

MURPHY OUSTED BY CLUB AT LAST

Foley, Plunkitt, Gaffney and Darlington Also Forced Out.

THEIR DUES NOT PAID

Judge O'Dwyer, National Democratic Club Head, Wins Fight.

GOVERNORS IN HOT ROW

Tom Smith Seeks to Save Faces of Tammany Men, but Meets Rebuff.

Charles F. Murphy was thrown overboard by the governors of the National Democratic Club last night. With him went Thomas F. Foley, who next to Murphy is the ruling power in Tammany Hall; George W. Plunkitt, an old time Tammany leader; James E. Gaffney, the contractor whose name has appeared in many stories from the District Attorney's office, and Dr. Thomas Darlington, who was the Tammany candidate for Borough President last fall and served the city for many years as health officer. The pretext upon which the five Tammany men were thrown out was that they had not paid their dues. Under the rules of the club a member is automatically re-elected two months after the dues are payable. Mr. Murphy and his four companions should have paid up on January 1. They had not paid on March 1. Therefore their membership ceased.

Governors Fight Bitterly

But that was a decision which the seventeen governors reached only after a bitter struggle. The original intention of Justice Edward F. O'Dwyer, president of the club, was to pass through the board a resolution retiring Mr. Murphy and the four others. Thomas F. Smith, secretary of Tammany Hall, raised the point that their membership had ceased already, thereby beating the Judge to it. So the real point to the evening's proceedings was assumed to be that Mr. Murphy, Tom Foley and the rest had been thrown out bodily.

"I took this action," said Judge O'Dwyer later, "because Mr. Murphy and the others are detrimental to the interests of the party and to the National Democratic Club and are in opposition to the principles of progressive democracy."

The Judge spoke with a rising inflection, showing that he was still hot from the events which had transpired in the governors' room upstairs.

"Yes," said Thomas F. Smith, who split sentences with the Judge in telling the story of the meeting to the newspaper men, "and it's the first time in the history of the club that any special resolution of this character has been put through."

"When they get back again if they pay their dues," he sobriety asked.

"They won't," he said. "I say about that," said Judge O'Dwyer.

As an extra slap at Tammany Hall the governors—the O'Dwyer faction was easily in control from the beginning—elected to membership in the club Gov. Glyn, Dudley Field Malone, who has been busy reflecting President Wilson's attitude against Tammany Hall; Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson, who conducted the fusion campaign which resulted in the defeat of Judge McCall in the last election; Henry P. Velie, an anti-Tammany Democratic Senator from Williamsburg, and Joseph P. Tumulty, President Wilson's secretary.

Wanted Others Dropped

In the heat of the meeting Tom Smith offered a resolution that all other members of the club who were back in their dues should be retired with Murphy, Foley, Gaffney and the others. He offered to withdraw it on second thought, but it was pointed out that all the rest are out automatically, just as Murphy was.

Judge O'Dwyer could not say last night how many of the 725 members of the club are out. It was suggested that 100 of them, perhaps 200, have been retired already.

Judge O'Dwyer did not have their names, but it was apparent that Martin W. Littleton was back in his house charges. And that does not count the names that will start in the wake of Murphy. It was suggested that within a week the club's membership will be down to 400.

The first inkling of what had transpired when Tom Smith and Judge O'Dwyer appeared simultaneously in the governors' room at 10:45 o'clock last night. For two hours and a half the governors' club had been engaged in the hottest session that has marked any session of the board, even since the entrance into the power of Judge O'Dwyer, whose whole design has been to start war on Murphy.

The seventeen men who were at the meeting were John R. Dunlap, John W. Keller, Thomas L. Feitner, Stephen Farley, Alexander Konta, Henry Gallagher, John P. Leo, Magistrate Daniel F. Murphy—the last three were elected at the last meeting of the club—Thomas F. Smith, John M. Rielle, Edward P. Heher, John F. O'Brien, Edward P. O'Dwyer, William A. Clark, Milton I. D. Stineke, the treasurer; W. H. Jasper, secretary, and Roger Foster, corresponding secretary.

CANAL BILL UP TO-MORROW

House Leaders Consistent of Getting Repeal After Brief Debate.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—It is the hope of the Administration leaders that the Panama Canal tolls repeal bill will be brought to the floor of the House Thursday.

Chairman Adamson of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce will have its consideration. It is thought that more than twelve hours will be necessary for general debate.

