

SULZER SOUGHT MURPHY'S HELP

"I'll Do What's Right," the Governor's Message of Surrender.

A. A. RYAN "FORGOT IT"

Appeals to State Leaders After Impeachment Were Futile.

SARECKY TAKES BLAME

Secretary Says He Vouched for the Campaign Statement.

MRS. SULZER MAY TESTIFY

Told Commander Josephthal the Harris & Fuller Stocks Belonged to Her.

ABRAHAM, Oct. 7.—Strange testimony for and against William Sulzer made this one of the most extraordinary days of the impeachment trial.

In the morning Allyn A. Ryan, supplementing his story of Monday about Mr. Sulzer's attempted appeal to William Barnes, Jr., to have the Republican Senators stop the trial, said that the Governor begged him to have the late Justice Neill get Charles E. Murphy of Tammany Hall to influence the Democratic Senators to do the same thing.

"I told the Governor I would see what I could do and I went out in the country and forgot it," said Thomas F. Ryan's son, as if he enjoyed it.

In the afternoon young Louis A. Sarecky, formerly Mr. Sulzer's secretary, swore that he signed his employer's name on campaign checks, took care of the accounts, was responsible for the erroneous campaign statement and that he himself wrote and signed the letter purporting to come from the Governor which requested the Mutual Alliance Trust Company to accept Sarecky's endorsements on Mr. Sulzer's checks.

He shouldered the blame for the entire series of transactions for which the Governor is charged with perjury in the impeachment articles.

Mrs. Sulzer Likely to Appear.

The third session of the day involved the name of Mrs. Sulzer. The witness was Lieutenant-Commander Louis M. Josephthal, the Governor's rival and the one who testified that Mrs. Sulzer remembered that Big Four and 299 of American Smelters' flag in her husband's home in the brokerage house of Harris & Fuller was really hers and that Mr. Sulzer had been borrowing money on them. A few minutes later the Governor asked Mr. Josephthal to pay $25,000 and to hand over the receipt, which was done. In relation to this testimony it should be remembered that on the night of the impeachment in the Assembly Mrs. Sulzer told Senator Palmer that she was to blame for stock speculation charged against the Governor, also that on the order which Mr. Josephthal presented to Harris & Fuller for transfer of the account was written "William Sulzer for Mrs. Sulzer." A third link in the story was supplied by Mr. Josephthal himself. Mrs. Sulzer's appearance on the witness stand before the end of the week seems certain.

If the Sarecky and Josephthal revelations helped the Governor's cause, a ruling by Judge Cullen and a subsequent restraining order by the rest of the court may set a serious setback. The ruling was that no testimony tending to show that the Governor refused to accept campaign gifts will be admitted.

Spurned Beardley's $25,000.

The specific testimony to which this applied was that of Samuel A. Beardley, a New York lawyer and attorney for the so-called water power trust in central New York. The defense hoped to show that he had offered to give Sulzer a campaign contribution of $25,000 and that the Governor had spurned it. The prosecution protested and Mr. Beardley was allowed.

Louis A. Sarecky began his testimony at 2 o'clock this afternoon. His examination began half an hour later by John B. Stanchfield, but he returned in the morning, and may last all day.

Sarecky a Good Witness.

Sarecky says he is 27 years old. He looks like a high school boy. He told his story with consistent self-possession. He replied so smoothly to the direct examination of Harvey D. Hinman that spectators were saying, "Oh, he's all right now, but watch him squirm when Stanchfield gets hold of him."

Mr. Stanchfield, however, has probably never met a more serenely poised witness. Even when he heard himself called a forger Sarecky was not riled. Most of his answers were readily given and clear cut in expression. From the viewpoint of human interest his two hours in the witness chair were among the most engaging episodes of the trial.

Such admissions as he made hurt himself rather than Gov. Sulzer. He portrayed himself as an expert copyist of Mr. Sulzer's name with pen and pencil. He wrote "William Sulzer" again and again for the court's inspection to prove that he could do it well enough to fool a bank.

One of his charges was that Matthew Horan, secretary of the Frawley committee, which collected the evidence for impeachment, helped him to prepare the campaign statement which the impeach-

Continued on Seventh Page.

CATCH REV. DR. J. C. RICHMOND.

Impeachment Managers Serve Subpoena on Pulpit Orator.

