

HERBERT ONLY HOME BOY TO WIN A TITLE

Horace Mann Swimmer Captures 50 Yard Swim in National Title. FOUR GO TO BAY STATE Brookline High School Takes Crown in 100, 200, Plunge and Fancy Dive.

Of the six events decided in the national scholastic swimming championships last night in the New York Athletic Club only one was captured by a New York school. This was the fifty yards dash, won by Philip S. Herbert of Horace Mann School.

The Brookline High School, Brookline, Mass., entries took four titles, the 100 yard and furlong swims, the plunge for distance and the fancy diving competition. The first two of these were won by Leo A. Handy, who is the New England A. A. U. champion at the furlong, the quarter and the half mile. In the races which this youngster won he simply outclassed the field, and shortly after the swimmers hit the water the interest centered on the fight for second place.

The distance plunge went to Arthur E. Wailes, who made 53 1/2 feet, eleven and a half feet better than the effort of John Ramey of Poly Prep. Francis Jouanet, the fourth Brookline boy to win, was the best among the fancy divers, all three of the judges picking him as the winner.

The Phillips Andover relay team won the 200 yard relay in hollow style. It finished more than fifteen yards ahead of the nearest rival, De Witt Clinton.

ALEX SMITH COCHRAN'S CUP DEFENDER NEARS COMPLETION

Vanitie Defiance Riveting on Plates Under Way and Yacht Is Expected to Be Ready by April 25.

The Vanitie, the cup defender building at Lawley's for Alexander S. Cochran, is fast assuming shape. Some delay was caused because of an error made in the material sent to the yard for the plating of the vessel, and there was a wait while the new sheets of bronze were sent from the mill. The Vanitie is plated with Tobin bronze, which is the same as was used on the Vigilant twenty-one years ago. Instead of using monel metal rivets, as was planned at first, the rivets will be of the same metal as the plates. This change was made because monel metal was thought to be too hard to use with the bronze. The first plating received at Lawley's was of soft iron and had to be discarded. Now the plating is arriving fast and already the garboards have been attached to the frames and riveting has started. The other plates will be put in position very quickly and it is hoped that by April 25 the yacht will be in the water.

The Vanitie has long lean ends, about 21 1/2 feet forward and 20 1/2 feet aft, making the over all length of the yacht about 117 feet. The bow has all the Gardner characteristics and the after overhang appears to be very small. There is little sheer to the yacht, another Gardner characteristic. The bilges are rather hard, which indicates power. The lead is about seven feet at the highest part, and on the bottom measures about twenty-two feet. This is cut for a centreboard, and as the slot is a wide one, it is figured that the board will be of wood and will drop ten feet if wanted.

In building this yacht the steel frames are of the semi-web construction and the frames are spaced 18 inches on centers. This framing is strengthened by steel straps and longitudinal beams to which the plates are fastened. A fair estimate of the beam of this yacht puts it at a little under 23 feet at the water line and the same at the deck. The lead keel weighs about 62 tons and it is thought that the displacement will be seven feet at the highest part, and will spread about 11,000 square feet of canvas.

The Defiance is constructed in a way very similar to the Vanitie, except that the framing is of the highest part, and the thickness of wood, the inner of Douglas fir and the outer mahogany. Designers are divided in their opinions as to whether the yacht should be of a large racing yacht. It is conceded generally that the wooden planking will shape itself more easily to the designed lines and that the planking is better than when wooden planking is used the framework must be much stronger and heavier and consequently what is gained in weight in one way is lost in another.

The Defiance is the largest yacht ever over all as the Vanitie. She, however, has a different form and her lines are sweeter and easier. Her bilges are not so hard and the sheer is quite different at the garboards as is found in the Vanitie. At the water line the beam of the two yachts is about the same, but the Defiance has a slight overhang at the sides and a decided tumble home toward the deck line. Both yachts are fitted away forward so as to take a little penalty as possible under the quarter beam measurement and the Defiance carries less lead on her keel than the Vanitie.

The board of the Defiance will drop about 4 feet from the water line to the keel, something under 22 feet. The Defiance is from designs by George Owen and in model resembles very much the last Dorado, but is of course much larger and much more powerful.

