

J. F. STEVENS CO. IN RECEIVERS' HANDS

Construction Corporation Is Under Contract for Subway Work.

CITY IS FULLY PROTECTED

Head of Concern Formerly Was Chief Engineer of Panama Canal.

The John F. Stevens Construction Company of 55 Wall street, which is under contract with the city to build section No. 1 of the new Lexington avenue subway, went into the hands of receivers yesterday.

Judge Julius Mayer in the United States District Court appointed Joel Rathbone, vice-president of the National Surety Company at 115 Broadway, and Frederick W. Steile, a lawyer at 68 William street, to take charge of the affairs of the Stevens company.

This action followed the filing by Mr. Stevens and Edward P. Shannon, secretary of the company, of a petition in bankruptcy giving liabilities of $318,743 and assets of $301,551. This step was decided upon at a meeting of the directors of the construction company held last Saturday, when it was made apparent that the company's debts could not be met.

According to information given out yesterday by the Public Service Commission, the subway construction work which was being done by the John F. Stevens Construction Company will be continued by the receivers.

Section 1 of the Lexington avenue subway is known as the Pelham Bay Park branch. It runs from 171st street to Alexander avenue to Southern Boulevard, thence to a point just above 147th street.

City Contract $2,253,281. The value of the city's contract with the Stevens company is $2,253,281. The contract was awarded September 18, 1912, approved by the Board of Estimate on October 17, 1912, and executed October 22, 1912.

The city is fully protected against the failure of the company. The Stevens company has a bond for $65,000 furnished by the National Surety Company. Also the city is entitled to deduct 10 per cent of the amount due to the Stevens company on the presentation of each monthly financial report until the sum of $300,000 has been deducted. After that 10 per cent is to be deducted on each report until the work is completed.

The company also has partially completed contracts for the construction of a dam at Stillman street and the Grand Central connection. These contracts amount to $450,000, of which 60 to 70 per cent has been completed.

The directors of the Stevens company are John F. Stevens, president; Charles B. Eddy, vice-president; Edward P. Shannon, secretary; Morgan J. O'Brien, Jr., Nicholas P. Brady, William J. Joyce, Lattimore Fox and Philip M. Henry.

Mr. Stevens became president of the John F. Stevens Company at its incorporation on February 9, 1912. He came to the presidency of the construction company with an experience of thirty-two years in railway location and construction as well as in operation and management.

Chief Engineer of Canal. He was appointed chief engineer of the Panama Canal by President Roosevelt in 1905, but resigned suddenly in February of 1907, when William Howard Taft, at that time Secretary of War, was directing the fortunes of the canal.

Rumors of a "sneaky" letter to Roosevelt and of a too publicly expressed disapproval of the President's policy of canal construction were circulated at the time, but Mr. Stevens declared that his reasons for resigning were purely personal. He was to have been appointed as chairman of the Isthmian Canal Commission on the retirement of Theodore P. Shonts on March 4, 1907.

Mr. Stevens was at one time James J. Hill's right hand man in the Great Northern Railroad Company. He rose from engineer in 1889 to the chief engineering manager. He went over to the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific in 1903 as chief engineer and was made vice-president within the year.

Later, he was vice-president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad in charge of operation.

COURT UPHOLDS SURROGATE. Request for Writ of Prohibition Against Cobalan Denied.

Surrogate Cobalan appeared yesterday before Supreme Judge Weeks and made an emphatic protest against an application for a writ of prohibition against himself. The writ was asked by David B. Fleming, president of the Yale Laundry Company, who has been retained by William A. Turpin, an officer of the laundry company.

The Surrogate objected to the manner in which George Thoms, attorney for Fleming, had conducted himself, and had ordered Thoms out of the courtroom and directed Fleming to appear without counsel.

Fleming asked for the writ against Surrogate Cobalan on the ground that it was a violation of his constitutional right to deprive him of the benefit of counsel.

