson Osborn.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilber Bloodgood have returned from the Cliff Manor to 49 East Thirty-fourth street.

Mrs. Lloyd Bowers of Washington, D. C. is visiting Dr. and Mrs. Preston P. Satterly in Great Neck, L. I.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Mortimer Barker have returned from Bar Harbor to 326 Fifth avenue.

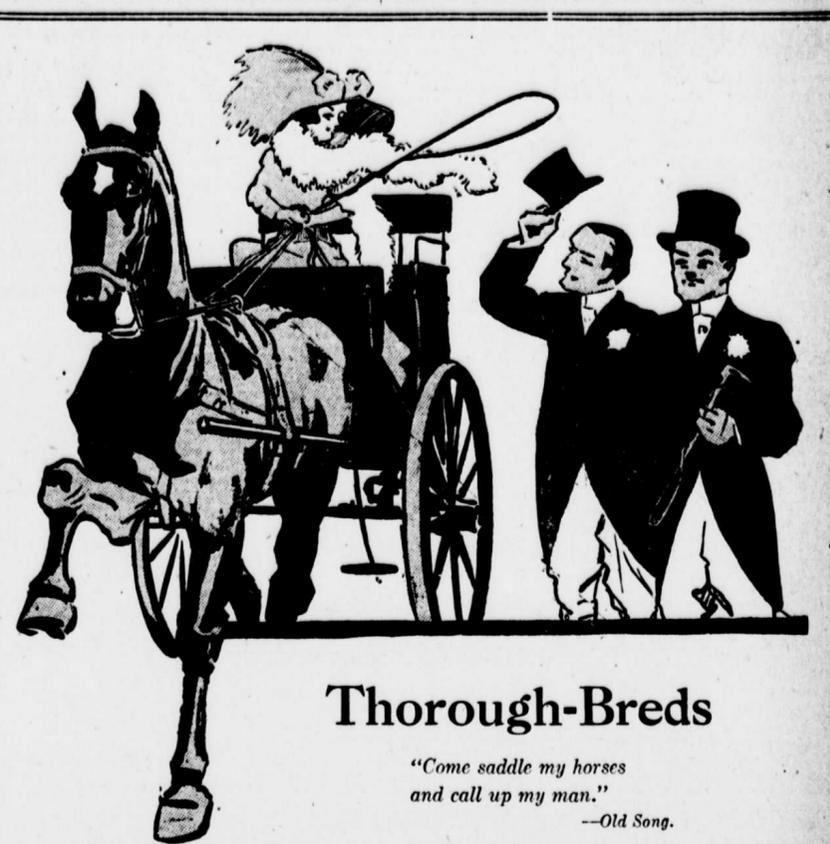

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Gade will give a Scandinavian evening at their home, 197 East Seventy-first street, on November 22.

The wedding of Miss Hazel Bache, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius S. Bache, and Frederick L. Richards will take place in St. Thomas's Church on December 16.

Miss Helen Cole Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Whitney of Boston, Mass., will be married to George Galt Bourne, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick G. Bourne, in St. Bartholomew's Church on January 1.

The wedding of Miss Louise R. Knowlton, youngest daughter of Mr. D. Henry Knowlton, and Buell Hollister will take place this afternoon in the chapel of St. Bartholomew's Church.

Mrs. E. Hope Slater has returned from Newport and is at the Ritz-Carlton.

THE stage is being set for the Horse Show. On both sides of the barrier the spectacle will be a splendid one.

It will be no place for a man who, consciously or unwittingly, transgresses the sartorial code.

The conventions of men's wear are fixed—but the standards governing its production are as wobbly as the tan-bark floor of the ring after the jumps.

It is not enough to know what to wear. It is quite as necessary to know where to get it.

The John Wanamaker store is the place. The counsel of Savile Row is behind it—in the unquestioned style, the fine fabrics, the fit that banishes self-consciousness.

The service is personal, and intelligent. Only one thing missing—the extravagance of cost usually accompanying exclusiveness.

Day Wear Evening Wear. Cutaway coat and waistcoat, black-silk-braided, silk-lined, $38; black or Oxford, plain, silk-lined, $35.

Striped trousers, $7.50 to $10. Silk hat, Lincoln-Bennett, London, $8, $12. Bench-made shoes, dull calf, English last, $8, $10.

Redleaf socks, cashmere, 75c pair. Four-in-hand tie, Spitalfields silk, $2. Chevreton gloves, mocha lined, $3.50 pair. Crook handle walking stick, from London, in a choice of many woods, $3 to $50.

Redleaf topcoat, London-made—choice of British sportsmen—in duffle, shetlands or homespun, confined designs, $30 to $60. Redleaf raincoat—the hunting raincoat of England—for street or saddle; skirt opening fairly high that it may drape over the cante of the saddle, $38 to $45.

For the man who rides the horse he exhibits, we have riding breeches, in whipcords, checks and doe-skin, $15 to $20; specially designed and tailored by an expert breechesmaker; English puttees, in black or tan or patent leather, $2.75 to $7; spiral puttees, $3 and $4.

The service of The Men's Store is equal to all the demands men may make upon it. It is the business of this store to know what men should wear on any occasion and to be ready to fill all the needs of man with taste and standard in dress promptly and satisfactorily, either through the section of the ready-to-wear or through the Burlington Arcade Tailoring Shop.
