

SUFFRAGISTS HISS MAJOR SYLVESTER

Denial of Parade Disorder on Monday Causes Women's Outburst.

SENATORS TO FIX BLAME

Committee Hears Policemen Helped Along Rowdies During the March.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—The Senate sub-committee, composed of Senators Jones of Washington, Penrose of Ohio and Dillingham of Vermont, devoted another day to hearing testimony to establish the charges that the police of Washington failed to protect women suffragists in their parade last Monday. The hearing was directed toward fixing responsibility for conditions. Ex-Secretary of War Stimson, Gen. Leonard Wood, Major Richard Sylvester, chief of police, and other witnesses were examined. The hearing will be continued Monday.

Secretary Stimson told the committee that he had no authority to furnish troops except in emergency. He told of the many urgent appeals made to him by persons representing the suffragists for the troops to protect the parade. A few hours before the parade he telephoned to the District of Columbia commissioners and was advised that troops were not necessary.

Major Gen. Wood told of the circumstances under which he, at the request of Major Sylvester, ordered out a troop of cavalry to preserve order.

Gen. Anson Mills, who marched in the parade, told how he tried to get the War Department to furnish troops. He read a letter from Assistant Secretary of War Oliver refusing to furnish cavalry. Mrs. Mills also testified to the efforts made by the District Commissioners to obtain police protection.

"I think if I had a 'billy' I could have done more than most of the policemen did in protecting the marchers," said Mrs. Mills.

Major Richard Sylvester, superintendent of the Washington police, testified that there were more policemen on Pennsylvania avenue on the day of the suffragist parade than on any of the inaugural parades.

Major Sylvester was hissed by the suffragists when he read a report from one of his captains saying that the scenes of disorder narrated by various witnesses last Thursday night actually occurred.

Rev. J. F. Nelms, rector of the Church of the Ascension, defended the police. He said that he had witnessed many parades at home and abroad, and that he never saw more heroic efforts put forward by the police to preserve order.

George S. Canfield of Spokane, Wash., said that before the parade started a policeman told him it had been broken up and would not be held. He testified that the policeman stood around apparently enjoying the disorder and contributed to it instead of trying to suppress it.

Commodore W. S. Moore, U. S. N., retired, testified that he called on Major Sylvester and urged the most complete protection and that he was told the Major was a suffragist, but he considered the parade in bad taste and that it would be impossible to give the best protection.

Henry D. Pierce, an Indianapolis lawyer, testified that the responsibility for the disorder was with the individual policemen and not with the committee charged to the Superintendent of Police.

Henry C. Hallam, a newspaper man, told of how one mounted police sergeant, whose name he did not give, made jeering remarks about the women and refused to clear a way for the grand stand.

Commissioners of the District of Columbia announced that following the Senate inquiry, they would investigate a rigid investigation to fix, if possible, individual police responsibility for the disorder. The Senate committee has already reached the conclusion that the police were derelict and will direct their efforts toward fixing the responsibility.

SWEATSHOP POET IS 50

Friends of East Side Lyricist Fill Carnegie Hall.

Morris Rosenfeld, familiarly known as the "sweatshop poet" and the "East Side poet," was 50 years old yesterday, and his friends gathered last night at Carnegie Hall to celebrate the jubilee. Four hundred sat on the platform and every seat in the hall was taken.

Many of Mr. Rosenfeld's poems, which have appeared in the Forward, have been reprinted in ten different languages. In the absence of Abraham Cahan, editor of the Forward, who is ill, B. Peissbaum, the associate editor, presided.

Among those who made addresses were Prof. Leo Weiner of Harvard University, who told how he discovered the poet when he was a tailor in an East Side sweatshop fifteen years ago. B. Vladeski of Philadelphia also spoke.

Mr. Rosenfeld read a poem which he had written for the occasion.

STILL WORKS ON FARM AT 103

Samuel Keefe, Who Has Birthday Tomorrow, Only 11 Once.

PENN VAN, N. Y., March 8.—Samuel Keefe, who lives on his own farm near here, will be 103 years old on Monday. He is the oldest living student of Albany Normal, from which he was graduated and afterward taught school.