BAKER BIG C. R. N. J. HOLDER

Has 8,000 Shares, With Market Value of $2,400,000.

The stock list of the Central Railroad of New Jersey shows that next to the Reading, which is a holder of $14,500,000 of the par value of the stock, valued at $42,500,000, at a price of $300 a share, Fahnstock & Co. and George F. Baker are the largest holders of the stock.

The par value holdings of Fahnstock & Co. are $1,192,000, with a present market value of $3,576,000. George F. Baker holds 8,000 shares, with an approximate market value of $2,400,000. The estate of Joseph Pulitzer holds 4,000 shares, worth the approximate market price of $1,200,000.

President George F. Baer owns 830 shares, worth approximately $249,000. These were some of the holdings at the date of last closing of the Jersey Central books. The price of $300 has been taken in reckoning values, though the market price is now $305 bid and $325 asked. The outstanding stock of the company is $27,450,000 par value.

Mr. Baker's holdings in Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, as announced recently, are 77,000 shares, valued at $15,000,000.

KNICKERBOCKER CLUB PLANS

New Home to Be Four Stories, of Marble, to Cost $100,000.

The Knickerbocker Club's new home, which is to be erected at the south corner of Fifth avenue and Sixty-second street, will be a marble structure four stories high. Plans have been completed and soon will be filed.

The building will cost $100,000 and will replace the Princess Del Drago's house at the corner and the former home of William Lanman Hull adjoining. These premises, which were bought by the club last year, measure 75 feet on Fifth avenue and 125 feet on the street.

The clubhouse will be 75 feet on Fifth avenue and 93 feet on the street. The remaining space will be utilized for flower beds. The building has been designed by Delano & Aldrich.

The Knickerbocker Club is now at the northeast corner of Fifth avenue and Thirty-second street, where it has been for many years. It is being moved north because of the encroachment of trade.

BLAZE PLAYS TRICK ON ROCKEFELLER FIREMEN

Get Chance to Test New Auto Engine When Fire House Burns.

TARETOWN, March 10.—A fire came near playing a lowdown trick on the Rescue Fire Company this afternoon, just as they were itching to try their new $5,000 automobile fire engine on anything from a housecast down.

It burned their own fire house to the ground and came mighty near getting the new engine itself. Cool heads, presence of mind, nerve, pluck and some muscle prevented this calamity. They shoved the engine out of the building.

Rescue Engine Company is known as the John D. Rockefeller company. Some of the men working at Pocantico Hills are members of it, and Mr. Rockefeller himself inspected the new engine. Some of the boys were in the fire house this afternoon polishing her up and washing for a chance, when an outsider ran in crying, "Fire."

When he said the second story was burning the engineer stopped trying to spark her up, and everybody was up in the air until it was suggested that they had better run her out, which was done.

By this time the fire had a good headway and was burning into the first floor when some one remembered that the engine could operate on fire houses. By that means they saved the foundations.

The damage was $10,000. It was started by a defective insulation of an electric light wire.

REVOLVER BATTLE ON TRAIN

One Killed and Another Will Die—Others Wounded.

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., March 10.—In a revolver battle on a Norfolk and Western passenger train, between Jaeger and Herwind to-day, H. L. Taylor, deputy sheriff of McDowell county, was killed; A. D. Beavers, a former deputy sheriff, will die, and W. D. Beaver, a former justice of the peace, and T. E. Hinkle, a non-combatant, were seriously wounded.

A stranger known as "Evans" was the only combatant unharmed. He was arrested. The other men engaged in the fight are all prominent in this section of West Virginia.

LUSITANIA SAILS AT DUSK

Many Notables, Including Lord and Lady Decies, Aboard.

The Cunarder Lusitania made her first evening sailing of the year yesterday, leaving her berth at the foot of West Fourteenth street only a few minutes behind her scheduled time, 6 o'clock.

She carried many notable passengers, including Lord and Lady Decies, who have been spending seven weeks here travelling, chiefly in the West. Lord Decies said he had gone across the continent and that he had been much impressed with the West, which he had never seen before.

SUES W. C. OSBORN FOR $50,000

Connolly Says Democratic State Chairman Slandered Him.