ALBANY, Oct. 7.—The Rev. Dr. J. Chandler Richmond of Philadelphia, who in a sermon on Sunday called Tammany leaders, who are opposing Sulzer "moral degenerates," was subpoenaed in a Capitol corridor today as a witness for the impeachment managers.

They said they would compel him to tell what he knew, if anything, to substantiate his charges and if he refused would have him up for contempt.

CONCEALED DOG UNDER COAT.

Byron D. Chandler Accused of Trying to Evade Customs Regulations.

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun.
LONDON, Oct. 7.—Byron D. Chandler of New York, husband of Grace La Rue, the actress, now appearing in vaudeville here, was fined $10 and costs in the Folkestone court today for a breach of the regulations regarding the importation of dogs into England.

The prosecution stated that Mr. Chandler, landing from a steamer from Boulogne, hid a little dog under his overcoat. When he stumbled and the dog fell from his lap, the dog fell from his lap. Mr. Chandler denied that he had any intention of evading the customs regulations. He added that the dog was worth $5,000.

Byron D. Chandler is a son of George Byron Chandler of Manchester, N. H., who was president of the Amoskeag National Bank, the largest bank in New Hampshire. In 1902 he married Grace Estelle Stecher of New York, from whom he was divorced in 1909. Later he married Grace La Rue, the actress. He has figured in a number of scandals and was known at one time as the "Million Dollar Kid." About three weeks ago the apartments of the Chandlers in London were entered by burglars, who took jewelry valued at $7,000.

NOTED SURGEON'S SON STRANGELY VANISHES

Disappears After Leaving His Father Last Monday at Hotel Manhattan.

Arthur Harris, 15 years old, whose father, Dr. William L. Harris of Providence, R. I., is one of the most noted surgeons of New England, disappeared from the Hotel Manhattan last Monday morning at 7 o'clock. The last glimpse of him was had by the elevator boy who took him from his father's room. Since then all efforts of detectives and friends to get trace of him have failed.

Dr. Harris is confident that the boy did not run away and that the middle of the boy's disappearance must be solved on some other theory.

The boy left his father's room to get a morning newspaper and to await the coming of his father on the ground floor to go to breakfast.

Dr. Harris and his son arrived here from Providence on Sunday evening. The boy had spent part of the summer in Lander Camp, Ellipt, Me., and was delighted at the prospect of returning to the Hotel Manhattan last Monday morning.

He had what he wanted for what he believed an ideal site for an ideal store in an ideal shopping district.

Two years ago an addition was made to the third Altman store on the site of the old Knicker Art galleries, at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street. At present a third addition, twelve stories high, is being built on the Madison street end of the block, and when the work is completed will cover the entire block bounded by Fifth and Madison avenues and Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth streets.

The addition will cost $1,500,000. It will be of Italian Renaissance and will correspond with the old building in every detail but height. The total cost of the enlarged Altman store, together with the land, it is said, will be in the neighborhood of $12,000,000.

Devoted to Business.

Mr. Altman was a bachelor, but did not belong to clubs. He was most reserved but was said by his intimate friends to be one of the most sociable and heartiest of men.

The first thought of his mind and heart was his business, and it was his long years of devotion to it that broke down his health more than once.

He disliked publicity of any kind and it has been said that he turned away hundreds of representatives of trade papers and magazines anxious to get interviews and sketches of his successful life.

Mr. Altman found his greatest delight in his hours away from business in the enjoyment of a large and very remarkable collection of old masters, which he added to his residence.

He also had many Chinese porcelains, rugs and crystals of surpassing beauty.

Mr. Altman's collection of Rembrandts, fourteen in number, is believed to be the largest in the country. It includes portraits of Rembrandt's mother, his son Titus, his wife and himself. For two of his Rembrandts Mr. Altman is said to have paid $200,000 each.

In 1912 Mr. Altman purchased Velasquez's portraits of King Philip IV. of Spain and his Minister, Olivares. It was said on excellent authority that the two portraits cost him nearly $1,000,000.

In the same year Mr. Altman added Fra Filippo Lippi's "Madonna and Child" to his collection.

