

McADOO RESIGNATION CONSIDERED CERTAIN

His Retirement After Marriage Confidently Predicted Despite Virtual Denials.

WEDDING DATE A SECRET

Miss Wilson Previously Engaged to a Princeton Man, Who Went West.

WASHINGTON, March 14.—Discussion of the match between Miss Eleanor Wilson, the President's daughter, and William G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury, was continued with unabated interest to-day. Much attention was given to that aspect of the union which concerns the Secretary's official future, and from many sources the confident prediction followed that the marriage would eventually lead to the retirement from the Administration. Despite denials by friends of the President and Mr. McAdoo that either of them is giving serious consideration to the advisability of the Secretary's resignation, many people in private and official life here refuse to believe that he will remain at the head of the Treasury Department very long after his marriage.

It was said on authority that the Secretary has no thought of resigning and that the President has no intention of asking for the resignation.

The prophets base their expectations not so much on the attitude that the President and his prospective son-in-law have toward each other at present as upon the official difficulties growing out of the marriage which, it is believed, will cause the Secretary, no matter what his intentions are now, to withdraw from the official family.

A Family Affair.

The second White House wedding in the Wilson Administration will be purely a family affair. Secretary McAdoo and Miss Wilson are not even taking their intimate friends into their confidence as to the date, but society has fixed it for early in June. It is believed that Mr. McAdoo will be so busy the next two months organizing the Federal reserve system and putting into effect the new currency law that he will not have time to get married.

Secretary McAdoo was in his office early to-day wearing a broad smile as he received congratulations from his friends, but was absolutely uncommunicative as to his plans.

Miss Wilson's friends also flocked to the White House to congratulate her. The President and Mrs. Wilson regard their family affairs as confidential. They regard the marriage of their daughter as a subject not for news and it was made plain to the Executive officials that there would be no further formal announcements concerning the approaching wedding. It is known, however, that although esteeming Mr. McAdoo highly, the Wilson family hesitated to sanction the betrothal because of the disparity in the ages of the couple. Mr. McAdoo is a grandfather; Miss Eleanor is younger than one of Mr. McAdoo's six children.

It has been given out by those concerned that the wedding will take place in the East Room and that Miss Margaret Wilson will be her sister's maid of honor as she was for her other sister.

The announcement of the engagement was no surprise to the friends of either family. They had known for some time that there was to be such an announcement. Mr. McAdoo made no effort to conceal his pleasure in being in Miss Wilson's society. She has had practically no special attention from any other man this winter.

Previous Engagement Broken.

When the family came to the White House last spring it was understood that Miss Eleanor Wilson was engaged. For a long time the name of the lucky man was a matter of speculation. If he ever came to the White House, and their friends did, the visits were carefully guarded from the press and the public.

He is a New Jersey resident—a Princeton man—but went West for his health and has been there since. It was known only to Miss Wilson's intimate friends and the members of the family that the engagement was broken this fall of winter. He was "Mr. King" to acquaintances of the Wilson family and the rest of his name has remained a secret with those who knew.

Several weeks ago some members of the Wilson family wrote to friends of the breaking of the engagement and the probable early announcement of the present. Secretary McAdoo and his fiancée were the centre of attraction at a ball given this evening by the Naval Attache of the French Embassy and Viscountess d'Alby.

An interesting point in connection with the engagement of Miss Wilson to Secretary McAdoo is the fact that Floyd May, Georgia, from which her mother came, was a namesake in honor of Mr. McAdoo's great-grandfather, Gen. John Floyd, who was in command of the Creek Indian troops in the Creek Indian wars of 1812 and 1813. Mrs. Wilson's old home was at Home, in Floyd county.

WOMAN ACQUITTED OF MURDER.

Chicago Jury Finds Mrs. Van Keuren Did Not Kill Husband.

