

GLYNN TO END CONVENTIONS

New Direct Nomination Law Will Abolish Party Meetings.

WILL PASS NEXT MONTH

Wagner Will Favor Measure and Expects Legislature to Agree.

SPEAKER SMITH OPPOSED

Governor Says He Won't Try to Force Legislators by Use of Patronage.

ALBANY, Nov. 10.—A direct primary bill abolishing party state conventions is to be passed by the present Democratic state legislature in December. In addition the present legislature is to pass at the December session bills repealing laws appropriating over $1,000,000 which were signed by Gov. Sulzer to secure legislative support for his direct primary bill.

When the legislature adjourned tonight it decided to meet on Monday night, December 8, in order to give Gov. Glynn an opportunity to formulate plans to effect such a substantial retrenchment in the annual expenditures for support of the state government that hereafter the state's expenditures for ordinary administration will not exceed the income from indirect sources of taxation.

Gov. Glynn announced today that he was determined that during his administration there should not be a direct tax rate except such as is required by the state constitution to pay for the cost of road work and the large canal system. Gov. Glynn is delving deep into the administration of state affairs along lines with which he became familiar while he was state comptroller. He conferred today with acting Lieut. Gov. Robert F. Wagner, who is the Democratic leader of the state senate, and with speaker Alfred E. Smith of the state assembly and other prominent Democratic legislators.

Plans to Redeem Party Fidelity.

The governor told them that his intention was to pass a direct primary bill which would meet the views of the Democratic state platform, and that before the present Democratic legislature ends its session on December 31 next it should place upon the statute books other legislation embracing reforms which would show the people of the state that the Democratic party is capable of self-government and of economical government.

While those who conferred with today, including Senator Wagner, speaker Smith, Attorney-General Carmody, John T. Norton, Deputy State Comptroller Edwin S. Harris and State Commissioner of Education and Economy John H. Delaney, could not agree upon a direct primary bill, still I think we can get together and pass a bill which will meet the approval of those who advocate a direct primary law," said Gov. Glynn tonight.

"I believe the Democratic party," the governor continued, "ought to do something about primary legislation. We may as well look squarely in the face of our enemies and pledge to give the people a much better primary law than now exists. My plan is to have the legislature do nothing this week, but come back in December after giving us three or four weeks to formulate plans of Democratic policy in state government and enact those policies into law before January 1, including a direct primary law.

"I want to make it clear that I won't use any patronage to get any legislation I am in favor of. I won't use any patronage to force my ideas on anybody. Gov. Hughes didn't do it, and I don't intend to do it.

To Model Course After Hughes.

"I intend to follow in Hughes's footsteps in that respect. He fought along the principle, but he did not use patronage to force his ideas through."

"But Hughes did not succeed in having his direct primary law enacted," it was suggested to Gov. Glynn.

"Well, he made it a pretty live issue, didn't he?" replied the governor. "He was a pretty good governor. I think if I imitate him along that line I would not be imitating a very bad example. While there will be no use of patronage to force my ideas upon the legislature, I believe that the ideas to be advanced to the legislature for the December session will so justify themselves that they will be accepted by a Democratic Assembly and Senate."

While it is true that some of the Democratic legislators contended that they did not believe in statewide direct primaries, Gov. Glynn insisted that apparently the people of the state thought they wanted direct primaries and that the Democratic party, while it still had the opportunity, should pass a real direct primary law, even going so far as abolishing the party state convention.

"There was a suggestion that the Democrats pass the Republican direct primary law and provide for submitting to a vote of the people the question of whether or not the party convention should be abolished, but Gov. Glynn did not take kindly to this straddle, asserting that in his mind there was no doubt that the people would vote to abolish the party state convention.

Party Can Afford to Pass Bill.

The fact that the Democratic legislature refused to pass the Sulzer direct primary bill was commented on during Gov. Glynn's conference and it was contended that the Democratic legislature could even now afford to pass a real direct primary law if it did not use patronage to attempt to destroy the present Democratic state organization.