Owen is carrying out in this yacht his idea of a large mainsail and small headsail, and it is expected that the yacht will be stepped much further forward than the other two defenders and her bowsprit will be the shortest of the trio. In this way she will resemble the catboat rig, which is a hard one to handle, especially when the wind is strong.

The first planking of fir has been finished and Hookdon Bros. will start on the mahogany planking this week. The yacht is to be launched the end of this month and by that time Capt. Howell and the crew will be at Bath ready to help rig the yacht and start sailing as soon as possible. A hollow wooden mainmast and hollow spars have been built and are ready for shipment and a hollow steel mast is being built for use if wanted.

At Herrshoff's the Resolute is a score finished. Burnishers are at work on the underbody and when the yacht is launched that underbody will be as smooth as glass. Finishing touches are being given to different parts of the yacht and the spars so that when launched everything will be ready for the riggers. The sails too are nearly ready and about ten days after the yacht is put overboard she will be ready for her trial trip on Narragansett Bay.

PENN MEN ARGUE WITH COACH. Nickalls, Englishman, Praised Shell They Blame for Defeats.

PHILADELPHIA, April 4.—Once more the University of Pennsylvania varsity crew suffered defeat at the hands of the junior crew to-day and once more Coach Vivian Nickalls shifted the men about. The race this afternoon was over a mile and a half course on the Schuylkill and at the finish the junior eight was fully three boat lengths in the lead. Even the third boat finished ahead of the varsity, but had a length start and just about maintained the lead throughout. The members of the first crew are being complained at and complain that their continued defeats are not their fault, but the fault of the new shell, which was imported from England a few weeks ago. Coach Nickalls claims the shell is the best in America. He is an Englishman, and at the close of the race he announced three more shifts in the varsity. Shoemaker last year's varsity eight, who has been in the junior boat all this season, will replace Chickering at stroke. R. Littleton will replace Crous at No. 7 and Harley will replace Perott at No. 3.

Cornell Surprises Johns Hopkins. BALTIMORE, April 4.—The Cornell lacrosse team handed Johns Hopkins a surprise last afternoon at Homewood when the local team was held to a 3 to 2 score and had to work mighty hard even for this result. Hopkins won by reason of Cornell's excellent work at goal. In the second half the Cornell team downed Hopkins. The Ithaca team played a fast and hard game, their individual star being Charles D. Bartholomew of Baltimore, who learned to play lacrosse at Hopkins several years ago.

FULTZ SAYS RESERVE CLAUSE IS NOT VALID

That's Why Fraternity Doesn't Order Members to Head It. LEGAL OPINION GRATIS Not Equitable, and Indefinite as to Amount of Salary, Reasons He Gives.

David L. Fultz, president of the Baseball Players Fraternity, explained in a lengthy interview yesterday why his association refused to compel its members to consider the reserve rule contained in contracts of organized baseball. The fraternity, he declared, would assume an indignant attitude until the legality of the cause in question had been determined in the courts of law. However, Fultz left no doubt as to his personal sentiments in the matter.

"If this very troublesome clause is tested," said he, "as now seems likely, we believe the result will prove that we have been wise in the stand we have taken." Fultz is a lawyer, and as such, perhaps, his opinion is worthy of consideration, doubly so as, unwaveringly, it was furnished gratis. One loop-hole of attack to the reserve rule, he says, is its many different forms. He claims the major league instruments are entirely different from those which prevail in the minors and that the lesser leagues heretofore have employed such a variety of contracts as to compare favorably to the number of associations operating under the great organization.

The reserve clauses as set forth in the two major league contracts for the season of 1913, and under which players who have jumped to the Federal League must be returned to the major league club, are identical, and to his mind unquestionably unenforceable, said Fultz. "There are two alleged defects in the provisions: First, its inequitable nature in that it binds the player for his entire career, while the club is bound for only ten days; and second, its neglect to state what salary shall be entered into."

The president of the fraternity says no court has the power to compel a player to play with his own team. The sense of the reserve clause, in his estimation, is to prevent that player from appearing with a rival club. Such latter action is possible, he thinks, only in a contract of equity, which is not possible under the present reserve rule.

Lawyer Fultz argues that to equitably the reserve clause must name a definite time, as well as a definite period of time. He cites the case of the Metropolitan Exhibition Company against John M. Ward during the Brotherhood war in 1912, which was the New York baseball club, attempted by a preliminary injunction to restrain a player from appearing with a rival club. The court refused to grant the injunction because the terms were too indefinite, Fultz says. "It is," he continued, "that a court of equity will not make a contract which the parties themselves have not made, and that it will not enforce an indefinite one as elementary propositions of law require."