CHICAGO, March 14.—Twelve jurors reached the evidence in a murder case which had lasted for three days, took the ball and filed into the court room with a verdict freeing Mrs. Louise Van Keuren of the charge of slaying her husband because he discovered her alleged relations with another man.

Mrs. Van Keuren threw her arms about her attorney and embraced a stalwart son who sat at her side throughout the trial. She was acquitted for the third time to-day and court officials had to fight back crowds of sympathetic women who pressed forward to congratulate her.

Prosecutor Witty threw up his hands with a little gesture of despair.

"Well, it has been demonstrated again that you cannot convict a woman of murder in a Chicago court," he commented.

Mrs. Louise Van Keuren is the servant of a woman acquitted of murder in Chicago in the last two years.

MRS. VANDERBILT ECONOMICAL.

Declines Special Train When the Cost is Figured.

EL PASO, Tex., March 14.—Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., is journeying from New York to Pasadena, Cal., in a private car, and when it was sidetracked at Sanderson, Tex., the western terminus of the road from San Antonio, she chartered a special engine and came to El Paso. Upon her arrival here she announced her intention of continuing the trip by special train, but when the mileage was estimated for her and she saw the total cost of such a trip she wailed.

Mrs. Vanderbilt had twenty tickets, necessary for her private car, but it required fifty-five more for a special train, and the total would have been $2,250. She decided that a few hours was not worth the price, so she spent the afternoon viewing the scenery in the railroad yards and took the night train out.

LUSITANIA AFTER RECORD.

Hustling to Afters Speed Honors From Sister Mauretania.

The Cunarder Lusitania is flying eastward, making an effort to beat the record of her distinguished sister, the Mauretania. She reported by wireless yesterday that she captured at least one laurel from the Mauretania, reeling off on Friday 618 knots, the best run for a nautical day (about twenty-three hours) going east. The Mauretania's record to Queens-town, where the Lusitania does not stop, is 4 days 13 hours and 41 minutes. It is believed that the Lusitania will beat the Mauretania's average for the trip.

Up to noon yesterday the average of the Lusitania was 26.1 knots. She carries 300 saloon passengers, and they may be landed at Fishguard this morning.

OFFERS TO DIE IN PLAN TO IMPROVE THE RACE

Inmate of Insane Asylum Writes to Physician Who Would Chloroform the Unfit.

CHICAGO, March 14.—During the trial of William Cheney Ellis, recently convicted for murdering his wife in the Hotel Sherman, Dr. G. Frank Lydston, who became famous through gland transplantation, proposed in a newspaper interview to protect society and improve the race by chloroforming the criminally insane and the incurables at State Institutions.

Dr. Lydston received a letter to-day from an inmate of an asylum in a neighboring State who offers to be the first to meet death in the plan for world betterment. Dr. Lydston declined to make known the writer's name. The letter in part follows:

"I beg as one to congratulate you on your statement advocating the killing of the criminal insane as a means to purify social conditions, but beg that you include the absolutely incurable and those believed by others a menace to that same society. I am a patient of above institution as an insane person, with no hope of ultimate freedom or enjoyment of any possible home benefits and without friends or relatives 'who can truthfully be called such.'"

"You can utilize me if necessary as a volunteer to leave this world for the benefit of the insane. Put my case on record, get the Legislature and Congress to make laws to destroy us, including myself. I will cheerfully take my place on the operating table to be chloroformed to death."

The document represented millions of work by hundreds of canvassers.

Hurricane Blows Trains Off Tracks, Sweeps Houses Into Sea.

ST. PETERSBURG, March 14.—More than 1,000 persons were drowned in Ciscaucasia during a violent hurricane to-day. The hurricane prevailed in the province of Kuban. One hundred and fifty perished in the town of Yarenkaya.

All along the Black Sea trains were blown from the tracks by the terrific force of the hurricane.

BARONESS ARRESTED AS A SHOPLIFTER

Wife of Ex-German Consul of Boston Held in $850 Bail in Night Court.