In 1908 Mr. Altman acquired a valuable Rembrandt in the portrait of an old woman wearing a white ruff and a half moon cap. He got three more Rembrandts the next year, one a portrait of Oscar Reisinger, another picture called "Man With Magnifying Glass" and his pendant, "The Woman With a Red Book." At the same time he purchased Ruys-

AN ANCIENT BOTTLE world's famous tonic, delicious, favoring, all deserts.—Ad.

Continued on Fifth Page.

BENJAMIN ALTMAN DIES AT HOME HERE

Fifth Avenue Merchant and Art Collector III for a Month.

BEGAN WITH SMALL SHOP

His Collection of Old Masters One of the Finest in World.

Benjamin Altman, president of B. Altman & Co., whose store in Fifth avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth streets, is one of the show places of the city, died yesterday afternoon at his residence, 626 Fifth avenue. He was in his seventy-third year. His death was ascribed to kidney trouble and heart failure.

As soon as word of his death reached the management of the store shortly after 3 o'clock the clerks were told to stop making sales and all the doors were locked. The store will remain closed until Saturday.

Funeral services will be held at the Temple Emanuel, 615 Fifth avenue and Forty-third street, on Friday morning at 9:30 o'clock. The interment will be private.

Mr. Altman spent the summer at Narragansett Pier and came back in poor health. He was unable to go to his office in the store after his return.

Mr. Altman was one of the most successful merchants in the city, developing the business of a very small shop into one of the finest stores in the world. As a relaxation from the pressure of business Mr. Altman indulged his passion for world famous paintings and his art gallery at his Fifth avenue home contains, according to competent authorities, one of the finest private collections in the world.

A New Yorker by Birth.

He was born in New York on July 12, 1840. He attended the public schools, and with his brother, Morris, founded a store for his father in the afternoon. He left school at the age of 12 and after the death of his father in 1853 the brothers concluded to continue his business under the name of Altman Brothers. They had a small store at Third avenue and Tenth street.

Morris Altman died about a dozen years after the partnership with Benjamin was 39 years old. The business was not considered prosperous at the time, even for a small store, but Benjamin believed that it had a future of its making and started out on a larger scale.

The firm of B. Altman & Co. started business in a small place in Sixth avenue, between Twenty-third and Twenty-fifth streets, about thirty-five years ago. Five years later, long before the uptown movement began, the company moved to Sixth avenue and Nineteenth street.

Business Grew Rapidly.

Its business grew rapidly and the firm found it necessary to make frequent additions to its building, land being acquired until the store became one of the most imposing ones of its day.

In 1907 the company erected its handsome department store on the east side of Fifth avenue between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth streets. The first parcel of land for the site corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-fifth streets was purchased by Mr. Altman back in 1885. In 1901 Mr. Altman acquired another lot in the middle of the block and in his purchases from such widely separated owners until he had what he wanted for what he believed an ideal site for an ideal store in an ideal shopping district.

Two years ago an addition was made to the third Altman store on the site of the old Knicker Art galleries, at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-fourth street. At present a third addition, twelve stories high, is being built on the Madison street end of the block, and when the work is completed will cover the entire block bounded by Fifth and Madison avenues and Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth streets.

The addition will cost $1,500,000. It will be of Italian Renaissance and will correspond with the old building in every detail but height. The total cost of the enlarged Altman store, together with the land, it is said, will be in the neighborhood of $12,000,000.

Devoted to Business.

Mr. Altman was a bachelor, but did not belong to clubs. He was most reserved but was said by his intimate friends to be one of the most sociable and heartiest of men.

The first thought of his mind and heart was his business, and it was his long years of devotion to it that broke down his health more than once.

He disliked publicity of any kind and it has been said that he turned away hundreds of representatives of trade papers and magazines anxious to get interviews and sketches of his successful life.

Mr. Altman found his greatest delight in his hours away from business in the enjoyment of a large and very remarkable collection of old masters, which he added to his residence.

He also had many Chinese porcelains, rugs and crystals of surpassing beauty.

Mr. Altman's collection of Rembrandts, fourteen in number, is believed to be the largest in the country. It includes portraits of Rembrandt's mother, his son Titus, his wife and himself. For two of his Rembrandts Mr. Altman is said to have paid $200,000 each.

In 1912 Mr. Altman purchased Velasquez's portraits of King Philip IV. of Spain and his Minister, Olivares. It was said on excellent authority that the two portraits cost him nearly $1,000,000.

In the same year Mr. Altman added Fra Filippo Lippi's "Madonna and Child" to his collection.