According to Fultz's statements the reserve clause of Ward's contract was stronger than the one used to-day by the major leagues. It provided that the salary for the succeeding year should not be less than $2,000. The present one provides no minimum whatsoever, leaving the matter entirely with the owners.

On the other hand, Fultz spoke of the case of the Philadelphia Athletics against

Half of the midship sections of Alex Smith Cochran's Vanitie and the tricity yacht Defiance. These drawings come from an authoritative source and show the great variance of design. This difference is explained in an accompanying article.

FRED WALKER HOPS TO FEDS. Refused Brooklyn's Offer and Financially Lands Job.

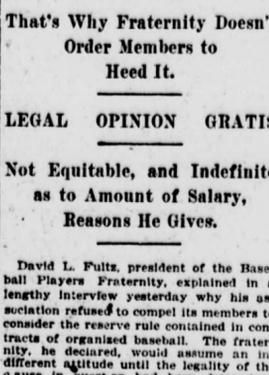

PITTSBURG, April 4.—Pitcher Fred Walker of the Brooklyn National League club, signed a contract to-day with the local Federal League team. He was sent immediately to join the Smoky City Independents at Lynchburg, Va.

Walker was one of the few Dodgers who refused to listen to the arguments of Charles H. Ebbets when the Brooklyn magnate made his famous tour of triumph last winter that netted him nineteen athletes in two weeks. Manager Wilbert Robinson also failed, treble-by conversation, telegram and letter.

This very promising young pitcher was secured late last summer from the Southern League. He had an exalted opinion of the value of his services, and was so persistent in his demands that Brooklyn finally told him he could take what was offered or shift for himself.

Yale Loses Star Pitcher. NEW HAVEN, April 4.—Lefty Waltrous, Yale's new sensational pitcher, has been lost to the nine through a scholarship technically.

Walter S. Ward

Young treasurer of the Brooklyn Federal League club.

Lajoie. This club on the strength of the reserve clause secured an injunction from the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania against the great Frenchman. The fraternity executive declares that Lajoie's contract provided for a renewal of terms at the same salary for a period of three years, thus doing away with the objection of want of definiteness.

Fultz further offered gratis to organized baseball a suggestion that it steer wide of the law courts on the reserve clause controversy. He admitted that clubs had to protect themselves by conserving the best talent against chance lures of the moneyed rivals. But this he thinks can be adjusted readily through some agreement among the club owners and not by imposition upon the players.

"Organize baseball," says Fultz, "for any other action which relies upon this clause to recover a player who has disregarded it, will therefore be wise if it takes its medicine and does not insist upon bringing the point to an issue, as the only result will be to rob the clause of its little validity, as a matter of tradition, it still has left."

HARVARD PLAYS FLUCKILY. Gives Boston Hockey Club Veterans Hard Battle at Lacrosse.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 4.—The Harvard lacrosse team, playing a match with the Boston Hockey Club, which comprises old Harvard varsity men, made a good showing to-day against the veterans and held them to a 7 to 4 score. The Crimson youngsters showed flashes of good attack and held the same close until near the finish. The lineup:

Harvard: Lincoln, Goal; Cochrane, Master; Coverpoint, Hallock; Boston: First defence, Harrington; Second defence, Cotton; Third defence, Nash; Forward, Nash; Centre, Nash; Back, Nash; Goalkeeper, Nash.

Four Feners Come Through. Steadford Pitt, Jr., of Columbia University, E. B. Myers of the Feners Club of New York, Sherman Hall and F. J. Hyne, both of the New York A. C., came through successfully last night in the qualifying round for the national championship with scores at the New York Athletic Club gymnasium. The first three named won four hours and just two, while Byrne won three and dropped two.

YALE BEATEN AT HANDBALL. Loses Every Match in Dual Contest With Whitehall Club.

Yale's handball team received a bad beating yesterday in a dual contest with the Whitehall Club at the latter's courts on the roof of the Whitehall Building. The latter won every match, five a set and two doubles. Yale won only two games out of sixteen played. Otto N. Sternerd, however, met a grim opponent in J. F.