Surrogate Cobalan said he had exclusive jurisdiction in the case in question, and that the Supreme Court had no power to interfere. Judge Weeks agreed with the Surrogate and dismissed the proceeding.

PICKPOCKETS TO THE ISLAND. Magistrate House Imposes Four and Six Month Sentences.

Jacob Cohen, 28 years old, of 127 Ludlow street, was sentenced to four months, and Jacob Gutkin, 25 years old, of 23 Suffolk street, to six months in the workhouse by Magistrate House yesterday in the Essex Market court on a charge of pocket-picking. Cohen, who has been convicted several times on the same charge, pleaded guilty, while Gutkin denied he even knew Cohen.

The two men were arrested in the Delancey street subway terminal by Detectives Weeks and Cullen yesterday. The detectives say they saw Cohen and Gutkin, with a third man who escaped, jostle a man carrying a child. They also say Gutkin placed his hand in the man's pocket.

3 SAFES ROBBED IN 2 WEEKS. Burglars Steal $1,180 Jewels and Cash From Candy Store.

Safecrappers entered the candy and sporting goods store of Abraham Haber at 114 Broome street yesterday morning and stole jewelry worth $1,000 and $180 in cash from a safe which they ripped open.

CHAUFFEUR CLAIMS GIRL BRIDE.

Contests Suit to Annul Marriage to Wealthy Doctor's Daughter.

George Lephardt, the twenty-two-year-old chauffeur who on July 2 eloped with Helen Anna Dowsey, a schoolgirl who is the daughter of Dr. George H. Dowsey, a wealthy physician of Great Neck, L. I., claims her as his legal wife. He made another yesterday in the Catholic court proceedings begun by her father, denying that the girl was under 18 years of age when he married her.

James L. Dowsey, the girl's uncle, who represents her father in the proceedings, the latter being her guardian, stated that he would prove that the girl was less than 18. He will oppose any attempt by Lephardt to claim the girl.

Dr. Dowsey, after the runaway marriage, declared that he would prosecute young Lephardt for abandonment if he showed any intention of contesting the annulment proceedings. The doctor and his daughter are now in the Catholic court. Lephardt hasn't been permitted to see his bride since he took her home after the elopement.

HORSE THROWS POLICEMAN. Officer Slightly Injured Goes Home in an Ambulance.

Mounted Policeman Stephen Dowling of the Central Park squad was mounting to go on patrol yesterday when his horse reared and threw him, bruising and badly shaking. An ambulance from Flower Hospital took him home.

ALTERNATIVE WRIT OF MANDAMUS FOR DULFER

Peremptory Order for Retirement on Half Pay Denied to Police Captain.

Supreme Court Justice Scudder in Brooklyn yesterday handed down a decision denying the application of Captain John Dulfer of the Richmond Hill precinct for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel acting Commissioner McKay to retire him on half pay, but directing an alternative writ which will require Capt. Dulfer to bring his case before a jury in the Supreme Court.

Capt. Dulfer was suspended, being charged with having paid Agnes Anderson, the commanding officer of the 52nd Precinct, to remove herself from the jurisdiction of the court, and he claimed that his application for retirement was filed some minutes before his suspension was ordered.

The question of whether he bribed the Anderson girl to absent herself was investigated by the Grand Jury and there was no indictment. The two trials of young Dulfer for robbery resulted in the disagreement of the jury.

Capt. Dulfer, on hearing of the decision, said that he would confer at once with his counsel as to whether he would accept the stay. As Justice Scudder also vacated the stay in the trial of the charges against Dulfer on which he was suspended, the Commissioner may proceed with his trial.

District Attorney Crowley intends to put Arthur Dulfer on trial for the third time and yesterday had Agnes Anderson brought before County Judge Tiernan and asked the second indictment for a bribe or else be confined in Raymond street jail.