In 1908 Mr. Altman acquired a valuable Rembrandt in the portrait of an old woman wearing a white ruff and a half moon cap. He got three more Rembrandts the next year, one a portrait of Oscar Reisinger, another picture called "Man With Magnifying Glass" and his pendant, "The Woman With a Red Book." At the same time he purchased Ruys-

AN ANCIENT BOTTLE world's famous tonic, delicious, favoring, all deserts.—Ad.

Continued on Fifth Page.

BRYAN EVEN PAYS TO TALK.

Tells Audience He Has Often Paid for the Privilege.

SPARTANBURG, S. C., Oct. 7.—After speaking to 20,000 people gathered to-day at Kings Mountain, N. C., to celebrate the 123rd anniversary of the Revolutionary battle fought there, Secretary of State Bryan came to Spartanburg to-night and spoke to a large audience at Converse College. He was accompanied by Mrs. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan did not charge for his address to-night. He said he had been charged with refusing to deliver an address unless he received a fee. A Republican neighbor in Lincoln, he said, to whom this was reported, said it was nothing if he could get no fee and that if he did not allow to speak would pay for the privilege. Mr. Bryan said this was true; he had frequently paid for the privilege of speaking.

The car in which he was a passenger broke down near the Revolutionary battle field of Cowpens and he was transferred to another car. On his arrival Mr. Bryan was greeted for the result of the world series game.

At Blacksburg Mr. Bryan's car halted and soon was surrounded by a troop of school children who hailed him as "our next President."

HOUSE STOPS WORK TO FOLLOW BALL GAME

Mann Acts as Announcer and the Statesman Fans Are Delighted.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 7.—The world's series baseball game in New York captured the attention of the House of Representatives to the exclusion of other business to-day.

Official notice that the game was in progress was given in motions made by Representative Mann of Illinois, the Republican leader in Baker's home run was acclaimed by wild applause.

Marquard's downfall in the fifth inning was also applauded, the House apparently favoring the Athletics.

"A parliamentary inquiry," Mr. Speaker said, Mr. Mann rising in his place.

"The gentleman from Kentucky, who occupied the chair in the absence of Speaker Clark."

"I have just been informed that Baker has made a home run, driving in Collins ahead of him," said Mr. Mann with a grin.

There were shouts in the chamber and applause in the galleries. Mr. Shelby, who appeared to be annoyed, rapped for order.

Mr. Mann communicated the news by means of another parliamentary inquiry that Marquard had been relieved for the day and Crandall substituted.

After the proceedings Mr. Shelby, who is a stickler for the proprieties, suggested to Mr. Mann that the references in the days debate to the ball game should not remain in the Congressional Record.

According to an official appearing as a parliamentary record would be an affront to the dignity of the House.

Mr. Mann did not agree with the Kentuckyian. However, the baseball dialogue, which amused the House and the galleries, was stricken out.

"He may as well admit," observed Mr. Mann, "that the world's series is the biggest thing going on in the country today and we might just as well take a back seat until it is concluded."

ANSON P. STOKES GRABS A SIGN.

Pulls "Vote for License" From Wall of City Hall.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 7.—The Rev. Anson Phelps Stokes, secretary of the Yale Corporation, while entering City Hall this afternoon to vote at the city election, saw a huge sign reading "Vote Yes for License" nailed up about eight feet high on the wall.

He called a policeman and asked by whose authority such a sign was placed on a municipal building. He was not enlightened, and then he made a good running jump into the air and caught the license banner and pulled it down, remarking to a party of Yale men at his side that City Hall was a non-partisan building and should not be the signboard for a campaign poster.

HUERTA TO INTERCEPT DIAZ.

Ordered Him to Japan; May Arrest Him at Vera Cruz.

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun.

PARIS, Oct. 7.—Commenting on the return of Gen. Felix Diaz, one of the candidates for the Mexican Presidency, to Mexico his friends here say that about September 17 President Huerta ordered special envoy of the Mexican President and to await orders there, his pay as Ambassador ceasing at the same time.

Friends of Gen. Diaz believe that when he arrives at Havana he will receive an order to return to Europe on some military mission, and that if he disobeys and continues his voyage to Vera Cruz he will be arrested there on his arrival.

PLUCKY WOMAN FOILS HOLDUP.

