

NEWSPAPER MEN AT A JOLLY BANQUET

Josephus Daniels, Cabaret Show and Songs Make Things Hum.

SEVEN HUNDRED GUESTS

Secretary of the Navy Tells Some of His Editorial Experiences.

The most dinner of the Associated Press and the American Newspaper Publishers Association at the Waldorf-Astoria last night was the biggest and most brilliant celebration the editors and publishers have ever held.

Samuel E. Mack, the boss of the Buffalo Evening Times, to Harry Campbell, Gen. Harrison Gray Oakes editor of the Los Angeles Times, the visiting newspaper men were sure that New York is the only place in the world for one of these annual get-together parties.

The entertainment was not confined to the willow-leafed speakers, because the editors had a cabaret show in the midst of their dinner.

From a platform erected in the center of the grand ballroom young women who perform in musical comedies sang the latest ragtime airs and called upon the audience to carry the chorus.

It was almost forgotten that the occasion, and numerous young men who sang and danced, that would have made an admirable club editor's evening.

All in all it was a regular banquet, as the A. P. and A. N. P. A. folk admitted when they finished jollifying at 11 o'clock this morning.

Charles R. Miller, editor of the New York Times, was the toastmaster, and when he dropped his gavel to signal for quiet, he faced more than 700. With Mr. Miller at the guest table were the Secretary of the Navy, Josephus Daniels, who had just heard that the plant of his own newspaper, the Raleigh, N. C. News and Observer, had been destroyed by fire.

Robert Ewing, New Orleans Daily States; Frederick Roy Martin, W. I. McLean, Philadelphia Bulletin; W. H. Cowley, Spokane Spokanean Review; Donald H. Ridder, New York Statesman; Col. N. G. Osborn, New Haven Journal-Courier; F. B. Jennings, Representative Frank L. Greene, who is an editor when at home in St. Albans, Vt.; Adolph S. Ochs, New York Times; Frank B. Rowes, president of the Associated Press; Melville E. Stone, general manager of the Associated Press; the Rev. Dr. Charles Alexander Richmond, pastor of the University Place Presbyterian Church; Col. Philip T. Dodge, Victor F. Lawson, Chicago Daily News; John F. Mackay, Charles H. Gandy, Baltimore Sun; Charles W. Keenan, St. Louis Republic; Comie Hamlin, New York Tribune; Elliott H. Baker, Cleveland Plain Dealer, and president of the A. N. P. A., and Charles W. Dyer.

At the small tables were the men who make the successful newspapers in cities between the Atlantic and the Pacific and between the Gulf and Canada.

The principal speech of the evening was delivered by the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Daniels, partly because of the similarity with his fellow editors and partly because of the sympathy that was felt on account of the destruction of his newspaper plant by fire, and a remarkably friendly greeting.

The Secretary recalled that he had succeeded Walter H. Page, the new Ambassador to Great Britain, years ago, in the capacity of the State Chronicle, a weekly paper in Raleigh, N. C.

"A few months," said the Secretary, "the act of converting the paper from a weekly to a daily began to buzz in my bonnet. I spoke to Mr. Page about it."

"He said nothing to me, but he told me a story," said the Secretary, "which sold his soul to the devil in consideration of unlimited cash from the devil's treasury."

"The man entered on a career of luxury and extravagance. He dropped millions everywhere, but his drafts on himself were always honored. Then he determined to establish a daily newspaper and he equipped a plant that was a thing of beauty and a work of art, but the devil sent for him."

"If you are trying to establish a daily newspaper," said the Devil, "I will withdraw from the contract. You will exhaust the treasury of Hell before you can get it and, besides, if you try to become the editor of a daily newspaper I will let your soul anyway."

The Secretary said that there had been only two Presidents in the past 25 years who gave evidence from an editorial point of view of peculiar fitness for office. One was Abraham Lincoln, who selected Gideon Welles, an editor, for Secretary of the Navy, and the other was Woodrow Wilson, who named Mr. Daniels for the post. The Secretary said they were wise enough to realize the truth of the principle laid down in "Pinafore":

"No man ever took and never got to see a thing that was not in the papers of the Queen."

"They understood," continued Secretary Daniels, "that what was needed was not so much a man who could talk in the sailor vocabulary of starboard and port (which, by the way, has been the life of the newspaper business with the approval of Admiral Dewey) but was ready called for at the head of the ship as a managing editor, one who understood how to make assignments and to put the right men in the right place at the right time."

"Then the Secretary took up some of the tasks and problems of newspaper journalism."

"The man who enters journalism with the motive of doing good and getting rich may become both a publisher and a writer, but he will never become a journalist," said the Secretary. "He can do more than a man can be a great surgeon who always has a knife in the size of his fist."