He still works, does most of his reading without glasses, can name the Presidents of this country in the order in which they have served and give a sketch of their lives and has never had a bodily ailment with the exception of an attack of blood poisoning ninety years ago.

He takes medicines compounded by himself from roots and herbs. He has not used tobacco since young manhood and never liquor. He ascribes his long life to simple living and care in avoiding exposure.

$2,500 PEARL IN HER OYSTER

Mrs. August Stutz of Passaic Hires Into a Fortune.

August Stutz, proprietor of Stutz's Casino in Passaic, is telling his friends how he got a pearl worth $2,500 through the purchase of forty-four cents worth of oysters.

On Friday, says Stutz, his wife bought the oysters from a pedler. While she was eating one of them her teeth struck something hard and large and smooth. It looked like a pink pearl and was the size of a marble. Stutz says a New York jeweler offered him $2,500 for it.

TELLS OF FATHER'S MURDER

Young Italian's Story Accuses Barber, Who Is Held Without Bail.

The finding of the Noelle of Sorrento, Pa., shot dead on the sidewalk in front of 317 East Thirty-ninth street on the night of March 4 led to the arrest yesterday of Pellegrino Saeco, 29 years old, proprietor of a barber shop at 673 First avenue, who was sent to the Tombs without bail by Coroner Feinberg charged with the murder. Saeco's arrest followed a statement by twenty-two-year-old Frank Noelle, of 40 East Twenty-ninth street, son of the murdered man.

"I know I shall be shot if I tell, but I am going to do it. I want the man who killed my father punished," said Frank Noelle.

For four days the son has been questioned by the police. He was with his father at the time of the murder. The police had learned that Mrs. Maria Grazia Saeco, mother of the accused barber, had been receiving Black Hand letters at the rate of one a week since last August.

Frank Noelle tells of walking down the Twenty-ninth street the night of the murder and of his father being attacked by three men in front of 317 and taken inside. The son could hear his father's voice raised angrily in a back room.

The elder Noelle finally came out, accompanied by several men. The men were very quiet.

The father and son started off and then the shots came.

JOB HUNTING ARMY FLOCKS TO M'COMBS

Crowds Corridors of the Vanderbilt—Chairman Wouldn't Promise.

The corridors of the Vanderbilt Hotel looked like a political convention yesterday. If you had thrown your hat in the air it would have landed on the shoulders of an office seeker. You couldn't move without running into somebody who, like you, was looking for a job. They had all come to see William F. McCombs, chairman of the Democratic National Committee.

He looked as though all Democratic partisans had left Washington and had come to New York for a talk with the national chairman. They found him at his quarters in the Vanderbilt, smiling and ready to shake hands. But as for jobs—Mr. McCombs was not in a promising frame of mind. It all seemed as though the declaration of President Wilson that he wasn't the person to ask for a job had thrown the burden on the shoulders of Mr. McCombs.

Along with the newcomers from Washington were the regular New Yorkers who are ready to accept places under Mr. Wilson. It was said yesterday that the apportionment of places for this district will be in the hands of Mr. McCombs, Senator O'Gorman and the local organization, Charles F. Murphy. One Senator, it was added, has no more hand in it than a guide in the Capitol at Albany.

Senator O'Gorman was not in town yesterday. Mr. McCombs did not see Mr. Murphy yesterday, nor did William G. McAdoo, the new Secretary of the Treasury. Mr. McAdoo stayed in his office, all day, catching up with his correspondence and seeing some of his friends. But he did not promise any jobs, and such of his friends as called upon him yesterday with the intention of offering their services to the United States went away to return another day.

Mr. McCombs had short talks with E. S. Johnson, who ran for the Governorship of North Dakota, but didn't win, and S. George Tucker, prospective Democratic candidate for the Governorship of Virginia.

Mr. McAdoo expects to go to Washington to-night.

BROOKLYN GIRL MISSING

Blind Librarian Fears Harm Has Come to Her Young Friend.

