

Mississippi trains were made up at Natchez and rushed to Harrison to bear the wounded to a hospital. Men boarded the train at every station and every one was armed. Fully fifty men from towns nearby were in Harrison by 7 o'clock this morning, and the scene around the station, bristling with shotguns and revolvers, resembled a border town in the early days.

Townpeople swelled their numbers and the demand for a lynching was insistent. For several hours the house where the negroes had taken shelter had been surrounded. The sun rose and the besiegers set about their work with grim determination. From behind the cover of the station men rushed to a large rock pile on one side of the railroad track.

Using this pile as a ramp fully a hundred men began pouring volley after volley into the front of the house. Another crowd crept around to a store to one side of the house and began pouring broadsides into it. The crack of rifles and the pop of pistols lasted an hour and a half.

Finally Thad Graydon, an ante-bellum negro, under promise of $10 boldly entered the house to induce the negroes to surrender. A few minutes afterward he appeared at the door and signalled that his mission had been successful.

Will Jones, Johnson Prophet and Bob Patterson came out and threw up their hands. Their supply of ammunition had been exhausted. Patterson and Jones had taken refuge under beds and one of the shots had entered Patterson's shoulder.

Seeing his companions throwing themselves at the mercy of the posse, Walter Jones crept from his position under the cotton oil mill and beat a hasty flight up the railroad track. A hail of bullets was poured upon his retreating figure. One grazed his head, inflicting a slight flesh wound. He dropped and the posse was upon him.

Soldiers Saw Lynching. The special bearing militiamen from Natchez arrived at this time. The soldiers were politely but firmly told to stand aside and they drew up in military order while the lynching was done.

Will Jones was dragged to the railroad platform and placed on a baggage truck. One of the party climbed a telephone pole, another carefully tied the noose. The rope was pulled taut and the truck pushed away.

Walter Jones was hoisted up to a crossbeam of the coal chute within a stone's throw of the depot. He met death without emotion like his brother. The pleas of leading citizens saved the necks of the two other prisoners, who left immediately for Natchez with the National Guardsmen.

Gov. Brewer Finds Quiet. Gov. Brewer reached here to-night to find everything quiet. Will Jones was 21 years old and Walter 17. Both were released from jail on shooting charges only last week.

MORE BONI DISCOVERIES. Houses of the Time of Sulla and the Gracchi Uncovered. Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN, Rome, Sept. 28.—Commander Boni, the archeologist, has made important discoveries in the Domus Flavia on the Palatine hill. They include several houses of the time of Sulla and the Gracchi, while underneath the house of Livius he found a subterranean apartment filled with remnants of all kinds in all centuries, including many utensils left behind by the barbarians who burned Rome.

A TWO-SIDED INVESTMENT
The Owner who engages in a building enterprise makes two investments. He invests not only in the building itself, but also in the Contractor he employs. How true this is is apparent from the fact that the success of a building largely depends upon the Contractor's ability to finish within contract cost and contract time. We are famous for doing both.

FEINBERG TELLS WHY HE PICKED RICH JURY
Says He Wishes to Provide Precedent in Schmidt Inquest Case.
WANTS POSITIVE IDENTITY Attorney for Priest Declares He Knows No Reason for Proceedings.

Coroner Israel A. Feinberg has served summonses on thirty-eight of the best known business men in New York city, requiring them to be present at the Coroner's court next Friday as a panel from which to select a jury for the inquest into the death of Anna Amuller, the rectory maid whom Hans Schmidt has confessed he murdered.

The Coroner's reason for calling so exceptional a jury, he said last night, is to provide a precedent in case any question of the corpus delicti—the identity of the body—should come up. Coroner Feinberg believes that future juries would be guided by the decision of this jury. This is the jury list:

Theodore P. Shontz, whom Coroner Feinberg has asked to be foreman; Robert L. Gerry, Charles D. Dickey, Harry Payne Whitney, Henry Siegel, Latham Walton Reed, William J. Riker, George W. Fairchild, J. P. Morgan, Howard Perry Weil, Mortimer Regensburg, Vincent Astor, George Gould, August Belmont, Cornelius Vanderbilt, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., E. J. Greenhut, William Durland, Eugene Hale, Jr., E. Hicks Herriek, George F. Herriman, E. E. Loomis, William Rhinelanders Stewart, James M. Pratt, Edwin S. Harston, Thomas J. Harrett, Samuel Sloan, August V. Healy, George F. Baker, Eugene H. Paul, Andrew Freedman, Lewis Cass Ledyard, Charles D. Barney, John I. Waterbury, James Ragan, George P. Boldt, Marcus Loew and Jacob B. Prager.

Both Assistant District Attorney James A. Delehanty, who represents the State, and Alphonse G. Koebke, Schmidt's attorney, said yesterday that the proceedings before this jury would be very brief. Ten minutes was Mr. Koebke's estimate, while Mr. Delehanty thought that it would not take more than half an hour.