William Church Osborn, the newly elected chairman of the Democratic State committee, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday for $50,000 damages for slandering John A. Connolly, who made the charges on which Supreme Court Justice Cohalan was tried by the Senate last spring. Connolly alleges that at a meeting of the grievance committee of the Bar Association, when he was presenting his charges against Justice Cohalan, Mr. Osborn said:

"He [Connolly] is worthless in character and is unworthy of belief. Mr. Connolly alleges that Mr. Osborn intended to accuse him of making false charges, which, he says, he supported by his affidavit based on sworn statements."

GREAT FILM FIGHT LOST BY KODAK CO.

Aneco Company's Right to Millions Made From "Goodwin Patents" Upheld.

RECTOR'S WIDOW ENRICHED

But Mrs. Goodwin Values Most Highly the Fame of Her Inventor Husband.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals handed down yesterday a sweeping affirmation of the decision of Circuit Judge Hazel of Buffalo, sustaining the application and force of the so-called "Goodwin patent" to all the common types of films manufactured by the Eastman Kodak Company.

Unless it is possible for the Eastman Kodak Company to carry the case up to the United States Supreme Court, which is debatable, the decision of the Court of Appeals means that the Eastman Kodak Company will have to account to the Aneco company for all cartridge films, film packs and cinematograph films made by it in the last fifteen years.

The amount of money involved is enormous and while no one knows how much it is, Thomas W. Stephens, president of the Aneco company, said when the lower court made the decision, that the Eastman company would have to account to his company for from $5,000,000 to $25,000,000. The Aneco company controls the patent by virtue of controlling the Goodwin Film and Camera Company, which owns the patent.

George Eastman, of the Eastman Kodak Company, was in New York yesterday, but shortly after the decision was handed down he left the Hotel Biltmore and started back to Rochester. Mr. Stephens, when called at his home in Montclair, said that he had not seen the decision, but had been notified late in the day by his lawyer that it upheld all the points made by Judge Hazel in the Circuit Court. Mr. Stephens declined to comment upon the decision, on the ground that he had not had an opportunity to read it in full.

Millions for Aged Widow

And so the widow of Hannibal Goodwin, the Episcopal minister who invented the pliable film because of an ambition to be able to amuse and educate children with stereoscopic views, is almost within reach of the millions which have been made out of the films he now 85 years old, in modest circumstances and she lives with a daughter, who is more than 60 years old, in a quiet little home at 118 Montclair avenue, Newark, N. J.

THE SUN called Mrs. Goodwin's home at 10 o'clock last night to notify Mrs. Goodwin of the decision, but she and her daughter had gone to bed. The maid who answered the telephone refused to waken either, but she said that she was positive that neither Mrs. Goodwin nor her daughter had heard of the decision.

When Mrs. Goodwin does learn of it this morning it is probable that she will accept it placidly. While the legal battle for millions has been fought around her head she has gone on quietly with her knitting, willing to be modestly pleased if she gets a great deal of money, but determined not to be displeased if she doesn't.

Mrs. Goodwin delights to tell of her husband's invention, because she likes to remember his genius. It was his affection for children that took him into experimental work in photography.

Worked for Love of Children

"My husband wanted to get pictures for the Sunday school," said Mrs. Goodwin recently, "so he could interest the children in Scriptural stories. He wanted to train them with the stereopticon, and he had some beautiful pictures which he used to show them."

"My husband was just about to put his patent on the market when he fell and broke his leg and died of pneumonia which followed. This was on December 31, 1890. He had used up all his money. Poverty was left. He did not die in poverty, though, for I had some means which had not been used in the legal fights over the patent. I owned the patent after his death, but so much money was needed to do anything with it that I had to find men to organize a company. I'm only a stockholder now. All I have is in the company."

"Yes, I would like to get some money from the patent," said Mrs. Goodwin calmly, "but I don't expect to get much. But anyhow the amount of money concerned is an indication of the value of Mr. Goodwin's work."

The suit just decided was brought in 1902, after Goodwin had died without realizing anything on his invention.

EASTMAN WILL APPEAL

Denies He Grew Rich by Stealing Poor Inventor's Idea.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., March 10.—George Eastman, president of the Eastman Kodak Company, said to-night that he had not seen the decision but that he was informed that it was unfavorable to the contention of his company. He added: "During the progress of this case statements were made, apparently by persons interested in the Goodwin patent, to the effect that the Eastman company had in some unfair way appropriated the invention of a poor inventor and made large sums of money out of it. These statements are untrue."

