A Personal Note to Men from THE JOHN WANAMAKER STORE

When Jerome Travers enters a championship event in golf, McLoughlin a tennis tournament, Daniels a swimming event, Kolehmainen a long-distance race, and this year—Brooklyn a National League game, men take notice. The calibre of each has been demonstrated. A performance of more than ordinary interest is expected of each.

Yesterday The Men's Store sold more men's suits than it has sold on any previous day in its history—broke every record for business done in numbers and in amount.

This is made public—

- (1) because—men—and wives of busy men—are entitled to know it;
- (2) because it is of public interest that the judgment of the Wanamaker Store in the purchase of merchandise has been confirmed so signally;
- (3) because it emphasizes a fact some men are not yet aware of—that The Men's Store is a Specialty Store, complete in itself, and separate in every respect but ownership and management, from the rest of the store;
- (4) because it illustrates the quality of service The Men's Store gives.

The event, of course, was an extraordinary one. We could not offer such values every day—though there will be plenty of suits to choose from today. But the same initiative and capacity that, alone of all the men's stores in New York, found these suits and got them for its customers, is exercised in the selection and purchase of all the merchandise that comes in the store.