"All direct primary legislation," said Senator Robert F. Wagner, "must be the result of study and compromise. Before we finish I believe that the governor and legislature will be in absolute accord."

"In connection of the legislature, I think it is to carry out the governor's program."

Speaker Alfred E. Smith of the state assembly had this to say to the question of primary legislation this year. "We will get enough of primary reform after January 1. I don't know why we should look for trouble now. I know very well that the Assemblymen will not come back to Albany for the Sulzer bill which was defeated last winter.

"Do you think you could get them back if a compromise bill is framed up?" was asked.

"Well, I think I could get them here if I appealed to them personally, but I shall not use any personal influence with them until I have seen the bill. Some people's idea of direct primary reform is to fix it so that no Tammany man can run for office."

BOOMS FOR SPEAKER STARTED.

Hirman, Horton, Sullivan, Sweet and MacDonald Are Out.

ALBANY, Nov. 10.—The convening of the assembly tonight was the signal for the formal launching of booms of Republican candidates for speaker of the next Assembly. The favored candidates are:

Huron J. Hirman of Albany, who has been elected to the assembly five times, and who was the Republican floor leader this year; Clinton T. Horton, a Buffalo attorney, elected three times; John Leo Sullivan, Dunkirk attorney, elected six times; Thaddeus C. Sweet, a sugar manufacturer of Phoenix, Oswego county, elected five times; and Alexander MacDonald, a bank cashier of St. Regis Falls, Franklin county, elected five times.

Hirman was the choice of State Chairman William Barnes for Republican Assembly leadership this year, but he balances this with his personal friendship and local co-partnership with Judge John J. Arnold, a new Progressive leader.

Sullivan in the past was the candidate for the progressive Republicans for speaker, getting but few votes. Horton's chances are not considered rosy, because of the deplorable Republican showing in Erie county on election day.

MacDonald has the backing of his State district and will have the advice of Senator Herbert P. Coates. Assemblyman Sweet has been a prominent member of the Assembly for several years.

Chairman Barnes's future-five the Republicans 72 members of the Assembly, or four less than the 76 needed to elect a Republican party organization speaker, but Mr. Barnes counts on the votes of 11 Republicans who received Progressive endorsements, giving the Republicans 83 votes to 48 for the Democrats and 19 for the Progressives.

STOCK TRANSFER BILL PASSES.

Flaw in Old Law Results in Emergency Message From Glynn.

ALBANY, Nov. 10.—The legislature met tonight and after passing a bill recommended by State Comptroller Schermer to prevent fraud in the use of stock transfer stamps in Wall Street adjourned until Monday night, December 8. The present Democratic Assembly goes out of existence on December 31, although the Democratic state senate holds over through next year.

Gov. Glynn is to utilize this month's recess in looking up the right men to appoint as up-State Public Service Commissioners, State Health Commissioner, State Superintendent of Prisons and other important officers.

Jeremiah T. Mahoney, an attorney, was appointed tonight by Gov. Glynn as judge of the court of general sessions of New York city to take the place of the late Judge Thomas C. O'Sullivan. Mahoney, who is a law partner of acting Lieut. Gov. Wagner, will serve for six weeks until December 31 and will turn the salary over to Judge O'Sullivan's widow.

The stock transfer bill will be signed by Gov. Glynn tomorrow. It was passed under an emergency message from the governor.

State Comptroller Schermer said the bill was designed to meet a recent court decision which declared unconstitutional one of the present provisions of the stock transfer law.

One plan is to put a new issue of stock transfer stamps on the market at once, entirely withdrawing the present issue, and give three months in which holders of stamps of the present issue may use those in their possession.

STILL GOVERNOR, SAYS SULZER.

Demands Pay for October From State Treasurer.