THREATENS TO END LIFE

Mrs. Reincke Said to Have Stolen Trifling Articles—Lives in New Jersey.

A woman who said she was Mrs. Nona Reincke, wife of Wilhelm Theodor Reincke, until the first of the year German Consul at Boston, was arrested in a Broadway department store yesterday afternoon charged with shoplifting.

At first she threatened vengeance upon the store and cited her relatives to prove her power, but later she became tearful and appealed for sympathy, saying that she would have to commit suicide if her husband found her out.

Subsequent events in her case tended to prove that she is the wife of the former German Consul at Boston, and is a member of the German aristocracy, the daughter of a high official at the Kaiser's court, and a Baroness in her own name. She was released late at night in the women's night court, after her husband had put up $350 cash bail.

Miss Flora Porter, the store detective who caused her arrest, believes that the woman is a kleptomaniac. After the detection, when tears had supplanted threat, Mrs. Reincke is said to have admitted that she had stolen in the same store ten days ago. That time she was content to take half a dozen shoe laces; the total value of the articles she took yesterday was $9.15.

Seen to Take Corset Lace.

Miss Porter said she noticed Mrs. Reincke saunter from counter to counter, leaning heavily against displays of small articles, and at last saw her put a corset lace in her big muff. Then she sauntered on to the glove counter. Miss Porter saw her stuff a pair of gloves in her muff. The next counter visited contained a display of inexpensive pin cushions. Mrs. Reincke helped herself to one of these and then walked casually out of the store.

Miss Porter followed her to the street and nudged her elbow. Mrs. Reincke became indignant, but Miss Porter soon convinced Mrs. Reincke that it was best to go to the office of the store in company with Detectives Marky and Murray of the Mercer street station.

Miss Porter looked into Mrs. Reincke's muff, and there are the articles she says she found stowed away in a secret pocket; six shoe laces, four collars and cuffs, one pin cushion, a pair of gloves, two pairs of stockings, one corset lace and six toothbrushes.

Then Mrs. Reincke broke down, it is said, and declared that she couldn't help taking these things, that she didn't need them, as she had plenty of them and could easily pay for all she wanted.

"My husband will shoot me if he ever hears of this," she is quoted. "It would be better to commit suicide."

Lives in New Jersey.

She was very well dressed and looked much younger than the forty years which she said was her age. She said she lives at 175 Springfield avenue, Summit, N. J. She was taken to the Mercer street station and kept there until the night court for women opened.

She looked completely out of place in the pen while she was waiting for Magistrate Barlow to hear her case. She wore a brown suit of modish cut, a green silk waist, brown pants on her patent leather shoes and a smart hat. Before arraignment she sent a note to Magistrate Barlow in which she asked that her case be postponed.

When she was finally led before the bar Magistrate Barlow explained her rights, and Mrs. Reincke said she would prefer not to have her case heard there. Magistrate Barlow suggested that it be postponed until Monday evening at 8 o'clock, and she assented. The Magistrate then fixed bail at $500 and Mrs. Reincke was taken back to the pen.

A few minutes later her husband, a tall blond German, hurried into the court room. He said he only had $350 with him and Magistrate Barlow finally reduced the bail to $350, which Mr. Reincke put up, and he and his wife left the court. Both of them refused to make any statement to the reporters.

AMERICAN WOMAN ARRESTED.

Berthe Richet of San Francisco Accused of Theft in Paris.

PARIS, March 14.—Berthe Richet, divorced wife of Mr. Herault, a San Francisco railroad contractor, was arrested here to-day on a charge of stealing 200,000 francs ($40,000) from an aged woman named Mme. Saint Germain, also of San Francisco.

$2,500 PEARL LOST IN PARK.

Woman Guest of Plaza Hotel Dropped It From Earring.

Some casual pedestrian on the east walk of Central Park to-day is likely to catch the gleam of a circlet of gold enclosing a round shell white object. He is advised to pick it up forthwith.