"I see no reason for a jury of this sort," said Mr. Koebke. "The inquest could be over in ten minutes, and I think they will be enough. I am sure that I shall not ask any questions at all."

The prosecution is strict in respect to the identity of the body. Assistant District Attorney Delehanty held, "The girl who worked with Anna Amuller at St. Boniface's rectory will identify the body and even without that Schmidt's confession would be enough. The proceedings before the Coroner will consist of only the formal proof that the crime was committed in this county, that the body is that of Anna Amuller and that there is reason to believe Hans Schmidt committed the crime. It ought not to take more than half an hour to establish this."

BOY STEALS $1,400 TO BE OXFORD STUDENT
Robs Cleveland Store and Starts Out to Emulate "Tom Brown."
CAUGHT ON A TRAIN HERE

Wilbur Foerste Planned to Sail on the Mauretania for England.
Wilbur Foerste, a seventeen-year-old high school boy, robbed the Cleveland department store, for which he worked as an errand boy, of $1,400 last Saturday and was arrested here with the money in his pocket on a New York Central train yesterday afternoon.

He told a SUN reporter and the detectives who caught him that it had been his ambition to enter Oxford University, and that when he suddenly found $1,400 in cash in his hands he couldn't resist temptation. He had planned to sail on the Mauretania at 1 A. M. Wednesday. He had determined, he said, to go straight to Oxford and to enter a preparatory school which could fit him for a university course.

Young Foerste was neatly dressed in a black suit, black and white checked cap and polished patent leather shoes. He is a slender lad, undersized if anything, with a pale complexion and a small, narrow head. His best features are his eyes, which are blue and frank. As he told his story they filled with tears, but he kept a grip on himself and didn't appear to be dismayed over his situation.

On Saturday morning an assistant cashier of William Taylor's department store at 600 Euclid avenue, Cleveland, called young Foerste and handed him a package of currency containing $1,400 in bills of various denominations, from $1 to $50.

Teak Train for New York. The boy was told to take it to the office of the chief cashier. Instead of doing so, he crammed the money in his pocket, slipped from the store and after making a few purchases boarded a train for New York which left Cleveland at 7:45 o'clock on Saturday night.

The store people quickly discovered their loss and notified the Cleveland police department. Chief R. K. Rowe, figuring that young Foerste would make for New York, telegraphed to the detective bureau here a description of the fugitive, with a suggestion that he was probably on the 3:30 train.

The black and white checked cap figured in the description and it was because of the cap that Foerste was caught so easily. The message from the Cleveland police did not reach Lieut. Brown at the detective bureau until 9:15 P. M. yesterday. Brown telephoned to the East Thirty-fifth street station and Detectives Anthony Giunta and George Andrews were told to get to the Grand Central station as quickly as possible.

When they got there they found that the train was twenty-six minutes late. Otherwise they would have been a few minutes late and young Foerste might easily have lost himself. The detectives figured that they would have time enough to go up to the 125th street station and catch the Cleveland train there. The plan worked perfectly. The train slid into the 125th street station five minutes after they got there. They showed their badges and stroled through the train.

Broadway Saks & Company at 34th Street
Commemorative of our 11th Anniversary today, we announce these Memorable Opportunities for Men!

Saks $25 Silk Lined Fall Overcoats 200 only at $18
$25 overcoats at $18 are common enough in print—but here's one that's so!
It is a tradition that a Saks $25 garment costs $25, the reason being it is worth it. Only once a season can a man hope to avail himself of a Saks garment at less than the customary price. But the circumstances are such in this instance that we have decided to make an exception to our policy.
It is a conservative model, knee length, made of black and of Oxford fabric, and silk lined all through. Be assured, however, that its style far transcends anything which can be conveyed by a cut-and-dried recital of the specifications. It is a handsome looking garment, cut with the contemplative skill of master tailors, and articulate with the unspoken mysteries of style!

$1.50 Blue Gray Mocha Gloves, $1.15
This is the real blue gray Mocha, which is the only kind to have.
They are of a rich, bluish-gray persuasion, with a soft, submissive, velvet finish, and are smart with any color combination you may wear. All sizes and regular and cadet fingers. A handsome value.

Men's $95 Raccoon Fur Coats at $65
If these were not such tremendous values we should have more than 75 to offer.
These raccoon coats will wear handsomely, without shedding or falling on lack-lustre days. Made in a double-breasted model, with shawl collar, two side pockets and cuffs. An extraordinary opportunity.

$2 and $3 Imported Walking Sticks at $1
The selection includes German malaccas, with heavy sterling bands and horn ferrules, and sticks of castania, walnut, and boiled cherry woods, with inlaid trimmings of sterling silver. Also, at $1, two-piece canes that can be stowed in a grip, and others with a cigar lighter in the handle.