Mrs. William Goodshaw of 128 Sterling place, Brooklyn, a blind woman who is employed as an instructor of the sightless in the branch of the Brooklyn Public Library, is worried over the disappearance of Myrtle Hart, 18 years old, who has been her constant companion since she came from an orphanage in Indiana five years ago.

Miss Hart, who is said to be remarkably pretty, went out about 6 o'clock on Friday evening, saying she was going to a fruit store and later to get a magazine at the Long Island Railroad depot. She didn't return and Mrs. Goodshaw had inquiries for her made at the fruit store and at the depot. Mrs. Goodshaw suspected that she might have been spirited away by a gang of white slaves who frequent the neighborhood of the railroad station and she notified the police.

The girl is supposed to have had only fifty cents with her when she disappeared. She has dark wavy hair and dark brown eyes. She is 5 feet 4 inches tall and weighs about 120 pounds. When she disappeared she wore a small black velvet hat, a blue cheviot gown and a long blue coat.

CONSUL'S PROTEGEE BARRED

London Woman Not Allowed to Land Despite Official Plea.

Miss Beatrice Pearson, a cabin passenger by the White Star liner Oceanic, which arrived on Wednesday, was held up by the immigration officials and taken to Ellis Island. A representative of the British consul's office made an effort to have her landed at the pier, but the immigration boarding officer turned him down.

He declared that the woman was a friend of his and therefore should be landed. A board of special inquiry decided that she was not desirable in this country. Technical she was excluded because she was "likely to become a public charge."

The man from the British Consulate may hear more about the case from Uncle Sam.

WOMAN IN CHILD'S WILL NAMED

His "Friend in Spain" Was Lydia Robinson of Chester, Md.

The identity of the mysterious woman named in the will of Irving W. Childs as "a friend who was with me in Spain" and to whom was left $15,000, was disclosed in the Surrogate's Court yesterday when Mrs. Gertrude M. Childs, the widow, who is contesting the will, got an order to take the testimony of Lydia Robinson of Chester, Md., as an advance witness.

Mrs. Childs said that Miss Robinson came to Philadelphia to be married to the $15,000 legatee and that she was with Childs here and abroad prior to his death. Mrs. Childs wants to find out if Miss Robinson knows anything of the circumstances under which the bulk of the estate was left to Frederick H. Clarke, a lawyer.

SUFFRAGE STORES DELIVERY BOYS QUIT

Then the Women Themselves Propel the "Votes for Women" Pushcart.

SHOP'S BUSINESS GROWS

Suffragists Ready to Bid to Supply Gunboats With Dairy Products.

The joers of comrades yesterday proved too much for Joe and Edward, who for the last two weeks have been delivering pure food from the suffrage store at Broadway and Ninety-sixth street, and they gave up their jobs in the middle of the rush hours. There had been no concealing their connection with the store, for the cart of which they were the motive power has "Votes for Women" plainly printed on its yellow sides.

Miss Ethel Wells stepped into the vacant places and in the afternoon Mrs. Sophia Kremer, president, and Mrs. Alice Burke, secretary of the company, did the delivering themselves and did it well. But the suffrage store will be glad to pay a good wage to a strong woman who isn't afraid of the weather. She need not be a suffragist. They will attend to her conversion.

She must expect to be busy, for the store's trade has so largely increased that a second shop will be opened further up Broadway next week. The Bronx will be the third field of operation. The new stores will be managed by the same careers, who will hire help as they need it.

The managers have a sharp eye for business. Mrs. Burke called upon the quartermaster of the Navy Department yesterday and asked for the right to bid on the provisioning with dairy products of the gunboats which anchor at the foot of Ninety-sixth street. She informed the quartermaster that the company was in touch with plenty of farmers, besides being prepared to furnish pure food from its own new farm near Poughkeepsie.

Preference is always given to women farmers and one of the latest consignors is Mrs. James A. Horne, widow of the actor, who has a big farm near Southampton, L. I.