"As the surgeon is utterly oblivious to the thought of compensation while he is to save life, just so the real journalist must enter upon his profession with the desire to serve as his consuming passion."

nel Bowles," and to write as he thinks the secret of how the Springfield Republican, published in a comparatively small city, became more influential than any other New England journal.

"He breathed into it a column such a spirit that, though dead, he still speaketh," said the Secretary. "Here was the secret of his power. He did not lock himself up in the stentorian story of a building and write philippics about men and things he had never seen."

"He attacked the evils of his own city and State, even though he offended great and powerful leaders. He didn't criticize the public official down in Washington and let graft and selfishness go on in his own home."

"Concerning the relations between Government and press, Secretary Daniels said:

"One is as necessary to the other as the hand is to the arm. The man in the press gallery is as useful as the man on the legislative floor. He knows the temper of the public. To the official who invites his cooperation he is an invaluable aid. He never violates a confidence. He has served many a great man from errors that would have wrecked a career. He has nipped many an intemperate utterance in the bud."

The Secretary closed his speech with: "Speaking for the new Administration at Washington, let me say it has no policy of concealment. It appeals not to any group or class, but its appeal is to the whole people of America, and it realizes that it will win their approval only as it carries out its pledges and meets the just needs of all the people who oppose privilege and demand only a fair chance. It invites criticism in all that it does. It wishes to have the search light of publicity turned upon all its acts."

The Rev. Charles Alexander Richmond, president of Union College, discussed certain points of similarity that he saw between clergymen and newspaper men. Neither, he said, was as wise as he looked. Both had the faculty of discussing any subject on earth with a tremendous show of wisdom, and both were able to say a very little in a most impressive fashion.

The other speakers were Charles H. Grider, Col. N. G. Osborn, Bernard H. Ridder and Representative Frank L. Greene of Vermont.

PUBLISHERS REORGANIZE.

Incorporate a Membership Association Under New York Laws.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association reorganized yesterday at the second day's meeting of the association in the Waldorf-Astoria. It changed from a commercial corporation to a membership association, incorporated under the laws of this State.

This change had been contemplated for some time and yesterday the members approved the course taken by the officers and executive committee.

The members listened to addresses by union labor leaders. Talks were made by James M. Lynch, president of the International Typographical Union; James J. Freck, secretary of the International Stereotypers and Electrotypers Union; and by Nathan Wolf, president of the International Photo-Engravers Union.

The labor leaders assured the editors and publishers that the relations between the newspapers and the union labor employees were cordial and satisfactory.

Among the miscellaneous topics discussed in the morning and afternoon sessions were the value of cost-consciousness, efficiency experts, interference with the distribution of newspapers by the Post Office Department's consolidation of branches of various post offices, the wisdom of establishing class A and class B memberships, so that the association could take in many small dailies throughout the United States, and zone rates for second class mail.

Today the association will conclude its convention and will elect officers.

McDonough Not Relying on Haffen.
James J. McDonough, who has announced his candidacy for the job of District Attorney of the new Bronx county, said yesterday that he wanted it understood that his interest in the place had nothing to do with Louis F. Haffen's organization.

FROM toe-cap to back-strap, Regal Shoes are "carbon copies" of "Custom Boots."

They have that robust, un-fussed look and that dash without "dash" which challenge and charm your eye in the boots of the most "smartly" shod New Yorkers, Londoners and Parisians with whom it is a credit to be "groomed to a hair."

Etch this thought into your mind,—true fashion is not metropolitan, but cosmopolitan—not insular, but international. True fashion girdles the globe, treading Central Park, Hyde Park and the Bois de Boulogne with the same detached ease.

If you want your shoes to interpret the pre-advanced modes sponsored by the best-dressed set the world over, go to any Regal Shoe Shop or look in any Regal Show Window—to-day.

Wherever the social graces are practised at home or abroad, you'll feel "at home" in a Regal Shoe. And you are not price-punished for its super-smart style that grips the glance.

Pateron Brewers Told the A. F. of L. Leaders Must Keep Hands Off.

LEADERS ARE INDICTED

Four True Bills Found Already and Another Is Expected.

PATERSON, April 24.—Indictments charging leaders of the Industrial Workers of the World with unlawful assembly were voted this afternoon by the Passaic county Grand Jury. It was learned that the indictments would not be handed up to the court until after the investigation of the character of some of the speeches delivered to the striking silk workers by the leaders of the I. W. W. had been completed.

The present indictments and that which will probably be voted to-morrow grow out of the arrest of Big Bill Haywood, Carlo Tresca, Adolph Lesic, Patrick Quinnan and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn during the early days of the strike.

Chief of Police John Bimosa and Captain of Detectives John Tracey were before the Grand Jury this afternoon and gave testimony regarding the speeches of Tresca, Lesic, Quinnan and Miss Flynn. They expect to be called again to-morrow morning to give testimony against Haywood. The four indictments already found and that to be handed up to-morrow will then be handed to the court. The five leaders now under investigation were arrested shortly after the strike began and remained for the Grand Jury. They are now at liberty under bail.