ALBANY, Nov. 10.—Ex-Gov. William Sulzer asserts that he is still governor of New York State in a letter received by the state comptroller today acknowledging the receipt of $13,744, the balance due him as salary up to the time of his removal as governor. Gov. Sulzer received his salary for the first two weeks of October, and the $13,744 was for a portion of a day.

In his letter sent to the comptroller and the State Treasurer the ex-governor makes a demand for the salary of the governor for the last two weeks of October.

His letter, which was a surprise to both the comptroller and the State Treasurer, follows:

"I am in receipt of a letter from Samuel Bruckheimer, Executive Auditor, dated November 1, 1913, enclosing your check for $13,744, balance of my October salary as governor up to and including October 16, 1913, assuming that I ceased to be governor of the state on that date. I do not recognize the so-called impeachment proceedings as legal, valid or constitutional. It was illegal, unconstitutional and void, and I am still legal governor of this state.

"I therefore demand from you the payment of the balance of my October salary as governor, viz., $13,667. Yours very truly, "WILLIAM SULZER."

MALONE IS NAMED COLLECTOR OF PORT

Nomination, Based on Regard and Service, Has Also Political Aspect.

IS MOVE AGAINST MURPHY

Senator O'Gorman Intimates That He Will Not Oppose Confirmation.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—The President sent to the Senate today the nomination of Dudley Field Malone to be Collector of Customs for the Port of New York. It seems unlikely that his confirmation will be opposed.

Senator O'Gorman was asked today whether in view of the fact that the President had appointed the Senator's son-in-law without the Senator's recommendation there would be any difficulty about confirming the nomination. The Senator looked thoughtful and observed:

"You have doubtless read of the Irish Judge in Galway who once sat as Magistrate at the trial of his own son and sentenced him to death. That was 300 years ago."

The Senator puffed at his cigar for a moment and then suddenly relieved the suspense by adding:

"But the world has made some progress since then."

This was taken as an intimation that the Senator will not press the fight against Malone to the point of breaking family ties.

Has Political Significance.

The naming of Malone to this important post was immediately interpreted here as a move of political significance. Malone, representing the Washington Administration, will be cooperating with Mayor Mitchell and possibly with Gov. Glynn to reorganize the New York State Democratic machine. Incidentally the Wilson people will be busy building up an organization of their own, for they know that if Murphy remains in control New York's delegates are likely to be hostile to Wilson in the next national convention.

The situation is likely to present some embarrassments for Senator O'Gorman, though many here doubt whether he is at all enthusiastic over the continuance of the Murphy leadership, and some New York Democrats expect to see him lined up before long with the forces that are openly working for the downfall of the Tammany leader.

Mayor-elect Mitchell was greatly pleased yesterday to learn of the appointment of Mr. Malone.

"President Wilson has made a splendid choice," he said. "I don't think he could have done better. You know that I was for Malone from the start and I am glad that he is going to succeed me now. I believe that he will carry out systematically the work that has been commenced here."

Dudley Field Malone was born on the upper West Side of this city thirty-three years ago. He was graduated from Fordham Law School only six years ago. His earlier education was obtained at Public School 94 and St. Francis Xavier College, where he was a member of the class of 1905.

He entered the firm of Battle & Marshall. In 1909 he appeared in politics as the manager of George Gordon Battle's campaign for the District Attorneyship of the Tammany ticket. Early in Mayor Gavron's term he was made an Assistant Corporation Counsel, and there he stayed until President Wilson nominated him for Third Assistant Secretary of State in April of this year.

A Favorite of the President.

President Wilson is very fond of Mr. Malone. He was with Wilson through most of the Presidential campaign. Secretary Bryan likes him too and has given him a lot of work in the State Department. He represented this country at the inauguration of President Menocal of Cuba and escorted Dr. Lauro Muller, Minister of Foreign Affairs of Brazil, on his recent tour of this country.