$40 Wallaby Fur Coats, $20
35 of these, so if your number is 36 you will be too late!
High grade wallaby fur, in fact the best that a wallaby can do. Made in a double-breasted, shawl collar model, on roomy lines, and an ideal garment for motor use. Motor Apparel Dept., Sixth Floor.

Men's $5 Derbies at $1.95
A headliner from headquarters!
2,000 lightweight Derbies made by the most famous hatter of the age. So remarkable is the sale of this maker's hats that competitive Derbies are comparatively a secret, and enjoy what may be regarded as a purely confidential sale.
They are light-headed, thanks to the hard-headed firm that makes them. They are flexible, too, which means they are a source of comfort as well as protection. Blocked in half a score new models, affording plenty of variation in crown and brim, though there is none in the quality. Finished with imported leather bands, and crowded fore and aft with snap and style. All black. Main Floor.

SERMON ON HANS SCHMIDT.
The Rev. Father Prout Denies Church is Responsible for Slayer.
The Rev. Father John T. Prout of St. John's Catholic Church took up in his sermon yesterday the case of Hans Schmidt, a priest who is now being held in the Tombs on a charge of murder. He resented the idea that the Church is to be held responsible for such a man and pointed out the impossibility of any organization protecting itself against such a man so long as the matter of choice remains with the individual.
The one great fact brought out by the case of Hans Schmidt, said Father Prout, "is the absolute freedom of the human mind, in spite of all its discipline, training and safeguards. It is in this absolute freedom that the ever lurking mischief and harm lies."
"There is nothing in the teaching of the Catholic Church, with its doctrines of charity and the doing unto others what you would be done by, that would teach him to become a murderer or a counterfeiter, no more than there was in the early admonitions of his mother, who in the selfishness of her heart was willing to give him to the service of God. The human will in these cases is like dynamite, good or bad, according to the purpose of the user."
"Such a person is like the wolf in sheep's clothing. He may seemingly and falsely belong to the fold of the Catholic Church, but in reality he is its most dangerous enemy, who ought to be outside of it."

EMPLOYER MAY HELP HIM.
Says He Will See That Foerste Gets Higher Education.
CLEVELAND, Sept. 28.—Wilbur Foerste, who has been arrested in New York, is wanted here for the theft of $1,400 from the department store of the William Taylor & Son Company.
An official of the department store company after learning of the boy's reason for taking the money declared that if he found the lad mentally fitted for a higher education he would see that he got it and would aid him in every way possible.
"Had Foerste asked for it or had I known he wanted a higher education and was mentally fitted for it, I would have seen that he got it," said he. "It would not have been necessary for him to have taken that money to go to Oxford. I will stand by that even now, if the boy impresses me as being right and in earnest."
Tandstools Kill Newark Boy.
NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 28.—Elmer Schroeder, 3 years old, is dead and his brother George, aged 6, is seriously ill at his home at 45 Pinley street, here, from eating tandstools in mistake for mushrooms.

SUBWAY PICKPOCKETS BUSY.
Seventy-five So Far Caught at Bowling Green.
The seventy-fifth pickpocket arrested in the Bowling Green subway station, which has lately become the favorite field for this class of thief, was arraigned before Magistrate House in the Tombs police court yesterday. He was Michael George, 37 years old, of 46 Thompson street, and after pleading guilty he was committed to the Tombs in default of $3,000 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury.
George was caught by Detective Clare of the Greenwich street station and Special Officer Reidel of the Interborough on their nightly watch for pickpockets. They noticed him sit down beside a man asleep on a bench, cut the man's right hand trousers pocket and extract a dollar bill. The victim said he was Germino Mangani of 529 Carroll street, Brooklyn.

HAYTIAN ARBITRATOR HERE.
Belgian Senator on Way to Settle German Claims.
Senator Louis de Sadeleur of Belgium, who arrived yesterday by the Red Star liner Lapland, is bound for Hayti to act as chairman of a board of arbitration that will make an effort to settle claims against Hayti brought by the German Government, and arising from the numerous revolutions on the island.
There are three members of the board, one appointed by the German Reichstag, one by the Haytian Government, and Senator de Sadeleur, who was named by the King of the Belgians. The board will meet in Hayti on October 16.

DETECTIVE KILLS NEGRO ROBBER.
OMAHA, Sept. 28.—Louis Wesley, a negro robber, was shot and killed here today by Detective Arthur Cunningham in a fight, in which the negro shot and seriously wounded Cunningham and Detective Ferris. Cunningham was shot in the leg, but he was able to shoot the Maurer Code when the fight occurred.

NEVER IN TROUBLE BEFORE.
"It's the truth," said the boy. "I was never in trouble before in my life. In Cleveland I have never had a chance to get a university education. I got up to the second year in high school and then I had to quit and go to work. It was up to me to help support the family. My father is a structural iron worker. We live at 1168 East 158th street. I made $7 a week in the store and did my part toward the family.
"I thought I could get away easily. I