Ewald Koettgen, local organizer for the Industrial Workers of the World, menaced Pateron brewers to-day with the threat that the striking silk workers will refuse to drink beer made in this city unless Assemblyman James Matthews, secretary of the United Trades and Labor Council, ceases his activities in persuading the strikers to join the American Federation of Labor. Matthews is also secretary of the Brewery Workers Union, which is affiliated with the A. F. of L., which organization the I. W. W. leaders accuse of trying to "break the strike."

Notwithstanding the promise to give a Pankhurstian twist to the present afflictions of Pateron the A. F. of L. leaders continued to-day their proselyting among the strikers and it was announced that 250 of them had joined the federation. The leaders say that as soon as they get 5,000 strikers enrolled they will go forward with the settlement negotiations.

I. W. W. pickets kept close watch to-day of Turn Hall, where the enrolments are being made. The I. W. W. organizers have sent protests to the national headquarters against Matthews, but the latter says that two national organizers of the A. F. of L. will come here to help him notwithstanding this protest.

Big Bill Haywood again denounced John Golden of the A. F. of L. to-day, declaring that he was a professional strike breaker and destroyer of delivering the silk workers over to the tender mercies of their employers.

John Burkhardt and his father were held up this morning by five Italians while on their way to work. One of the Italians approached with a club in hand and Burkhardt promptly opened fire with a revolver. He has a permit to carry one.

The Italians ran away, two of them supporting one of their companions, who appeared to have been wounded in the leg.

William Dawson, a fireman at the Cadogen Dyeing Works, received a beating this morning from a crowd of Italians, who attacked him as he was going to work.

Mrs. Rosa Pastor Stokes spoke for nearly an hour to-night in Turn Hall on the problems confronting laboring men and women in their struggle for better wages and working conditions. More than 4,000 strikers, with their women and children, packed themselves into the hall. Mrs. Stokes was introduced in an hour's speech by Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, one of the I. W. W. organizers.

Mrs. Stokes said she did not come to advocate one labor organization as against another and her mention of the A. F. of L. brought hisses and cat-calls.

She urged the strikers to stand firm for their demands and predicted that they would win. She recounted the familiar argument that the brains and brawn of the workers created the wealth of the capitalists and that there should be a division of the rewards.

She was sure the working people of Pateron are in sympathy with the present strike, but that their expressions of sympathy and encouragement are not printed because of the unfriendly attitude of the local newspapers.

New Transfer Rule in Brooklyn.
The Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company has agreed to give transfers to passengers who board the Flatbush-Seventh avenue cars thinking they are going on up Flatbush avenue. The Public Service Commission received many complaints that the signs were misleading and that when once they were on Flatbush-Seventh avenue cars they couldn't change to Flatbush avenue cars without paying a second fare.

To Make GOOD Coffee
—Was once a matter of skill or luck—often a combination of the two.
Today you may count with the certainty of science upon Coffee that is deliciously fragrant, smooth, comforting, and full of that elusive aroma that is the soul of the bean.

The secret lies in the Percolator, and among the best of these is Macy's.
$10.00 Silver-Plated Coffee Percolators at $6.94

These are of six-cup size and are precisely similar (save for the silver plating) to some that are advertised extensively elsewhere at $6.50 in nickel plate.
The body is heavily silver-plated on copper, and the inside has an additional coat of solid tin under the silver.
The Percolators are built in such a way that no coffee dust can be washed into the body of the pot.
Thus there is no cloudy substance in solution, and consequently no bitter taste in your coffee.
Is it not well worth $6.94 to insure perfect coffee every morning for the rest of your life?
And this Percolator will be a decided ornament in your dining room. Remember, it is heavily silver-plated.

ON TIME

Steady improvement is being made in promptness of their passenger traffic movement by the New England Lines, both north and south. At the South Station the time-record for the fast trains from New York is especially interesting. With the Bay State (which, by the way, enjoys the reputation for the best record of any "limited" in the United States) there has not during the current month been a minute's delay in bringing this train into the South Station. In the case of the Merchants train—the entire equipment of which is now all-steel—there have been only two April delays, of one and four minutes, in its arrival at Boston.

Since February 1, tickets for the New Haven's "limited" service between Boston and New York—consisting of the Bay State, Knickerbocker and Merchants, three daily trains each way—have carried a provision for a $1 price-rebate for a delay of over 30 minutes in reaching destination. During this period, however, there have been but 10 "excess" delays, seven of which were in February, and the trains for the most part have been kept practically on time. During the present month, for instance, their delay in arrival at Boston has aggregated but 23 minutes, consisting of seven, eleven, one and four minutes, respectively.
