CARUSO A CUBIST AT INTERNATIONAL EXHIBIT

POSTCARD SKETCH BY ENRICO CARUSO.

Opera Tenor Takes a Hand at the New Game in Art and Pleases Visitors.

He Rapidly Sketches on Postcards and Distributes Them Among Many Onlookers.

Enrico Caruso, whose interest in art is well known, has devoted two hours of his valuable time to the International Art Exhibition at the big armory, Lexington avenue and Twenty-sixth street...

After his little tour of the eighteen rooms in which the armory floor has been divided into cubist night...

But Caruso is not the only notability to visit the armory show. If a list of the nearly 30,000 persons who have come to the exhibition in the last two weeks could be made it would be found to include most of the leading artists...

MANY RARE PRINTS SHOWN.

Thirty Rembrandts Are Among the Exhibit at Anderson's.

The collection of prints and original drawings on view in the Anderson Galleries is one of great interest and rarity. There are more than 500 examples. The sale of three evening sessions begins Wednesday.

There are no fewer than thirty Rembrandts, including a fine impression of the second state of Jan Lina, the Menasseh Ben Israel, the Game of Kofif (gold), and the Schoolmaster. Among the twenty-one Duror prints are Nemesia, or The Great Fortune, The Holy Family With the Dragon, and the Jerome in Exile.

Nothing like this exhibition in point of its appeal to public interest has been seen in the town in the way of an art show, according to veterans at the game. Not only the 25 cent afternoon and evening hours have been crowded, but the armory has been well filled also in the mornings from 10 to 12, when the admittance fee is $1.

Even the enthusiastic members of the association, who have been at work on this project for months past, have been astonished at its success with the public.

It was learned yesterday that while final contracts have not yet been signed an agreement has been made with Director W. M. R. French of the Chicago Art Institute, to display the exhibition, or most of it, for ten days after it closes in New York on March 15.

Only a lack of space prevents the showing of the whole exhibition in Chicago, but the works to be sent will be representative and will cover the ground completely. They will be chosen by President Arthur B. Davies of the American Painters and Sculptors, with the approval of Director French, and will be shown under the new organization's name. Other cities have asked for this exhibition, but it will be possible to send it only to Chicago.

FAVERSHAM IN DEBT TO HIS DEAD WIFE

State Comptroller Appraises Alimony Claim at Its Full Value.

The transfer tax appraisal of the estate of Mrs. Marian Merwin Faversham, who got a divorce from William Faversham in 1902 and who died at Aiken, N. C., on April 6, 1911, shows that her estate has a claim against Mr. Faversham for $2,850 for unpaid alimony.

The executors listed the claim against the actor as of no value, but Mr. Faversham was summoned to the State Comptroller's office to testify concerning it. As a result the claim was appraised at its full value, with a provision that if the executors fail to collect it will not be taxed.

Mr. Faversham, who married Julie Opp after his first wife divorced him, testified that when the decree was entered against him he agreed to pay his first wife $3,200 a year. He said the alimony wasn't paid regularly. Sometimes there was a delay of three or four months before he paid in full.

"It is absolutely an untruth that I owe $2,850," testified Mr. Faversham. "Have you any receipts?" was asked. "No, but I have paid all the money that was coming to Marian Merwin Faversham except the last two checks for about $750, which were sent to my office and destroyed. You can't prove a thing."

"How did these last checks come to be returned?" "They were addressed to Marian Merwin Faversham at Aiken and were returned to me. I wondered why they were returned and called up Mr. Weeks. He told me the lady was dead and that Mr. Faversham left an estate of $42,150, all in personal property, to her son, Frank Merwin. She had

Jewelry worth several thousand dollars, but a "pearl" necklace found in a safe deposit box proved to be of glass and was worth about $1.

Mrs. Faversham had 200 shares of Chicago Brazilian Diamond Company stock and 400 shares of Arizona Gold Mines and Milling stock, appraised as worthless.

CONCERTS OF A DAY.

One by an Orchestra, One by Pianist and One by Violinist.

The concerts of yesterday numbered three. At Carnegie Hall in the afternoon the programme of the Young People's Symphony concert was divided into two parts, one devoted to the illustration of the development of the symphony and the other to "Pearly Music."

Haydn, Beethoven and Tchaikowsky contributed to the first part and Ravel's "Mother Goose" was the chief feature of the second. There did not appear to be any close relation to each other, but the children, even the old ones, appeared to like it all.

Also in the afternoon, but at Aeolian Hall, Herbert Sachs-Hirsch gave a piano recital. This is a young man who has played in other parts of the country, especially on the coast, with Mary Gardner. His programme began with Beethoven's thirty-two variations in C minor, after which stood Chopin's B flat minor sonata and a group of other compositions by Weber, Mendelssohn, Schumann, Strauss and Liszt followed the last group. Mr. Sachs-Hirsch played in a simple style without providing any special reason for piece appearance. His art was not to be condemned except that it was without any message.

In Rumford Hall last night Samuel Gardner, violinist, gave a recital. He played two movements from a suite by Goldmark, Paganini's prelude and allegro, Bach's "Chaconne" and a number of smaller works. Mr. Gardner is a pupil of Franz Kneisel and once played in a sextet at one of the Kneisel Quartet concerts. The young man plays like a young man, without balance, repose or finish, but he has a genuine talent. His technique is well developed, he bows excellently and he has some style. The last would be better if the player used less speed in his performance. But he is a credit to his teacher and if he will face himself squarely and estimate his merits and his faults at their true proportion he will probably arrive.
