

DERNBURG SAILS; NOT 'REVENGEFUL'

"Good Time to Leave," He Says: "for It Is Getting Very Hot Here."

HOPES WAR IS NEAR END

Dr. Bernhard Dernburg sailed away from the United States yesterday on the Norwegian-American Line steamship Bergenfjord, which will land him at Bergen, Norway. Mrs. Dernburg was with him. They will proceed at once to Berlin.

Just after 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Dernburg arrived at Pier 4, Bush Terminal—the Bergenfjord was scheduled to sail at 2—and until sailing time they were kept busy parting with friends and taking care of innumerable bouquets and baskets of fruit that were sent to their stateroom.

They were both in high spirits. They posed smilingly for the photographers, and Dr. Dernburg parried with evident delight pertinent questions propounded by a dozen reporters.

The mercury stood at 84 on the shady side of the Bergenfjord, where Dr. Dernburg was interviewed. The former German propagandist leader and Imperial German Colonial Minister did not avoid the reporters. He almost sought them, seeming to feel that he was well capable of stemming the flood of questions.

"It is a good time to leave New York," he began. "It is getting hot here."

"Are you glad to go?" the reporter wanted to know.

"That is an irrelevant," retorted Dr. Dernburg. He smiled and waved his cigar, evidently enjoying the failure to penetrate his guard.

"I have been treated indiscriminately nicely in this country except on a certain occasion, about which I would prefer to say nothing," he said in answer to another question. "My only hope is that the struggle now going on in Europe will soon be over, honorably for everybody. My feelings for this country remain absolutely unchanged."

Dr. Dernburg admitted that "certain occasions" to which he referred was the Lusitania incident, but he refrained from further comment. He would not talk about the existing relations between the United States and Germany; neither would he discuss past relations, nor prophesy for the future. He was not revengeful regarding the Lusitania affair, he said.

Some one wanted to know what his feelings for America were after he had said they remained "absolutely unchanged." "What face do I show?" he answered, and that was all the reply the questioner could get from him.

"It has been reported, Dr. Dernburg, that you wear English-made clothes," one of the reporters said.

"Nonsense," he retorted, looking down at his traveling suit. "Made in America." That ended the interview.

The Dernburgs are travelling under a special safe conduct issued by the American State Department and guaranteed by the Ambassador in Washington from the country at war with Germany. Dr. Dernburg expects to report to the Kaiser on June 20, and it is freely rumored in Berlin that an important position in the Cabinet is waiting for him.

CREWS IN DETENTION CAMPS.

Britain Announces Intention Regarding Submarine Prisoners. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

LONDON, June 12.—The Government made formal announcement today of its intention to hold German submarine prisoners in the detention camps with other prisoners of war. The Foreign Secretary addressed a note to Ambassador Page apprising him of this fact.

"The Government," said the note to Ambassador Page, "will expect that in accordance with this undertaking the German Government will remove at once the thirty-nine British officers held in barracks to the ordinary detention camps."

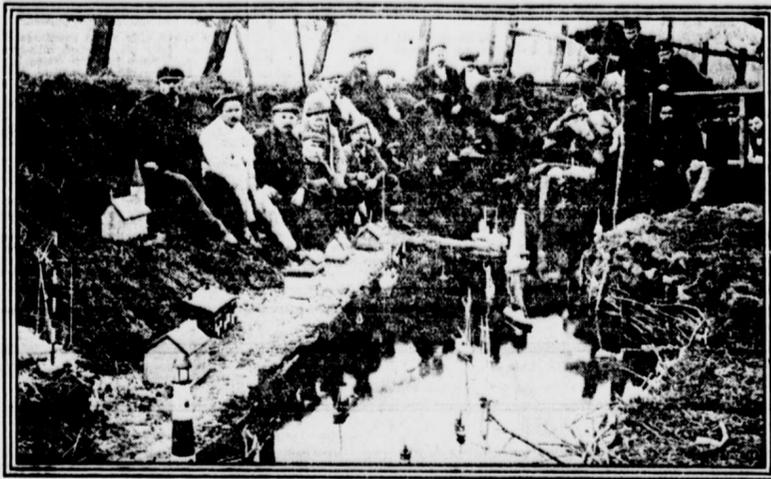

Ambassador Page was requested to convey this information to James W. Gerard, the United States Ambassador at Berlin, and to ask him to see if the thirty-nine British prisoners are removed to detention camps.