Catches One Kicked and Holds On Although Throat and Hand Broken.

Two men came to Mrs. Lena Zeller, Green's bookshop at 92 Franklin street, Zeller's, last night and while one of them opened a conversation with Mrs. Zeller the other took $100 out of the cash drawer.

When the men started to run out of the store Mrs. Zeller followed, shouting for the police. She caught one and held on, although he beat her in the face and kicked her. The man got away, but Mrs. Zeller caught him again and held him until Police Officer Tom came along and arrested him.

The other man was caught later and the two prisoners, who were James James Carroll of 112 Dal. street, Williamsburg, and John Brady of 636 Second avenue, Manhattan, were held in the Manhattan avenue police court for the Grand Jury. At the same time he purchased Ruys-

AN ANCIENT BOTTLE world's famous tonic, delicious, favoring, all deserts.—Ad.

Continued on Fifth Page.

ATHLETICS POUND GIANTS TO DEFEAT IN FIRST SERIES GAME

BEACHEY AEROPLANE HURLS GIRL TO DEATH

Ruth Hildreth Killed and Sister Fatally Hurt by Aviator's Dip Over Hangar.

KNOCKED FROM THE ROOF

Friends Keep Beachey From Suicide After Tragedy at Lake Kenka.

HAMMONDSVILLE, N. Y., Oct. 7.—Lincoln Beachey, making his first flight since last March, when he announced he was through with aviation because he believed his daring feats had been the indirect cause of the death of many fellow birdmen, struck the top of a hangar this afternoon from which several persons were watching him as he made a sensational dip to earth.

His aeroplane struck Miss Ruth Hildreth and her sister Dorothy, hurling them to the ground. Miss Ruth was killed and her sister was so badly injured that her life is despaired of.

Beachey was not seriously hurt, but when he realized what had happened he became hysterical. It was with difficulty that he was kept from trying to take his own life. He was unable to speak intelligently with those who consoled him. He moaned and was bested himself with grief. The accident brought upon him the field where through the day a happy gathering of men and women had been watching the aviator.

Beachey, known throughout the world as a daring aviator, has been here for nearly a month watching the construction of a new machine. The marvelous aerial accomplishments of Peckard appeared to inspire him with the idea that a new era in aeroplaning was dawning and that he would be the American who would rival the intrepid Frenchman. His new machine was especially constructed upon the lines of strength and speed. It was built at the Curtiss camp.

The new craft was taken to the field just before noon. Word was carried around that Beachey would fly and a great crowd gathered. The Misses Hildreth, daughters of E. Hildreth, president of the American Wine Growers Association, came with the rest, accompanied by Leonard N. L. Bellinger and Lieut. Herbert Richardson, United States naval officer, who are here observing the operation of the new hydroaeroplanes.

Girls Climb to Top of Hangar.

To get a better view they climbed to the top of the hangar. Below them at the edge of the field were hundreds of spectators. Many automobiles were parked close to the hangar. Excitement ran high as the mechanics stepped back from the new machine and announced that everything was ready.

Beachey took his place with the nonchalance to which those who have watched him fly are accustomed. The new aeroplane appeared to be all that the aviator had expected. He got away in fine style, shot into the air and soon was circling around at great speed. Beachey made two or three short flights and seemed to have at his command all the skill for which he has become famous.

The spectators were pitched high with excitement when he started on his final trip. The moving picture men were asking Beachey to make two or three more flights and he promised to give them a thriller. He sailed out over the lake and then headed back for the field, going at great speed. Just as he appeared to be ready to land the machine was lifted up again and then suddenly dropped down. The machine whipped across the edge of the hangar and caught the two young women.

Girls Hurling into Air.

Miss Ruth was hurled into the air and then her body shot down. Her head struck the heavy light of an automobile. Her skull was fractured, her left leg and left arm were broken, and her face was mutilated. Her sister fell near her and was also injured. Her legs rushed forward after the first shock of her fall. She was taken to Bath Hospital this evening. The extent of her injuries is not known.

The companions of the young woman got to the ground as quickly as possible. They rushed to where their friends lay, only to find that they could be of little assistance. A physician was summoned and he attended Miss Hildreth. She has not been told of the death of her sister.