It is a $2,500 pearl lost yesterday afternoon. The management of the Plaza Hotel will be very glad to tell him all about it. A wealthy woman guest went for a walk in the park yesterday afternoon. She wore this pearl and the mate in her ears. When she came back she found that the one had slipped from its catch.

Hotel employees made diligent search but without success. Now there is a reward. They will not give the name of the woman.

STANFORD SECOND RICHEST UNIVERSITY

Great School on the Coast States Its Wealth for the First Time.

NOW WORTH $24,000,000

Harvard Leads Them All, With Chicago Third and Yale Fourth.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 14.—For the first time Stanford University was found the trustees have issued a financial statement, which shows that the wealth of the institution amounts to $24,000,000. This includes the original endowment for general maintenance, the capital increase since then and other endowments and special funds, but it does not include the value of campus lands, buildings, equipment, &c., since they are not revenue producers.

The income was more than $1,400,000 last year. The largest item of expense was professors' salaries. Nearly $425,000 was so spent, and for taxes $47,000. The Stanford library is well endowed. No less than $40,000 was spent last year on new books. The library has a fund of half a million dollars secured from the sale of Mrs. Stanford's jewels.

Of the new endowments of the year the largest were $100,000 by Thomas Nelson Stanford of Australia for the psychology research, $20,000 for Lane medical lectures and the Dr. Harkness endowment of $10,000 for medical books.

A comparison of the above figures with reports from other institutions for last year shows that Stanford is second only to Harvard in the amount of productive funds, although several universities have a larger annual income than has Stanford. Harvard's wealth is $27,441,918 and her total income, including tuition, fees and incidental charges, is $2,487,500. Chicago University stands third in endowment, with $18,145,168. Yale fourth, with $14,654,414. Rice institute in Texas, founded by the man of whose murder Albert T. Patrick was accused, is fifth, with $10,000,000; Cornell sixth, with $8,656,477; Columbia seventh, with $7,000,000; Pennsylvania, with $6,655,323; Johns Hopkins, with $5,969,000, and Princeton, with $5,194,861.

Some of the State universities, depending largely on annual appropriations, have bigger incomes than endowments. The University of Wisconsin, for example, which has only $474,784 in productive property, has an income of $2,155,793—considerably more than Stanford's. The University of Michigan has $309,709 in productive capital and an income of $1,905,159 and Yale's is $1,658,285. Some of the State universities, depending largely on annual appropriations, have bigger incomes than endowments. Princeton's is $1,237,584, Cornell's is $2,487,500, Princeton's is $1,239,042, Chicago's is $1,740,925, Pennsylvania's is $1,905,159 and Yale's is $1,658,285.

Several theological seminaries have big endowments. Princeton's is $3,250,000 before her death; $1,000 to Mr. Walmough's butler, William Green; $500 each to Kate, his cook; to Molly, another maid, and to Frederick Williams, a servant.

The residue of his estate is bequeathed to Mr. Walmough's two friends, Ferdinand Keller, Sr., dealer in antiques, and his wife, Mrs. Matilda Keller.

NEWPORT MAY BE PARTLY 'DRY.'

Belleuve Avenue Will Probably Be an Arid District.

NEWPORT, March 14.—Unless some way can be found by which liquor may be sold or served without a license it looks as though the fashionable Belleuve avenue district is to be a dry place this summer.

There are in the district four or five establishments, restaurants and hotels, where the serving of liquor is almost a necessity for these establishments to get any patronage. These places have not received any license from the Board of License Commissioners.

Newport, under the law, has fifty-four licenses, of which the license board has already granted fifty-three, leaving one more available.

Brewer Walmough Cuts Relatives Out of $400,577 Estate.

