

Brook, had removed for good and all the... Original Drawings by Sir Thomas Lawrence, P. R. A. Of Beautiful Women and Children Scott & Fowles Co. 590 FIFTH AVENUE

Original Drawings by Sir Thomas Lawrence, P. R. A. Of Beautiful Women and Children Scott & Fowles Co. 590 FIFTH AVENUE

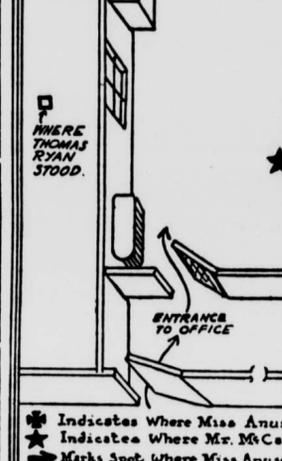

IDA ANUSEWITZ

his father, Mr. Kane met Mr. Callanan at 239 Battery Place and Thirty-eighth street. He wanted business advice from Callanan out of the latter's wide experience, and for a quarter of an hour or more the two men stood on the corner talking about Kane's affairs. They were startled by an explosion, a deafening roar, whose sound waves smashed windows along the block. This was exactly at 8 A. M.

The two men ran to the office. They were stopped by a pile of debris, but saw through the gaping windows Miss Anusewitz stretched on the floor by the big safe. McCabe disally picked himself up and the wreckage of glass and desks that filled the room.

"No thought," said McCabe later in telling what happened, "that the parcel contained a souvenir of some sort. Miss Anusewitz removed the brown paper cover easily and started to slide or lift the lid of a pasteboard box. 'That instant there was an explosion. It was like the roar of a cannon. For a minute or two I was knocked out, too dazed to know whether I was dead or alive. I went to the floor as if a hammer had hit me. I got up, put my hand to my left ear, saw that my hand was covered with blood and made up my mind I wasn't badly hurt. Then I looked for the girl.

"Girl Still Breathed. 'Smoke was thick in the room, but it was rolling out through broken windows. I saw Miss Anusewitz lying on the floor by the safe. She had been thrown backward five or six feet. The poor child! I tell you I nearly went crazy when I saw her. Her eyes were gone. There was no face left. Her right arm was torn away and the fingers of her left hand were missing. Steels from her corset had been driven into her side. 'She still breathed, but she died five minutes after Dr. Lowalis came from Bellevue Hospital. 'Oh, it was a shame! If I could catch Indicates Where Miss Anusewitz Stood While Opening Mail. Indicates Where Mr. McCabe, the Sales Manager, Stood. Marks Spot Where Miss Anusewitz's Body Was Thrown by Force of Explosion.

Other Bomb Victims, Strange Crimes Grow. Grace Walker was killed by a bomb brought to her apartment at 108 West Seventy-seventh street on February 8, 1912. A bomb sent through the mails exploded in the home of Judge Otto Rosalsky at 611 West 110th street on March 16, 1912. Madeline Herrera was instantly killed in her home at 1475 Fulton avenue, the Bronx, by a bomb on February 2, 1913. John Paul Farrell, an ex-convict and former inmate of an asylum, confessed on February 4, 1913, that he made all three of these bombs. He afterward retracted his confession and was exonerated. Henry Klotz of 1332 Fulton avenue, the Bronx, was blown up by a bomb he was making on March 21, 1913. He died at Fordham Hospital after confessing that he had made and sent the Walker, Rosalsky and Herrera bombs.

During the nineteen years he has been an inspector for the Bureau of Combustibles Owen Egan has examined 6,000 bombs. Twenty-five of these were exploded in 1910. In 1911 there were sixty-four. Last year fifty-two bomb explosions occurred with a property loss of $7,000. Up to October 13 of this year there were 125 bomb explosions with a property loss of more than $17,000.

the man that did it, I would strangle him with my bare hands. The desk at which Miss Anusewitz had been working was a pile of splinters. The glass from four windows had been shattered to splinters and powder and gleamed in the wreckage that covered the floor. Out of this debris later was taken the ring finger of the girl's left hand. A small diamond had been dislodged from its setting. The ceiling was punctured and gashed by fragments of the bomb. Nathan Anusewitz, the father, when questioned by the police, told about his daughter's life from babyhood and advised the detectives that she couldn't have had an enemy so malevolent as the bomb maker.