"His process and his alleged invention were intractable commercially. His attempt ended in failure and a loss to him and his associates of $15,000. "The Eastman company's processes were the first used on a commercial scale. The new invention, without any knowledge by the Eastman company of Goodwin's process and without any attempt to follow in the footsteps of Goodwin."

Mr. Eastman said that the Eastman company would apply immediately to the United States Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari.

WEDDING GUESTS PUT OUT FIRE

Blaze in Ballroom of Hotel Majestic Quickly Under Control.

Just as the 300 guests at the wedding of Miss Viola Adels Parker and Alfred J. McCloud were leaving the grand ballroom of the Majestic Hotel, Broadway and Seventy-second street, last night and entering the dining room they were startled by a cry of fire. Looking back toward the northeast corner of the ballroom, where the wedding had taken place, they saw the heavy window curtains flaming high toward the ceiling.

The ladies went on into the dining room while the men in the party seized fire extinguishers and charged the blaze. Curtains and wedding decorations went quickly, however, and in a moment flames were streaming out into Seventy-second street. An alarm was sent to Engine 74, at Seventy-seventh street and Broadway, and Battalion Chief Clarke and his men soon had the blaze under control. Then the guests returned to their feast.

Miss Parker is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melville B. Parker of 593 Riverside Drive. Mr. McCloud is the Chicago manager for the National Biscuit Company. They were married by the Rev. Dr. Duncan McMillan, a retired Presbyterian clergyman. Miss Edna B. Parker, a sister of the bride, was bridesmaid and George L. McCloud, a brother of the bridegroom, was best man.

WOMAN BADLY BURNED IN WEST END AVENUE

Blaze in Apartment House at 93d Street Drives Out Families.

A serious fire burned through the top floor of the Clarence apartment house, at Ninety-third street and West End avenue, shortly after 1 o'clock this morning. One woman, Mrs. Lottie Hirsch, who is 65 years old, in trying to warn her daughter of the danger was badly burned. The eighteen families in the house were sent to the street by the police and stood there in slight clothing while water and flames did damage that will probably amount to $10,000.

The fire started in the kitchen of the apartment of Mrs. Clara Flato on the top floor. In the apartment besides Mrs. Flato and her mother, Mrs. Hirsch, were Mrs. Flato's children, Irene and Walter. In her great concern for the safety of the other members of the family Mrs. Hirsch ran from the door of the apartment to the front to make sure that they were warned of their danger.

As she passed the kitchen the fire gained sudden headway and burst out through the transom and door. She was picked up by her daughter and dragged to the door. The hair was burned from her head and the upper part of her body was terribly scorched. She is expected to live.

Policemen Timmen and Quinn of the West 100th street station went through every flat, driving the tenants down the stairs and elevator to the lower hall. When water came pouring down the elevator shaft they were driven out into the street.

SUNDAY SUED FOR SLANDER

Evangelist Served With Papers in $25,000 Action.

William A. Sunday, the evangelist, was sued in the Supreme Court yesterday by Charles H. Bell for $25,000 damages for slander. The only paper filed in the case was a summons which was served on Sunday's attorney, John Nickerson of 25 Nassau street, by Thomas M. Rowlette, counsel for Bell.

Lawyer Rowlette refused to discuss the case and the defendant's attorney said he could give out nothing without consulting the evangelist. He said the matter which terminated in the suit had been hanging fire for a long time and he believed it had been adjusted satisfactorily. It was said that an attempt was made to serve the evangelist at the Carnegie Hall meeting and when this failed Mr. Sunday's attorney agreed to accept service in the case.

HER DOG NOW A VANITY BOX

Miss Chase's Memorial to Late Camille Planned for Utility.

Miss Edna Chase of this city, who returned last evening from Italy by the Cunarder Caronia, carried a lifelike looking bull terrier that some passengers mistook at first for a real dog. It was just a dead terrier converted into a sort of bonbon and vanity box.

The talk of the saloon was that the terrier originally was named Camille and that its owner had had many years and had become greatly attached to it. When it died she had a taxidermist fix it up so she might carry it around as she had when it was alive and at the same time make it serve a useful purpose.

CAMBRIDGE DRY, MAYOR GOOD

Moose Man a Bad Third Where the Colonel Went to College.