THREE MORE CRAFT SUNK.

No Lives Lost When Submarines Get British Steamer and Trawlers. LONDON, June 12.—German submarines have sunk the British steamer Leontia off Yarmouth, and the trawlers Leontia and Wazgo.

No lives were lost, the crews being permitted to leave the vessels.

GERMAN CAPTIVES IN ENGLAND BUILD MINIATURE KIEL CANAL IN PRISON CAMP

Photograph of the miniature Kiel Canal and its fortified entrance, constructed by German war prisoners on the estate of J. Havelock Wilson, at Eastcote, Northamptonshire, England. The love of the German for the Fatherland is illustrated by the reproduction of the church and buildings on the bank. The German prisoners who made the reproduction are sitting on the bank and the English constables who guard the prisoners are leaning over the footbridge.

J. B. Wilson, assistant manager of the McAlpin Hotel, formerly of the Royal Naval Reserve of Great Britain, has received an interesting letter from his father enclosing photographs of the prison camp which has been erected on his father's country place, Eastcote, Northamptonshire. Mr. Wilson's other sons are officers in the navy, one being on the troop ship Campanello and the other on the armored cruiser Cornwall.

J. Havelock Wilson, Sr., was formerly member of Parliament for Middlesbrough and at the commencement of the war recruited a battalion of naval volunteers from the mercantile marine. These have been sent to Belgium and to the Dardanelles, where they distinguished themselves. Owing to ill health Mr.

Wilson was forced into retirement and was placed as commandant of the Eastcote detention camp. There he has over 500 naval and military prisoners of war. In his letter he says that he has a guard of only ten county policemen. The camp is now being enlarged to accommodate five to six thousand additional men, with an armed guard of three to four hundred territorials. Commandant Wilson states that the men under his charge are in excellent health and spirits. It is said to be the finest camp in the United Kingdom. To secure tobacco money for the men he has had photographs taken of the camp and the proceeds of the sale of these are devoted to this purpose. The majority of the men are appreciative, but here and there an intractable and undisciplined spirit is found, which is immediately dealt with by revoking certain privileges. The men give nightly con-

GERMAN "SITUATION" DEVELOPS IN CLUB

Cedarhurst Organization Finds Trouble Over Cards to Embassy Members.

A story went the rounds yesterday to the effect that certain members of the Cedarhurst Country Club at Cedarhurst, L. I., had been successfully engaged recently in a diplomatic maneuver, the object of which was to avoid a possibly unpleasant situation.

As to the details those who hinted at what had taken place were discreetly silent, but in outline the story was that immediately after it became known that Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador, had decided to locate the summer embassy at Cedarhurst this year instead of at Newport, R. I., as in former years, some members of the club thought it would be a great thing to present members of the embassy with membership cards of the Cedarhurst Country Club.

It is understood that the suggestion found a welcome in some quarters and that the names of those to be favored were actually proposed for action on the part of the club. This was some time before the United States and Germany came to the present misunderstanding as to what is and what is not a right to visit in neutral vessels with American citizens aboard.

Along with the new turn in the international situation came the silence of Dr. Dernburg and the understanding that he was to leave his hotel in this city and spend the time previous to his departure for Europe at Cedarhurst, where he could keep in touch with his friends in the German Embassy and be close to the wireless station at Sayville.

Whether it was the report of Dr. Dernburg's intentions alone or the general situation which has developed could not be learned, but those professing to have a line on matters within the Cedarhurst Country Club say that influential members indicated to friends of the members of the German Embassy that there would be satisfaction all around if the names proposed for membership cards could be withdrawn quietly and without discussion before the time came to act upon the proposals. So the story was yesterday that this had been done and that while members of the embassy will undoubtedly be guests here and then during the summer of Cedarhurst Country Club members they will not have the privileges of members. It is understood that the club's reported action will not affect Count von Bernstorff to any great extent as it is his intention to remain much of the time in Washington during the summer because of the present tension in the affairs of the Administration and his country.

FIFTEEN TO TESTIFY IN GERMAN INQUIRY

Federal Grand Jury Will Go On With the Lusitania Affidavit Case.

The Federal authorities, whose investigation of an alleged conspiracy to defraud the Government on the part of German secret agents, landed Gustav Stahl, the Lusitania affidavit maker, in the Tombs on a charge of perjury. He will now try to find out how the other supposedly corroborative affidavits were obtained and presented with Stahl's to the State Department. It was said yesterday that other documents, which furnished only hearsay evidence that the Lusitania carried guns.