Every effort was made by Deputy Commissioner Dougherty's men to locate in the wreckage of the office fragments of the bomb such as would indicate the kind of machine and the sort of explosive that had been used. Owen Egan of the Bureau of Combustibles found eight pieces of heavy green glass, three-eighths of an inch thick, such as is now used in the water and cider bottling work of the O. K. com-

CHAMP CLARK CALLS ECONOMY MEETING

Democratic Leaders, Scared. Will Try to Hold Down Appropriations. THERE'S TALK OF DEFICIT Speaker in Statement Denies Alarm, but Conference Is Set for To-day.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 12.—Alarmed by the prospect of reduced revenues and the demand for appropriations, Democratic leaders will meet in conference in the office of Speaker Clark to-morrow to devise ways to keep down expenditures. Fear is expressed that unless the brakes are applied the appropriations of this session will far exceed the record for a single year. Speaker Clark believes that he and his associates owe it to the country and the party to take the lead in retrenchment in order that the House which originates appropriation bills may be warned that unless the purse strings are drawn, a Treasury deficit may soon succeed the present surplus.

Leaders Fear the Stump. A contrast is thus presented that the Democratic leaders do not care to face on the stump next year. The conference will give warning to members demanding appropriations for local improvements, and if this proves ineffectual an appeal for help to ward off assaults on the national strong box that may result in a deficit will be made to President Wilson. Democratic leaders were chagrined to-day when they learned that their fears of a deficit had attained publicity. Speaker Clark promptly issued a statement in which he denied that he or any of the leaders had doubts as to the revenue producing qualities of the Democratic tariff. In his letter addressed to the chairman of the Appropriations Committee the Speaker dwelt with emphasis on the necessity for keeping appropriations "within reasonable limits."

Speaker Clark in his statement says: "This morning in the ordinary course of business I invited Mr. Underwood and the chairman and ranking Democrats of the committee authorized to make appropriations to meet in the Speaker's room to-morrow at 10 o'clock to discuss the general situation as to the appropriation bills and to urge early reports thereon so as to get away from here sometime next summer."

"BABY MINE" HIT IN PARIS.

Margaret Mayo's Comedy Raises Big Laugh in Second Act. PARIS, Dec. 12.—Margaret Mayo's comedy, "Baby Mine," was produced at the Bouffes Parisiens this evening and scored an immense success. The play in the second act almost prevented the play from proceeding. The French version by M. Hennequin was a translation, not an adaptation.

Speaker Sees No Deficit. On the basis of the customs returns for October the treasury receipts from this source would be $50,000,000 under those of last year, but the income tax is expected to yield at least $4,000,000. Nevertheless the new revenue laws are experimental at best, and the leaders are determined to let the Congress membership know that this is a good time to economize.

Speaker Clark in his statement says: "This morning in the ordinary course of business I invited Mr. Underwood and the chairman and ranking Democrats of the committee authorized to make appropriations to meet in the Speaker's room to-morrow at 10 o'clock to discuss the general situation as to the appropriation bills and to urge early reports thereon so as to get away from here sometime next summer."

the rumor that we are fearful that there will be a deficit is absolutely without foundation, for I am satisfied that the Underwood bill will bring in more revenue than did the Payne bill. The enterprising and ambitious gentleman who started the rumor has discovered a mare's nest."

OPPENHEIM COLLINS & CO

34th Street, New York

An Extraordinary Purchase of 235 Men's Fur-Lined Coats

All Sizes from 36 to 44, Chest Measure

At an Average Reduction of 50 Per Cent.

On Sale in the Young Men's Clothing Dept.—Third Floor

90 Men's Coats—Lined with genuine muskrat and Russian marmot, with collar of Persian lamb; covering of fine black broadcloth. Regularly 60.00 and 75.00 28.00

65 Men's Coats—Lined with genuine northern Sussliki, with collar of Persian lamb and covering of fine broadcloth. Regularly 95.00 48.00

80 Men's Coats—Lined with imported Japanese mink and finest northern muskrat; collar of Persian lamb and covering of imported English broadcloth. Also motor coats of genuine raccoon, with the fur outside. Regularly 110.00 to 140.00 58.00

On Sale Saturday, December Thirteenth

OPPENHEIM COLLINS & CO

34th Street

Have Prepared a Special Sale of

175 Young Men's Overcoats

Sizes 33 to 40, chest measure

The new close-fitting, double-breasted model of imported vicuna, in Oxford gray, navy blue and brown, with velvet collar.