"I don't think this girl is getting a square deal," Judge Tiernan told the representative of the District Attorney. "She is not allowed to work or to earn her living in any way. She cannot go where she wants to go and yet she has not committed any crime. I know of no authority by which this girl has been kept. Somebody robs her of her purse, she says. She complains to the police and then she gets locked up and is kept a virtual prisoner. I can't see the justice of it." Judge Tiernan then told the girl that she was a subject of the King of Sweden and to have a representative from the Swedish Consul's office in court to-day and that he would definitely dispose of the case.

AWAIT RAIN TO GO ON STRIKE. Umbrella Makers Pray for Slippy Day, More Pay and Less Work.

With the coming of the next big storm comes the first strike of the umbrella makers. The harder it rains the harder will be the strike. The longer the rain lasts the more determined will the strikers be. Let that storm be never so unheralded the low murmurings of its approach will be as thunder compared to the stealthy coming of this blow to industry and comfort. Everything is ready but the rain!

At least so came the word yesterday from the organizers of the United Hebrew Trades union, who have today generally organized the umbrella makers. The new union says the cost of living is too high, that the men should have higher wages and shorter hours and nothing but union men for their associates. It is said 5,000 men will go out. They are eager for a slippy day.

IMPOSES INSTALMENT FINE. Last Chauffeur Forgets Magistrate Mails Him $5 a Week.

Payment of a fine in instalments, Magistrate House thinks, will keep a sneaky chauffeur in mind of his punishment and at the same time save him from going to jail, so he told Isidore Wein of 121 Broome street yesterday in pay in that way.

The Magistrate only missed being run down the other day by inches as he was crossing the Bowery on his way to Essex Market court, where he had to give his experience fresh in mind he fined Wein $25 yesterday when the chauffeur was charged with driving through the Bowery at twenty-four miles an hour. Wein did not have $25 and was told to pay $5 down and $5 every Monday for four weeks.

MISS NICOLL IN AUTO WRECK. Lawyer's Daughter Turns Car Into Ditch to Avoid Train.

SOUTHAMPTON, L. I., Aug. 11.—Miss Josephine Nicoll, daughter of De Laurence Nicoll, escaped being hit by a Long Island train this afternoon by driving her automobile into a ditch, where it overturned. She was thrown out and was slightly injured.

The accident happened at the Bridgehampton crossing. With Miss Nicoll was Miss Eugenia Philbin, daughter of the Supreme Court Justice. She was unhurt, but the automobile was wrecked. Miss Philbin didn't see the train approaching.

J. C. ANDERSON LEFT $800,000. Tobacco Merchant Willed Most to His Daughter and Son.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 11.—The will of John C. Anderson, a former tobacco merchant of New York, filed in this city to-day, disposing of his estate, approximately $800,000. About $100,000 is given to his servants and about $5,000 is to go for benevolent purposes. The sum of $45,000 is to be divided equally among three grandchildren, Miss Elsie Anderson of this city, Randolph Ingersoll of Los Angeles and John C. Anderson of New Jersey. The residue of the estate is ordered to be divided between his daughter, Mrs. Alice M. Ingersoll of Los Angeles, his son Harry Anderson, who died in New Jersey a few months ago.

PSYCHIC HEALER IN TOMBS FOR TEN DAYS

Astrological Herb Specialist Treats Women Detectives and Comes to Grief.

WOULDN'T PAY $50 FINE Wonder Worker's Time Isn't Worth $5 a Day, Even Though He Reads Minds.

Introducing Dr. V. A. Jahnmado, "Hindu astrological herb specialist and psychic clairvoyant," formerly of 218 West Fourteenth street, who is now in the Tombs serving a ten day sentence.

Dr. Jahnmado was a good doctor, but he didn't have Hindu patients—not until Mrs. Isabella Goodwin, detective, and Miss Adele D. Priess, acting for the County Medical Association, called one day and had their palms read. Dr. Jahnmado was held in $500 bonds to keep the peace for doing this. But the two women had asked for medical treatment and got it, so the doctor is serving ten days.