Beachey's new machine was wrecked. The front wheel of his chassis struck the ridge of the hangar, causing the machine to turn a half somersault. It fell beside the tent now on site. The aviator was thrown several yards, but appeared not to be injured beyond bruises and scratches.

Coroner Douglas Smith of Bath will hold an inquest to-morrow.

The Hildreth family has been spending the summer at Lake Kenka for several years. Mr. and Mrs. Hildreth were in New York to-day. Ruth Hildreth, the elder daughter, was 21 years old. Both she and her sister were well liked here.

Lincoln Beachey announced last March that he had quit flying for good. He said he held himself responsible for the death of a number of aviators, who less experienced and luckless had tried to emulate him in a career of death. He was particularly affected by the death of Hoveac Kearny, to whom he had taught many tricks and whose mother had appealed to him to restrain her son. The widow of Charles Welch also blamed Beachey for his death.

Beachey is a native of California and is 28 years old. He began his aerial career as a dirigible balloon operator, and his stunts being a flight into Washington during which he encircled the dome.

Continued on Fifth Page.

RECEIPTS MORE THAN AT 1912 FIRST GAME

Yesterday's Official Count.

Total attendance, 36,291
Total receipts, $75,255.50
To National Commission (10 per cent.) $7,525.55
To players (60 per cent. of remainder) $40,637.97
To each club (half of remainder) $13,545.99
Last Year's Opener.
Total attendance 35,722
Total receipts $75,127.00
To National Commission $7,512.70
To players $40,568.58
To each club $13,528.86

PROPHET WON'T SAY "RAIN."

Inserts "Probably" for To-day and To-morrow. Matts May Pitch.

Even the weather man, who is known to live on carpet tacks and string, had to be careful to prophesy rain as a certainty for to-day's game in Philadelphia. He qualified his prediction with a "probably." It will be cloudy surely, he said, and there probably will be rain to-day and to-morrow, both here and in Philadelphia, but he wasn't certain.

But he was sure that it would be windy and the weather authorities added a special warning to look out for heavy east winds. There is a wind storm now blowing along the Virginia coast and it headed north. It is due within twenty-four hours, but whether a gale or just a heavy wind will strike the beachers at the game wasn't certain. That will depend on what obstacles the wind storm strikes on its way here.

Christy Mathewson is regarded by fans as the most likely choice of Manager McGraw to twirl for the Giants in Philadelphia to-day. As soon as Marquard was announced as yesterday's pitcher, many amateur experts exclaimed, "Ah, didn't I tell you? That means Matty to-morrow. McGraw's scheme is to use the veteran on the hostile ground because he is less affected by the surroundings than are his coworkers." If it is not Matty it will be Demaree, say more conservative ones. Eddie Plank is expected to be Connie Mack's selection.

BEST COFFEE AT KAISER'S CAFE.

German Emperor Owns Establishment in Potsdam.

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun.
BERLIN, Oct. 7.—The Deutsche Zeitung asserts that the Kaiser owns a cafe at Potsdam which is built and equipped at his own expense some time ago to replace the cafe removed to improve the Sans Souci Gardens. The Kaiser leased the cafe to one of his retainers, to whom he wrote at the time:

"You are to pay the very low rent of 1200 marks ($300) but if business prospers I may increase the rent so that I may make a somewhat bigger profit. There is one condition which you must observe—you must serve the best coffee in Potsdam."

The Kaiser is one of the regular customers.

WILL OUST NEGROES IN OFFICE.

Southern Collector Says Their Place Is in the Cornfield.

ATLANTA, Oct. 7.—A. O. Blacklock, recently appointed Collector of Internal Revenue, has begun a campaign to oust all negro officials. Blacklock says his Republican predecessor, Henry S. Jackson, paid $20,000 annually of Government money to political negroes.

"There are no Government positions for negroes in the South," said Collector Blacklock. "A negro's place is in the cornfield. I do not mean that a negro should not be educated and have his rights, but there are deserving white men capable of holding the positions."

The negroes have drawn up an appeal to President Wilson for protection.

HUNGER STRIKE PROVES FATAL.

Man in Jail for Theft Refused Food and Is Dead.

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun.
LONDON, Oct. 7.—The hunger strike has taken its first victim. A man serving a term of imprisonment for theft at Bedford refused all food except a few mouthfuls of milk daily. He was not fed forcibly and died today.

The coroner's jury found a verdict of "death due to natural causes."