Eggs were sold yesterday wrapped in yellow "Votes for Women" paper at from 32 cents a dozen up. Trap nested eggs, gathered every hour for invalids and babies by two women farmers in New Jersey, brought 40 cents. Duck eggs as big as two hens' eggs were on sale at 40 cents. Universal Suffrage jam made by Mrs. Mary Foster, a friend of Susan B. Anthony, can be bought, and so can jam made from cherries grown at Broadway and 23rd street.

The crates along the store was so great as to bring the delivery policeman had to be stationed there to keep order.

WISE WOULD TAX CEMETERIES

Rabbi Writes to the President of Queens Borough.

Rabbi Stephen Wise has come out in favor of the bill pending in the Legislature to tax for public improvements the big cemeteries in Queens. In a letter received yesterday by Borough President Connolly of Queens, Rabbi Wise wrote: "From time to time I have seen references in the press that you are attempting to deal with the question of making cemeteries liable for public improvements. I hope you will persist in this matter as long as you are able for public improvements and from taxation. I think that Brooklyn and Queens alike should deal vigorously and persistently to discontinue the exemption in the present exemption from liability of many of these institutions."

Within the next two years $2,000,000 of improvements are to be made in the vicinity of several of the cemeteries in Queens. The lots are occupied by cemeteries in the Second ward of that borough will shortly be drained by a sewer which will cost $1,000,000, and all the cemetery holdings will be exempt from taxation if the pending bill does not become a law. Cemetery officials are notifying plot owners that an attempt is being made to discontinue the exemption and that the law is passed it will be necessary to levy a tax on the plots and graves.

HELD AS EXPRESS FRAUD

Moskowitz Got Money for Packages He Didn't Have, Is Charged.

Samuel Moskowitz, a Bull Moose stump speaker, was arraigned yesterday before United States Commissioner Shields on a charge of using the mails to defraud. He was held in $500 for examination and being unable to furnish a bond was sent to the Tombs.

Moskowitz kept an express office at 150 Second avenue under the name of the Empire Express Company. He is charged that he wrote to his customers that he had packages which had been expressed and that he would send them on receipt of $1.20, required by the parcel post regulations.

COLLECTOR ROBBED OF $200

Three Men Hold Him Up at 35th Street and First Avenue.

Joseph Schneider, driver of a wagon for S. Mundy & Son, tobacco dealers of Brooklyn, and also a collector for the same firm, was robbed last night of his day's collection, worth $200, by three men who set upon him when he was watering his horse at a fountain in front of St. Gabriel's Park at Thirty-fifth street and First avenue.

Schneider's day's receipts were in a wallet stuck in his back pocket and secured by a strap around his waist. At the fountain he climbed down to undo the horse's checkrein and was set upon by the three men, two of whom pointed their arms while the third grabbed the wallet and ran off.

Schneider reported it to the East Thirty-fifth street police station.

SPARKS FROM THE TELEGRAPH

The Grand Point Storage Company of Philadelphia yesterday let contracts for a big fireproof grain elevator. The foundation cost $275,000 and the superstructure will cost $200,000.

A decision which may affect the status of a large number of remarried divorced people in Illinois was made yesterday by the late Marcus Kavanaugh ruled that a divorced person could not legally marry again in Illinois within a year.

Competitive examinations for appointment to the Marine Corps with rank of Second Lieutenant will be held at Washington and San Francisco on Monday, July 14. Dr. W. H. Sullivan, secretary and treasurer of Yale in China, stated yesterday that a Yale graduate has offered to the Yale China Association funds sufficient to build and equip a thoroughly modern hospital in China.

WOULD WELCOME A VISIT BY M'COMBS

Illinois Republicans Wish Chairman Would Try to Settle Deadlock.

CHICAGO, March 8.—"Let Mr. McCombs come to Springfield to try to settle the Senatorial deadlock. We Republicans will welcome him with open arms," said David E. Shanahan, Republican House leader, when told today that it was reported that Chairman McCombs of the Democratic National Committee might visit Springfield.

"We would be pleased to see Mr. McCombs sitting on the sofa behind the Speaker's chair," continued Mr. Shanahan.