PHILADELPHIA, March 14.—The will of John G. Walmough, father-in-law of Judge Gorman, who made a fortune in the brewing business here, leaves $400,577 to five servants and two close friends, but disinherits relatives. By the provisions of the will, against which no protest has been filed, $100,000 is bequeathed to Zalle Faget, a French maid employed to wait upon Mrs. Walmough before her death; $1,000 to Mr. Walmough's butler, William Green; $500 each to Kate, his cook; to Molly, another maid, and to Frederick Williams, a servant.

The residue of his estate is bequeathed to Mr. Walmough's two friends, Ferdinand Keller, Sr., dealer in antiques, and his wife, Mrs. Matilda Keller.

PRIEST HUNTS GANG TO AVENGE SISTER

Father Magrath, Fighting Paragon of Greenwich Village, Seeks Six Thugs.

GIRL'S DEFENDER BEATEN

Assault Within Block of Police Station Kept Secret for a Week.

Father Philip J. Magrath, the two handed fighting priest of the Catholic Seamen's Mission at 422 West street, near Perry street, and the sailors and longshoremen among whom he does his work are scouring through the back alleys and grogshops of Greenwich Village looking for six men.

If the fighting priest finds them it is probable that the law will be allowed to take its course and that the men will be delivered to the custody of the police to stand trial for assault. But if any of the priest's hot headed roustabouts lay hands on them the men will hope for the speedy arrival of the police.

Two of the six men who are being hunted laid violent hands on the priest's young sister, and the other four joined in the attack when a Greenwich Village driver tried to rescue the girl. After beating up the driver the six men escaped.

The assault occurred last Sunday evening, but the police of the Charles street station have kept the matter quiet, not desiring that Commissioner McKay should know how easy it is to commit an assault within a block of that station house and escape arrest.

Known for Her Charity.

The priest's sister is Miss Charlotte Magrath. She is 20 years old, of pretty face and figure and with a mass of Titian hair crowning her head. She lives at 16 Van Ness place and is well known in Greenwich Village through her activity in social and charitable affairs.

She went out walking last Sunday evening with her cousin, Miss Mary Carter, 18 years old, who lives with her. They were on their way home from their walk at 6:30 o'clock, and had arrived at Hudson and Charles streets when a "dark young man" stepped up to Miss Magrath.

Miss Magrath tried to pull away, but the two men held her, making insulting remarks all the time. The harder she struggled the more abusive they became.

"You don't know who I am," she said finally. "I am Father Magrath's sister."

"We don't care who you are," said the men. Then they tried to pull her into a hallway.

Miss Carter stood by all the time, screaming for help. On the other side of the street Harold Fairclough, a driver, of 200 Perry street, was walking with his two children. He recognized Miss Magrath and ran to her aid.

Fairclough struck one of the men on the chin and as he did so the other man jumped on him. Then four more men, of the same type as the first two, appeared from the hallway and piled on top of Fairclough.

Girl's Defender Badly Beaten.

Miss Magrath and Miss Carter ran to the Charles street station, one block away, and gasped out to the lieutenant that a man was being murdered around the corner. When the reserves got there the six men had fled and Fairclough, with two teeth knocked out and his eyes blackened, had been nearly knocked over and run to her aid.

Father Magrath has obtained two John Doe warrants and has been investigating the assault all week.

"I don't believe that any of the neighborhood gangs have done this," he said. "There were a number of witnesses to the assault, and from what I have learned I believe the men came from the lower East Side. I don't believe that the men were actuated by a desire to get revenge for me for anything I have done and for that reason tried to harm my sister. I am sure that the men who did it did not know who she was."

The gangs most active in Greenwich Village are the Hudson Dusters and the Five Alley gang. Most of the members of these gangs know Miss Magrath by sight.

DROUILLARDS, DIVORCED, SUE.

Accused of Ruining Contents of Fifth Avenue House They Rented.

