JAMES J. GOODWIN DIES IN HARTFORD

Cousin and Partner of Late J. P. Morgan Was in His Eightieth Year.

GAVE MUCH TO CHARITY

Hartford, Conn., June 23.—James Junius Goodwin, a capitalist who was rated as one of the wealthiest men in the East, died here today in his eightieth year. He was a cousin of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, the New York banker, with whose firm he was connected for a number of years.

James Junius Goodwin was born at Hartford, Conn., on September 16, 1835. His father was James Goodwin and his mother was Lucy Morgan Goodwin, a sister of Julius Spencer Morgan, who was the father of the late J. Pierpont Morgan. He received his early education at private schools in Hartford and then went to the Hartford High School.

At the age of 38 Mr. Goodwin was married in Philadelphia to Josephine S. Lippinott and by her had three sons, Walter L., James A. and Philip L., all of whom went to Yale. Walter graduated in 1897, James in 1905 and Philip in 1907. Mrs. Goodwin and her sons are now in Hartford.

Mr. Goodwin was for a long time a member of the banking firm of which his cousin, J. Pierpont Morgan, was president. He was also a member of the American Society of the Revolution and the Society of Colonial Wars.

Mr. Goodwin was identified with many corporations and was a director of the New York, Lake Erie and Western Railroad, the New York, Susquehanna and Western Railroad, the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, the Connecticut Trust and Safe Deposit Company, the Connecticut Loan and Trust Company, the Collins Company and the Holyoke Water Power Company.

He belonged to the Union, Century, Metropolitan and Century Clubs, the New York City and the Hartford Club of Hartford, Conn. He was interested in patriotic organizations and was a member of the Sons of the Revolution and the Society of Colonial Wars.

Like most of his relatives on his mother's side of the house he was an Episcopalian and was a member of the Episcopal Church of the Holy Trinity in this city. His New York residence was at 31 West Fifty-fourth street, but he spent most of his time at his Hartford home.

COMMODORE W. H. BEEHLER.

Took Part in Cuban Campaign and Helped to Raise the Maine. Commodore William H. Beehler, U. S. N., retired, died here today after an operation. He was 67 years old.

Commodore Beehler was born in Baltimore and served in the civil war with the Baltimore Home Guards. He was appointed a midshipman at the Naval Academy on July 25, 1864, and served on many ships and stations.

He participated in the Cuban campaign in 1895-1896, and was promoted to the rank of lieutenant commander in August, 1898. Commodore Beehler was assigned to the naval intelligence office and later was sent as naval attaché to the American embassy in Berlin and Rome and the legation at Vienna. He was executive officer of the Montenegro wreck in Havana harbor. The Commodore commanded the naval station at Key West, Fla. He was retired with the rank of Commodore on June 30, 1907.