"My specialty," explained the doctor, "is restoring to health those who are unfortunately maimed physically or mentally through influences that are imperceptible to the undeveloped eye." Miss Priess and Mrs. Goodwin called at the doctor's rooms July 13.

Doctor, I have brought my friend," began Mrs. Goodwin, pointing to Miss Priess. "She has headaches and is afraid to cross the streets for fear of being run over."

"I have headaches," chirped Miss Priess. "I cannot sleep at night and I do not like to go out alone."

Made Women Detectives Laugh. The doctor is bald with the exception of a tuft of hair which sticks up straight as an Arizona cactus on the topmost point of his head. He stroked this tuft so methodically that the two women detective seekers had to laugh. The doctor did not like that.

"The spirits," he cautioned them. "Always the spirits. You frighten them away. When did you say you were born?"

"January 31," replied Miss Priess. "Ah! you are born under the planet of Aquarius. We Hindus do not bury our dead; we embalm them. We have the gift of second sight and can tell by looking at a person what the trouble is. I treat you by herbs astrologically prepared."

He took Miss Priess's hand and examined it. "Yes, it is right that you should be afraid of vehicles, for if you do not live the time allotted to you it will be by means that you will be carried away. You are suffering from hypochondria. Every nerve in your cerebrum and cortex is saturated with hallucinations. I noticed that you were nervous when I came into the room. You also have palpitation of the heart very bad. I can cure you in four treatments."

Mysterious Brown Liquid. He left the room then and there was heard the rattling of utensils in another room. He returned promptly with a bottle of brown liquid, each containing a brown liquid. The two women each took a glass and drank the contents.

Turning to Mrs. Goodwin the Hindu physician said: "I prepared that liquid for you so you wouldn't get jealous of your friend. You will have a few pains after taking the medicine, but that is the way to get rid of the poisons in your system. Do you want a little liquor to take away the bad taste?"

The patients refused. Two days later the two returned and did feel better. Miss Priess said she had succeeded in getting a position and she wanted more of the medicine. The bottles were taken home and kept in a cool place. The same day Detectives Jessup and Bein arrested Dr. Jahnmado for telling fortunes and practicing medicine without a license. Yesterday he was arraigned in Special Sessions Court and was sentenced to a fine of $50 or the alternative of ten days in jail. He decided that his time wasn't worth $5 a day.

HIKERS' COATS WARM HORSES. Suffragists Suffer Cold on Boat, but Protect the Animals.

NEWBURGH, Aug. 11.—The suffragists who are "hiking" on horseback used their own coats to cover their horses after they boarded a steambot in New York this morning. There were no blankets aboard and the horses had to get along as the women sat in the cold in order that their horses might not get chilled after their rather exciting ride to the steamer.

None of the hikers had ever ridden through city streets before and the horses were frightened by constant shouting. At Forty-second street it was decided to change the route from Fifth avenue to Eighth avenue. At Twenty-third street Mrs. de Forest's horse, Senator Root, which had been rearing continually and was far behind, suddenly darted away and was soon leading in a gallop.

At Seventeenth street the troop went over to Second avenue and then at Eleventh street rode over to West street, where the roar of river front traffic again frightened the animals. Truck drivers relieved themselves of laughter at the expense of the stablemen took charge of them, but did not want to close the doors. The hikers attended to that themselves before they took their coats from their saddle packs and put the coats on the horses. Instead of sugar the horses were treated to chocolate bars, which were bought on board.

A meeting was held in the cabin of the boat this evening. Mrs. de Forest made an address. Mrs. Flint amused the audience with clever dialect impersonations. The women looked forward longingly to their arrival at Plunkitt, being tired after the day's experiences.

EVELYN THAW FREED IN COURT. Justice Green Dismisses Contempt Charge Against Her.

Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw before Justice Green in the City Court yesterday pleaded that she turned over to the city the order directing her to appear in supplementary proceedings, and did not believe she would be in contempt of court when she sailed for London on May 3 last. She said she found out her mistake a week later.

Justice Green dismissed the contempt order. The supplementary proceedings were brought on a judgment obtained by the Gorham Company, silversmiths.

HERO-SLAYER IS OUT ON BAIL. Spends a Week in Jail After Aiding a Girl on the Street.

William Cuff, the Carnegie medal hero who killed a man he found attacking a girl at First avenue and Sixty-fifth street on Tuesday, was released on bail yesterday. Cuff says Joseph Branner, the dead man, threatened to shoot when he approached in response to the girl's screams. Cuff knocked Branner down and he died in Flower Hospital without regaining consciousness.

WASHINGTON LAND GOES UP, DOWN AND SIDEWAYS

Lakes Reported Dry and River Beds Changed in Former Volcanic Section. TACOMA, Wash., Aug. 11.—State Fire Warden Ferris, who received a letter last week from his Skamania county deputy saying that the surface of a forty acre tract of school land was moving about in an unaccountable manner, hurried to Stevens, in that district. He found a small valley below his house, and the patch is now on an elevation considerably higher than his home. The farmer laid pipes, it is said, from the lake to a tank and from a tank to the house. Three sections of the pipe had to be removed because house and tank are moving toward each other, according to the reports made to Ferris.

Several lakes have gone dry, it is said, and their beds have risen so that now there are hills in them. Along the banks of a stream ran a county road, and Ferris says that now water is running in the roadbed and the public creek bottom is elevated above the roadway. There has appeared in the center of one lake an island of oozy lake bottom soil, according to Ferris. One farmer is said to have come to clear his land because an elevation appeared beside his farm and tumbled off, covering up his stumps. Huge boulders and clods are said to have been broken by the depression of one little area and the elevation of a continuous one.

Trees are reported as bent asunder. A young forest is said to be a tangled mass in places because of the diversity of angles at which the trees are standing as a result of the earth's changes. Travelers say that they encountered many crevasses, while hills are made low valleys are elevated, straight places turned crooked and crooked ones changed entirely in shape in the district. The elevation of St. Helens is estimated to be 10,000 feet high and is reported to have been in eruption in 1843.

SET DATE BUT NOT PLACE. Army-Navy Football Game to Be on Saturday, November 29. ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 11.—The Saturday after Thanksgiving Day, which falls this year on November 29, has been selected as the date for the next Army-Navy football game, though the representatives of the naval and military academies have not yet settled upon the place for playing the game. The Army is particularly dissatisfied with Franklin Field, Philadelphia, its representatives claiming that the ground is not sufficiently level and that many Army officers are compelled to take undesirable seats. They propose that the game either be played regularly in New York, or that it alternate between Annapolis and West Point. Naval people consider New York too far away and hold that Annapolis and West Point could not take care of the crowd. Though no agreement as to place has been reached, naval people expect the game to be played.

NORFOLK

NORFOLK New ARROW COLLAR HIGH IN THE BACK AND LOW IN FRONT - 2 for 25c. Clott, Peabody & Co., Inc., Makers.

Strike Is Not Accepted as Excuse for Raincoat Maker. A $50 fine was imposed on Jacob Freedgood of Freedgood & Sweetland, raincoat manufacturers at 43 West Sixty-fifth street, in Special Sessions court yesterday when Inspector Northrup of the State Labor Department told Justice Zeller, Moss and Herrman that he had found eight people at work in the Freedgood establishment during working hours with the doors locked.

Freedgood made the excuse that there was a strike in progress at his place and the doors had been locked to keep out trouble makers. Nathan Plitzky, who has a shirt-waist factory at 71-73 Goerck street, was fined $100 by Magistrate House in the Essex Market court yesterday for leaving the factory door locked.