McCombs will be in New York tomorrow and will finally decide whether or not to come to Illinois as the advice to-night from Washington. Many Democrats are urging him to abandon the trip, as they argue his presence would only increase the tension and do more harm than good.

Illinois Democrats say the Republicans might well rejoice, as indicated by Mr. Shanahan, if the chairman of the Democratic National Committee should interfere with the Democratic members of the Illinois General Assembly in their factional quarrel. It is said that a feeling of resentment would be aroused which probably would redound to the benefit of the Republicans.

Chicago Democrats are confident that the deadlock will be broken in time. It may be necessary, they say, to snuff out the ambition of certain leaders, but after that has been done and a man has been elected Senatorial chief there will be few regrets over the deadlock.

Voting will be resumed in the Illinois Legislature Wednesday, but no one is looking for any change in the results.

WILSON NOT FOR SHERMAN

Dunne Misunderstood His Illinois Senatorship Views.

WASHINGTON, March 8.—President Wilson today continued silent on the Illinois Senatorial situation, refusing to commit himself to the compromise plan for the election of J. Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic, and Lawrence V. Sherman, the Republican primary nominee.

State Senator Kent E. Keller of Illinois, who has identified himself with the supporters of the bipartisan plan, called on the President today and departed without getting an intimation of the Executive's attitude.

It was evident that Mr. Wilson had been doing more of his "prize letting," which seemed to have led Gov. Dunne of Illinois astray on Wednesday night. After his talk with Mr. Wilson Gov. Dunne intimated that the President had approved his bipartisan compromise plan. Inquiry at the White House the next day established definitely that all the President had done was to listen attentively and interestedly.

State Senator Keller on leaving the President to-day was not communicative. A close friend of the President who left him a short time before Senator Keller's arrival said Mr. Wilson was still desirous of seeing some plan evolved by which two Democratic Senators could be elected from Illinois. A month ago Mr. Wilson told his friends at Trenton that the vote of Illinois on election day entitled the State to two Democratic Senators.

Friends of the President believe that he has not been convinced of the justice of giving equal recognition to the primary wish of the two parties when it is considered that on election day the number of votes recorded by the Democrats so far exceeded those of the Republicans.

ARRESTED AS FRENCH THIEF

Young Man Held in Dodgeville, Mass., Said to Have Stolen $1,800.

A young man said to be Robert Louis George Lequiter, who deserted from the French army and absconded with $1,800 belonging to a steamship company, was arrested yesterday in Dodgeville, Mass. He had gone there from Havre, France, to join his sweetheart.

The young man when arrested said he was not Lequiter but a man named Leconte. He produced a French military book to prove his identity, but was held despite this because of a letter referring to him as Robert which was found in his clothes.

Griffin for Garrison's Place

It was reported in Jersey City yesterday that John Griffin, County Counsel, is to be appointed Vice-Chancellor to succeed Lindley M. Garrison, the new Secretary of War. It was predicted that Corporation Attorney James J. Murphy would be the new County Counsel.

BLEASE IN ROW WITH POLICE

Makes Threats if His Negro Chauffeur Isn't Freed.

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 8.—Gov. Blease to-day became involved with the police of Columbia. Yesterday his negro chauffeur, while driving an automobile in which the Governor was riding, was arrested for speeding. In the Recorder's court this morning he was found guilty of the charges and fined $2.75. The Governor's secretary paid the fine.

Gov. Blease did not think his negro was given a square deal so he pardoned him. The chief of police refused to honor the pardon. This, arousing the Governor's ire, caused him to issue a statement substantially to the effect that if the fine of "his negro" was not remitted he would pardon all the other offenders convicted in the Recorder's court of Columbia who applied to him for release.

ALUM CHINE BLAST INVESTIGATION BEGUN

Interstate Commerce Body Seeks Cause of Explosion on British Steamer.