Also a swagger belted-back model of plaid-back English overcoating, with self collar. 25.00 Value 15.50

Young Men's Suits

Sizes 32 to 40, chest

Latest models of imported fabrics, in single and double-stripe effects, overplaids and mixtures, with narrow shoulders; soft-rolling lapels. 22.50 Value 15.00

Special Sale of 140 Suits

Sizes 32 to 40, chest measure

Three and four-button single-breasted models, of excellent quality cassimeres, in a variety of attractive stripes, checks and mixtures, in latest patterns. 18.50 Value 12.50

Deputy Surveyor in charge of the pier. The Marques said with earnestness that the bracelet belonged to him and was inclined to question the motives of Mr. Greenwood, who declared that he had no personal interest in the matter whatever, but would like to have his wife's maid rewarded for finding the bracelet and so promptly turning it over to her mistress.

The Marques said last night at the Hotel Chelsea that his wife had lost the bracelet on the train from London and that when the ship arrived here he had demanded it of the purser. Mr. Greenwood said he was sorry for his bride's sake that they and the maid would have to go before the customs officials to-day, as it would take a little flavor out of the honeymoon. He said he regarded it as a bit strange that the Marques had said nothing to him on the five day trip.

NOBLEMAN CLAIMS JEWEL MAID FOUND

Surveyor of Port to Settle Un-usual Dispute Over Bracelet.

Surveyor Henry and the experts of the law division of the Custom House will make an effort at a conference this morning to find out the validity of the claim of the Marques and the Marquesa de San Carlos de Pedrosa to a $6,000 diamond studded bracelet that arrived here yesterday by the Cunarder Mauretania and was turned over to the customs officials on the pier by Thomas Greenwood, Jr., managing director of the London firm of Booker Bros., Limited, the largest house in the English West Indian trade.

While Mr. Greenwood and his bride, on a honeymoon trip, were on their way from London to Liverpool to board the Mauretania, their maid found the bracelet on the train. She took it to the bride, who turned it over to her husband. A few minutes later the bride and bridegroom were on the Mauretania. Mr. Greenwood went to Purser Graham and told him of the find and the purser suggested that he should say nothing of it until somebody reported the loss of a bracelet. This was regarded as the best way to prevent anybody laying false claim to it.

The Marques and Marquesa de San Carlos de Pedrosa were passengers by the train. She took it to the bride, who turned it over to her husband. A few minutes later the bride and bridegroom were on the Mauretania. Mr. Greenwood went to Purser Graham and told him of the find and the purser suggested that he should say nothing of it until somebody reported the loss of a bracelet. This was regarded as the best way to prevent anybody laying false claim to it.

When the Mauretania docked yesterday morning the Marques went to Purser Graham and told him of the loss of the Marquesa's bracelet. The purser referred the Marques to Mr. Greenwood, who had already turned the bracelet over to the

DENIES QUARREL WITH PERU.

Bolivian Minister in London Says Negotiations Are Friendly.

Special Cable Dispatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Dec. 12.—The Bolivian Minister in London, referring to reports of a coming clash between his country and Peru, said this evening that while it was true that his country desires a port on the Pacific, all its efforts will be confined to friendly negotiations with Peru. He asserted that movements of troops in Bolivia have no connection with the matter, and is certain that an outbreak of hostilities is not being considered.

FOUNDED 1856

BROKAW BROTHERS MEN'S & BOYS' CLOTHING, HATS & FURNISHINGS

Price inducement, combined with all things that go to make a suit serviceable and of paramount attractiveness, is the magnet that continues to draw discerning buyers to our store. We give them more value than they can get anywhere else.

Men's Fancy Mixture Sack Suits reduced to $20 & $25

Former prices up to $32

Astor Place & Fourth Avenue ONE BLOCK FROM BROADWAY — SUBWAY AT DOOR