Mr. Malone was one of Woodrow Wilson's earliest and most ardent supporters for the Presidency, even when Mr. Wilson was just beginning his work as governor of New Jersey. He was a factor in the Wilson nomination at Baltimore. Incidentally he there called ex-Senator James Smith of New Jersey a liar for saying that Wilson had elected himself governor with Smith's money and then had turned against him.

Mr. Malone unexpectedly appeared in the New York city campaign by making a speech at the fusion rally in Madison Square Garden on the night of October 16. He denounced Charles F. Murphy's administration of Tammany and said:

"I say without equivocation to the regular Democrats of the city of New York that you cannot advocate the practical idealism of Hughes, La Follette and Wilson in the nation and be a follower of Charles F. Murphy in the city of New York."

Mr. Malone was not officially representing President Wilson when he made this speech, but undoubtedly he spoke with the President's approval. The next day the father-in-law of Senator James A. O'Gorman, announced himself for Edward E. McCall and made it plain that Mr. Malone's mission was at least not a family affair. The appointment of Mr. Malone as Collector of the Port seems politically to be another move by the Wilson Democrats to secure a change of leadership in Tammany Hall.

The marriage of Mr. Malone and Miss Mary O'Gorman, daughter of the Senator, took place in November, 1908. Their home here is at 593 Riverside Drive. Mr. Malone's mother and four sisters live at 443 St. Nicholas avenue.

He has not had time to answer them and said yesterday he would like to express his thanks through the newspapers.

ASSEMBLYMEN ACT TO DEPOSE BOSSES

Progressives and Independents Organize at Hotel Brevoort.

present and messages of regret were received from fifteen more.

The names of those who attended were kept secret, with the exception of several out and out Progressives. From the information that was gathered it seems that invitations to the meeting were sent out to the twenty-four Progressives elected to the Assembly, the six fusion Republicans and the twelve fusion Democrats. If that is so then only one person out of the forty-two failed to make acknowledgment of the invitation.

There was discussion concerning the organization of the Assembly and the attitude to be taken by the independent members. A resolution was passed unanimously that all independent members of the Assembly, whether Progressives, independent Republicans or independent Democrats, should form an independent conference during the coming session of the Legislature for the purpose of organizing the Legislature against the bosses and supporting a real Statewide direct primary bill and other needed legislation.

A second resolution was passed providing that the temporary chairman of the meeting should appoint a committee of three, to be composed of a Progressive, an independent Democrat and an independent Republican, with power to increase its number to not exceeding seven, and that the said committee be empowered in its discretion to communicate to the members of the Assembly of 1914 the deliberation of this meeting and to invite such members to join in the consummation of the purposes of the resolution heretofore adopted.

Michael Schaap, Progressive, Assemblyman-elect, who was temporary chairman of the meeting, appointed on the committee Wilmot E. Knapp, Republican, of Chemung county; August L. Martin, Democrat, of Westchester county and Andrew E. Murray, Progressive, of New York county. Another meeting of these and other independent Assemblymen-elect will be held on Monday, November 24, at 9 P. M., at the Hotel Brevoort.

William Sulzer, who has been included in the list of forty-two independent Assemblymen-elect, was not at the conference and was not invited. The Progressives do not regard him favorably in any plan for ridding the State of "bosses."

Michael Schaap said after the meeting that direct primaries were the chief cause of discussion. There was not much talk as to the plan of organization in the Legislature, but that subject will be discussed in the next meeting.

CUTS OUT SECOND HUSBAND.

Court Sustains Will Made While First Husband Lived.

The point as to whether or not a husband whose wife made a will while a prior husband was living is entitled to share in her estate as though she had died without leaving a will was decided yesterday in the Supreme Court by Justice Burges in a case referred to by Phoenix Ingham as a reference. He holds that if the wife intended to leave anything to her second husband she would have made another will.

The question was decided in a suit by Charles Young for a share in the estate of his wife, Anna Louise Young. She left the bulk of her estate to her two children by James Burke, her first husband.