BALTIMORE, March 8.—A rigorous investigation of the dynamite explosion on the British steamship Alum Chine, in which at least thirty were killed, is being made by the local authorities, the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

William J. Bomhardt, assistant foreman of stevedores, asserted to-day that he was the innocent cause of the catastrophe, but his story is doubted by the agents of the company. Bomhardt said that while carrying two cases some of the dynamite became loose.

"Just as we let the cases settle easily to the floor," he said, "there was a flash and an explosion. The fifteen of us were thrown against the side of the ship and against the beams. I was blinded by the flash and I felt as if my face had been blown away. I saw men scrambling to get out of the hold and I followed. The explosion had set fire to the ship."

Bomhardt was arrested late to-night pending further investigation of the disaster. The police seem to believe that he knows more about the real cause of the explosion than he told. His arrest was made by order of the Coroner.

The death list may be brought down to thirty. About ten men, all stevedores, are still missing. Six of the crew of the steamer were killed. The remaining seventeen were saved. One fireman is still in the hospital.

An Interstate Commerce Commission agent, Frank McManamy, and Col. Dunne, retired, have already begun an investigation of the dynamite disaster. The Federal regulations governing the transportation of dynamite by common carriers come under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Government officials came over to Baltimore from Washington and were taken to the scene of the explosion aboard the municipal tug Baltimore. Accompanying them were Capt. G. E. Carleton, U. S. A., Col. Dunne's assistant, and John M. Souders of the freight transportation department of the Pennsylvania Railroad at Philadelphia. They will continue their inquiry on Monday.

The wrecked steamer lies in the channel and will be removed by the War Department. All vessels have been advised to steer clear of the obstruction, as boxes of dynamite are believed to be in the water.

COOK INHERITS $50,000

Mrs. Thomas Nugent Throws Up Her Job to Claim Small Fortune.

PATERSON, March 8.—Mrs. Anna Nugent, a cook at the Paterson House, received a subterfuge this morning from London saying that her uncle, Gen. Edward Ryan of the Thirtieth Regiment of London, died recently leaving her $50,000.

When the message was delivered to Mrs. Nugent she was polishing a kitchen stove at the boarding house. She threw the telegram and then went straight to Mrs. H. M. Fitzpatrick, the proprietress.

"My uncle's made me rich. Mrs. Fitzpatrick, and my uncle told me, you that you must look for another cook," she said.

Mrs. Nugent lives with her husband, Thomas Nugent, in Paterson street. She went home and with her husband completed arrangements to leave for England right away.

Turner and Annie Fallon Get License

No direct word from either Charles W. Turner or Annie Fallon has been received as yet, but Miss Cora Louise Turner, proprietress of the Terrace Hotel, at 5 and 7 Montague terrace, Brooklyn, is convinced that the two are now married. The couple got a license in Hoboken yesterday. Mayor Coock refused to marry them and they left the City Hall.

LOEB STILL COLLECTOR

Renews His Bond of $480,000 for Holdover Period.

William Loeb, Jr., Collector of the Port, automatically continued in office yesterday, which marked the end of his fourth year as Collector. He sent his resignation to President Wilson, announcing that his bond for $480,000 expired yesterday. It really did not expire, as Mr. Loeb attended to its renewal.

Mr. Loeb will not retire until the appointment of his successor, and he says he has not the slightest idea who the lucky man will be. He has an impression that the President has not yet picked a man for the job.

The figures show that there never has been another Collector of this port who has turned over so large an amount of money as Collector Loeb has in the shape of withheld duties, chiefly the result of the detection of smugglers and importers with a tendency to undervaluation. The value of recoveries in the four years he has been in office is about $10,000,000, which is not far from twenty times as much as any other collector turned into

NEW HAVEN ORDERS A BRIDGE

Four Track Span for New London Among Improvements Planned.

NEW HAVEN, March 8.—President Miller of the New Haven road has directed the completion of plans for a new four track bridge at New London, said Vice-President McHenry to-day. The new bridge when completed will form part of a complete four track railroad between New Haven and Providence, affording a continuous four track route between New York and Boston.

The new line will require the construction of a tunnel under New London and will eliminate much distance and curvature. The improvement will cost $4,900,000.