The Grand Jury, however, will be asked to consider the affidavit in the light of the alleged conspiracy inquiry directed against Paul Koenig and other persons who are said to have obtained the documents. The Federal agents are anxious to know who, if any one, instigated the making of these affidavits which were used to substantiate Stahl's assertions, and if they were induced whether the German agents who got them were not engaged in a conspiracy to defraud the United States.

The persons who signed the other 14 affidavits have been under surveillance of inspectors working under Capt. William Coffey of the local investigation bureau in the Department of Justice, and can be produced at any time. In the haste of the authorities to get Stahl the others were temporarily passed over.

Edward Sanford, counsel for the Hamburg-American Line, and attorney for Koenig, who is the chief of the satisfaction investigation. The United States Attorney's office intends to learn, it is said, how, if Stahl's affidavit was a chance find, the other affidavits were obtained to corroborate Stahl's story.

Fifteen witnesses will be called before the Federal Grand Jury to give evidence in the conspiracy investigation, it was said. It will take about four days to present the facts to the Grand Jury.

Harold S. Deming, counsel for Stahl, held a two-hour conference with his client in Marshall McCarty's office yesterday, but would not talk about the interview. He is simply getting at the facts, he said, before making an effort to get Stahl out of the Tombs.

ARTIFICIAL LIMBS NEEDED FOR WOUNDED

Relief Societies Here to Hold Conference About Providing Them.

Artificial limbs for the French wounded will be the subject of a conference to be held Wednesday of this week at the headquarters of the British War Relief Association, Inc., 132 West Twenty-seventh street.

The Rockefeller Foundation announced yesterday that Jeremiah Smith, Jr., a lawyer of Boston, called yesterday on the St. Louis to serve as an additional member of the War Relief Commission which is inspecting the afflicted areas of Europe.

A check for $2,000 was received yesterday by the women's section of the committee for Relief in Belgium from Mrs. W. B. Dewey of Boston, who, in her own enterprise, in giving flower fetes she has contributed $7,000.

Other contributions yesterday were $500 from National Bank, $275 from New York State Board of the American Red Cross, $248, and Committee of Mercy, $12,751.25.

The Week in the War.

SUNDAY, June 6.—President Wilson's new note to Germany is held up for unexplained reasons. There is a Zeppelin raid on the east coast of England, a "few casualties" resulting, according to the war office. German submarines sink seventeen British and French ships in three days. Robert Rosenthal, charged in England with espionage, confesses that the German secret service has a complete outfit for counterfeiting United States passports.

MONDAY, June 7.—Rumania issues a mobilization order, though it is understood that war will not be declared, if at all, until after harvest time. King Constantine of Greece is reported near death. Slight gains at heavy cost are reported by the British War Office on the Gallipoli Peninsula. Russians capture German trenches along the San.

TUESDAY, June 8.—A British aeroplane destroys a Zeppelin above Belgian territory, it being the first occurrence of the sort in history. The Teuton forces cross the Dniester at Zurawno in the advance on Lemberg. Italian troops cross the Isonzo at various points from Tolmino to the sea.

WEDNESDAY, June 9.—Secretary of State Bryan resigns because he will not sign the American note to Germany, and it is reported that the note will go forward immediately. The Irish situation causes a semi-crisis in the coalition British Cabinet. Petrograd announces that the German advance on Lemberg is being stayed. The French report fresh gains north of Arras. The Turks report gains at Avl Burnu and Seld El Bahr.

THURSDAY, June 10.—The Germans capture Stanislau in eastern Galicia. The French at last invest Neuville St. Vaast. A German submarine is sunk by a British torpedo boat.

FRIDAY, June 11.—The American note to Germany is made public. It reiterates and amplifies the first note respecting the sinking of the Lusitania. The Italians take Montefione, the first big gain of their campaign. German forces in the Russian Baltic provinces are reported to be retreating.

SATURDAY, June 12.—It is expected at Washington that Germany will assure the safety of passenger ships as a result of the American note of protest respecting her methods of submarine warfare. Gradisca, an important railroad centre on the Isonzo, is taken by Italians. The German advance toward Lemberg is checked by a rally of the Russian forces. German submarines sink five more merchantmen, among them a Swedish ship.