Mrs. A's Borg Drouillard, daughter of Paul J. Borg, the tobacco manufacturer, and her former husband, Capt. James P. Drouillard, from whom she recently got a final decree of divorce, were sued in the Supreme Court yesterday for ruining the contents of the house at 1098 Fifth avenue, which they rented furnished at $18,000 a year from Sarah J. A. Hall. The plaintiff alleges that the furnishings have been torn, stained, burned and otherwise injured and that many articles have been destroyed.

Former Nannie Langhorne to Entertain Dressmaker's Employees.

LONDON, March 14.—Mrs. Waldorf Astor, formerly Nannie Langhorne Shaw, will give a ball on March 21 at her home in St. James's Square for seventy-five girl employees of her dressmaker. Each girl is expected to bring her sweetheart. They will be received by Mrs. Astor and waited on by her servants.

FIRE AT OLD EASTERN HOTEL.

Guests Flee From Burning Building—Damage $25,000.

Fire, which started on the top floor of the Eastern Hotel, Whitehall and South streets, late yesterday afternoon burned the roof and top floor and did $25,000 damage. Three families with four children that had arrived from Europe by the liner Mauretania got out of the building safely with their baggage. Twenty or thirty other persons also escaped from the building. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The Eastern Hotel was opened May 9, 1822, as the Eagle Hotel. Its name was changed later to the Great Eastern, in honor of the big cable ship of that name. It was rebuilt and called the Eastern.

It was at the old hotel that F. T. Barnum kept his "Cardiff Giant." Jenni Manhattan, Rita-Carleton and Delmonico's private concerts there. Daniel Webster was one of the early patrons.

SPURS POLICE TO END AWNINGS ON SIDEWALK

McKay Commands Captains to Force Hotels to Obey New Order.

All the big hotels and restaurants in the East Fifty-first street police precinct were again notified yesterday that they must remove awnings, canopies and coverings over the sidewalk and keep them down except in stormy weather. Some of the hotels affected are the Plaza, the Savoy, the Gotham, St. Regis, Manhattan, Ritz-Carleton and Delmonico's.

Police Commissioner McKay on ten days ago ordered his captains to have the coverings removed. Borough President Marks riding up Fifth avenue last Friday saw that the order was not being obeyed. He stopped his automobile in front of the Savoy and called a policeman.

"Have those people received the order the Commissioner sent out?" asked Mr. Marks.

The policeman said they had received it, but seemed to believe it would not be enforced. The Borough President remarked that perhaps they might be induced to change their views.

The policeman went inside and in about five minutes a gang of porters appeared and removed the awning.

Capt. Thor, who had already sent out notice of the order, had some of his men go again to the hotels and restaurants yesterday.

TAFT WON'T HEAD ANY COLLEGE.

Declines Delaware Presidency, Saying He Isn't Fitted for It.

WILMINGTON, Del., March 14.—Ex-President Taft will not accept the presidency of any university or college, according to a letter received from him by Dr. George W. Marshall of Milford, Del., President pro tempore of the Delaware State Senate, declining a tentative offer to become president of Delaware College, Newark, Del., at a salary of $5,000 a year. Dr. Marshall is a trustee of the college.

"I am quite content with my position in New Haven," wrote Mr. Taft, "and I could not accept the presidency of any university or college for two reasons, first, because I am not fitted for it, and second, because I have other work in which I believe I can do more good."

DOG THAT BIT FIVE HAD BABIES.

Victims of Pet in Danville, N. J., Coming Here for Treatment.

DENVER, N. J., March 14.—Adolph Foerster, proprietor of the Wayside Inn, received a telegram to-day from the Pasteur Institute, New York, saying that an analysis of the brain of his pet French bulldog, which bit five persons Wednesday, showed the animal to have rabies.

The victims are Mrs. Foerster and her little daughter, Father Burns, a priest who was stopping at a local sanitarium, Stewart Ronaldson, employed at the Inn, and Walter Clark, the twelve-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Clark. The priest was bitten on both legs. The priest is already at the Pasteur Institute, and the others bitten will leave Monday to take treatment. Dogs bitten by the same animal have been shot.