BOSTON, March 10.—Timothy Good, City Treasurer and a Democrat, was elected Mayor of Cambridge to-day over Wendell D. Rockwood, Citizens' nominee, and Arthur F. Blanchard, Progressive. Good received 7,207 votes to 2,856 for Rockwood and 902 for Blanchard.

The chief interest was in the liquor question and Cambridge voted 6,767 to 5,005 to remain "dry."

BRIDE A WIDOW IN TWO DAYS

Married to a Tuberculous Sufferer at His Request.

SOUTH NORWALK, Conn., March 10.—Miss Alice Ward De Witt, a divorcee in Trinity Church, Hartford, became the wife of Harold Reid Weston at his wish, late Saturday night, after it became known that Mr. Weston had only a few hours to live. Death severed the union at 9 o'clock this morning.

After eight years suffering from tuberculosis Mr. Weston was told on Saturday that his end was near. Miss De Witt was then summoned from Hartford to the bedside for the marriage ceremony, which the Rev. Charles A. Marks performed with Mr. Weston's widowed mother as the witness.

DR. BLAKE MAY BE ON WAY TO EUROPE

"D. Bone Chose," Passenger on Lusitania, Bears Resemblance to Surgeon.

HIS NAME IS ON TRUNK

Rumor That He Will Live in Paris Denied at His Home Here.

When the Lusitania sailed for Fishguard and Liverpool last evening there was considerable curiosity over the identity of the occupant of Cabin D-31. Arriving half an hour before the steamship left her pier he had registered as D. Bone Chose, residence New York city, when he paid for a ticket purchased provisionally on Monday.

The mystery and the curiosity were due to the fact that the small steamer trunk which was taken to his cabin bore the name "Blake" plainly printed on one end and that the owner of the trunk bore a remarkable resemblance to Dr. Joseph A. Blake, the surgeon, whose wife got a final decree of separation from Supreme Court Justice Newburger on March 5.

A visit to Cabin D-31 brought a valet to the door, who said finally that he was Edward Egatt, valet for Dr. Blake, who lived at 198 East Sixty-fifth street. The valet said at first that neither "D. Bone Chose" nor Dr. Blake was in the cabin, and it did not make any difference that some one behind the door had a coughing spell.

Secretary Issues Denial

After a time the man said that if inquiries would come to the house in East Sixty-fifth street later in the day there would be a statement for publication. He went ashore just before the lines were cast off, but at the East Sixty-fifth street house last night a young woman who said she was Dr. Blake's secretary declared that the report that Dr. Blake had called was incredible. Egatt was not in she said the night he had told her.

"Why, I saw him this afternoon," she declared, "and the doctor did not say a word to me about going away on any trip."

Asked when she had seen her employer she finally admitted that it was some time before 6 o'clock.

"I could not say exactly," she replied, "he is in and out so much."

Asked again if the doctor had any engagements for the next few days she replied that she did not keep the engagement book. One of the maids at the house said soon after that she understood the doctor was out to dinner and would not return until late.

Dr. Blake is one of the most noted surgeons of the city, and there was general surprise when, in September, 1912, his wife brought suit for separation against him, alleging that he had deserted her without cause. The plaintiff was represented by George Gordon Battie and the defendant by Cornelius J. Sullivan. The case was committed to a referee, who reported in favor of the wife. It is understood there was no defence interposed.

Two Sons Living

The Blakes were married in 1890. There are two sons, one now past 21 and the other a minor. There was no provision for alimony made in the decree, although the wife originally asked for $15,000 a month, asserting that her husband had an income of $100,000 a year. It was said by Mr. Battie yesterday that the matter of alimony was settled by a cash payment and ample securities for support of the wife.

It had been reported that Dr. Blake may take up a residence in Paris and practise there. Some of his personal effects are said to have gone over on the Philadelphia the other day. At his house last night there was considerable excitement over the question of his permanent departure, but every one said emphatically there was no such idea entertained so far as they knew. His home is as he left it and all agreed that his practice in New York has not been abandoned.

GIRL BRAVES ICE TO WED

Crosses Hudson in Rowboat Through Flies to Meet Sweetheart.

YONKERS, March 10.—Miss Maud Allison of Alpina, N. J., braved the ice floes in the Hudson River to get married to-day.

Accompanied by her father, August Allison, she crossed the river in a rowboat and came to Yonkers. At the public pier she was met by her fiancé, Albert G. Reichbank of 79 Yonkers avenue.

TRIES TO HIDE GEM WITH KISS

Alleged Burglar, Captured, Adopts New Way to Conceal Loot.

When Detectives Ward and Christie arrested William Romer, 35 years old, in a furnished room at 119 Jay street, Brooklyn, last night, on a charge of breaking into a saloon at 2 A. M. yesterday morning and emptying the till, the prisoner tried to kiss Mabel Michaels, who was present, in an effort to dispose of a diamond ring, part of the loot from the saloon.

The detectives proved too wary and got the ring.

The saloon keeper, Samuel Autor, of 201 Smith street, identified watches, chains, rings and pins valued at $400, which were found in the prisoner's room. The girl wore the wedding ring of Autor's wife. He also identified a dollar bill with the initials J. W. M. written on the white margin as one that he had taken over the bar. He said a customer always wrote those initials on a bill before parting with it.

Romer will be arraigned in the Butler street court this morning on a charge of burglary.

ROCKPILE FOR AUTO SPEEDER

Portland, Ore., Clubman Gets Five Day Sentence.

PORTLAND, Ore., March 10.—For speeding his automobile at a rate of fifty miles an hour Sunday afternoon W. C. Barker, aged 40, clubman, heir to the Barker estate and recently a bridegroom, was sent to the rock pile for five days to-day when he entered a plea of guilty in the Municipal Court. The plea of guilty precluded the possibility of an appeal to a higher court.

A few months ago his relatives caused a guardian to be appointed, claiming that Barker had spent $100,000 in three years of riotous living, and he received an allowance of $125 a month. He was arrested once before for speeding, but escaped with a fine.

CHURCH BACKS NEW DANCES

Allows Hestiation Under Eyes of Chaperon—Tango Next, Maybe.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., March 10.—Unity Church here does not discourage the modern steps. It has decided to permit the teaching and dancing of them at the regular semi-monthly dances under the church auspices.

The trustees, sanctioning the innovation in the monthly bulletin of the church, say that "proper chaperonage" is the only requirement. The onstep and the hestiation will serve as "starters" at the church dances. It is believed that the tango will follow later.

MOON ECLIPSED TO-NIGHT

At 11:12 Its Disk Will Be Nineteenth Obscured.

The moon will be eclipsed to-night, entering the shadow at precisely 9:41 8-19 o'clock and emerging at 12:44 on Thursday morning.

The eclipse will be visible from all points in North and South America, western Europe and western Africa. The shadow of the earth will not entirely cover the moon, but at 11:12 9-10, the middle point of the eclipse, more than nine-tenths will be obscured.

$150,000 FIRE FAILS TO SPOIL SOCIETY DINNER

Cleveland Hostess Has Second Course Served Elsewhere When Club Burns.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 10.—A real society dinner party in Cleveland can't be spoiled by a $150,000 fire, as was evidenced this afternoon when the Mayfield Country Club burned down twice the soup and the fish.

Mrs. George H. Quayle entertained thirty-seven society women at the club. The dinner progressed as far as the soup and the guests were conversing, pending the arrival of the fish, when an employee of the club burst into the room and yelled "Fire!"

The guests made a hurried exit, while Mrs. Quayle stepped to the nearest telephone. When she had joined her guests outside it was found that the entire top floor of the clubhouse was ablaze. After watching the fire for a short time Mrs. Quayle bundled her guests into their automobiles and the party was whisked to the Hotel Statler. The secret of her telephoning was revealed when the guests were ushered into a private dining room. There on the table was the fish course, already served, and the rest of the dinner followed.

EARLE TAKES "APACHE" TITLE

Will Sign Letters in Future With That Appellation.

SPECIAL CABLE DISPATCH TO THE SUN
BLOIS, March 10.—Ferdinand Pinney Earle, Miss Charlotte Hermann and Maitre de Brugieres, their counsel in the recent trial at Romorantin for the kidnapping of Earle's son, left here to-day for Paris. They arrived in this city on Sunday and visited the Chateau and the environs yesterday.

Miss Hermann said she was very happy to be free. She speaks in the most appreciative way of her treatment by the female warders at the Romorantin prison. Earle said he is glad the affair is over. He added that henceforth he will conclude all his letters with "Your Great Apache," the title bestowed on him during the trial.

MR. GOULD BUYS CLAM
