

MRS. GALT CHOOSES GREEN IN TROUSSEAU

Suit Trimmed With Beaver and Two Frocks Are Made in Baltimore.

CHINESE INFLUENCE SEEN

BALTIMORE, Oct. 15.—A large part of the trousseau of Mrs. Galt, the president's fiancée, is being made in Baltimore. Two afternoon frocks are being made by a Baltimore dressmaker...

The suit which is believed to be the one which Mrs. Galt intends to wear on the wedding trip is a model in dull green duvety with a chin chin collar and cuffs of beaver. The top of this suit is cut in the figure rather closely. A flare measuring four yards and a half is about the bottom of the coat edged with a wide band of beaver. The coat buttons straight down the front and is worn with a simple slightly flared skirt.

The prettier of the two afternoon frocks is a model in crepe georgette and tulle. The skirt is of a light green color and is mounted on a crepe underskirt. There is an under bodice of tulle flowered in dull rose, over which falls a Chinese sleeveless jacket of crepe georgette and tulle embroidered in self-colored beads.

The other afternoon frock is a combination of crepe chiffon and crepe georgette in shades of green. The bodice is very wide bodiced skirt with bands of plain chiffon in a lighter shade of green set in at intervals above the hem. The skirt is of a light green color and is mounted on a crepe underskirt. There is an under bodice of tulle flowered in dull rose, over which falls a Chinese sleeveless jacket of crepe georgette and tulle embroidered in self-colored beads.

PRESIDENT WILSON ACCEPTS SHADOW LAWN FOR A SUMMER "CAPITOL," BUT WILL PAY RENT

Tells New Jersey Delegation That the Money Could Go to Charity. GLAD TO GO BACK HOME. WASHINGTON, Oct. 15.—Shadow Lawn, the estate at Elberon, N. J., near Long Branch, upon which the late John A. McCall is said to have spent more than $1,000,000 in changing it from unattractive cornfields to one of the show places of the Atlantic seaboard, was formally accepted this morning by President Wilson as a summer home.

A delegation of more than a score of New Jersey Democrats called at the White House to tell the President that the home folks want him to live there whenever he is able to absent himself from Washington. The delegation, whose efforts to have the "summer capital" changed from Cornish, N. H., to the Jersey coast were quite successful, was headed by Representative Scully, Gov. Fielder, who could not accompany the committee to Washington because of a death in his family, sent a letter in which he urgently pleaded with President Wilson to accept the offer to make Shadow Lawn his summer residence.

The delegation, whose efforts to have the "summer capital" changed from Cornish, N. H., to the Jersey coast were quite successful, was headed by Representative Scully, Gov. Fielder, who could not accompany the committee to Washington because of a death in his family, sent a letter in which he urgently pleaded with President Wilson to accept the offer to make Shadow Lawn his summer residence. "Come back," wrote Gov. Fielder, "and in the old familiar surroundings receive the glad tidings of your re-nomination."

New Jersey Wants Him. "We want you to return to New Jersey," was the way Congressman Scully's invitation was worded, "which has given the country the greatest President in its history."

The committee's idea of the terms of the offer of Shadow Lawn was that the President in accepting was not to be put at any expense except the upkeep of his own household. In accepting the invitation the President said: "MR. SCULLY AND GENTLEMEN: It is very delightful to feel at home in this group and to see so many familiar faces and people from back home. As you understand, I am under arrest down here and you are sure that my heart constantly goes back to New Jersey, and when you come on a mission like this, I would like to see you and to have you invite me home the only thing I can say is that I will come. New Jersey means too much to me to make any other offer."

"If you would be generous enough to let me pay the rent that I have been accustomed to pay for a summer place, I would be glad to do it, even if you devoted the money to some charitable object and not to the defraying of the expenses of keeping the place up." "Would You Feel Better. "I think you will understand how I feel about that. It is not that I hesitate for a moment to accept anything from

Back in the days when the late John A. McCall was a poor bookkeeper, so he used to tell his friends of later years when he had become president of the New York Life Insurance Company, an estate of the wonders of his Shadow Lawn had been one of his dreams.

Two years after he had finished it, at a cost estimated at about $1,000,000, perhaps more, Mr. McCall died in his splendid summer mansion. His estate, which had had time to lay out a wonderful estate which, when finally in 1909 it came into the hands of Capt. Joseph B. Greenhut, the department store merchant, was gone over from top to bottom, inside and out, and brought up to a point of perfection far beyond even the dream of Mr. McCall.

Points upon which Mr. Greenhut played at night were added by Capt. Greenhut, who also had built upon the place a swimming pool that is the last little thing that was added to the house was done over from foundations to roof during the six years that Shadow Lawn has been in the hands of Capt. Greenhut. The estate, which was pointed with pride to an estate which Capt. Greenhut had developed until it was one of the finest in the country, and there is no doubt that in accepting Shadow Lawn as a "summer White House," President Wilson has gone far toward bringing to a realization the hope of long standing

Mr. McCall bought the fifty-eight acres of farm land more than a dozen years ago for $100,000 from the Hallik, Abbott, Henderson and Padgett estates, a stretch of elevated land within sight of the ocean near Long Branch. A single story farmhouse stood near the middle of the property. The cottage, however, was a simple structure, and the grounds were unattractive cornfields. Henry Edward Criegee was the architect selected by Mr. McCall for the home he had in view. While plans were in the making Mr. McCall assembled landscape gardeners and architects of some years after he had finished it, at a cost estimated at about $1,000,000, perhaps more, Mr. McCall died in his splendid summer mansion.

SUFF CAMERAS TO FIGHT VOTE FRAUDS

Lines at Jersey Balloting Places Will Be Photographed to Prevent Repeating.

FORTY MEETINGS TO-DAY

The failure of Secretary of State Thomas F. Martin of New Jersey to have the ballots be cast at next Tuesday's special election numbers, as in ordinary elections, has aroused men and women who are working for the adoption of the woman suffrage amendment. Politicians admit that the omission of numbers will make easy for election boards inclined to be dishonest to stuff ballot boxes unless they are closely watched.

Mr. Martin says he is not required under the law to instruct the printer to furnish numbered ballots. He places the blame for the omission on the Republican Legislature. Martin is an anti-suffragist and is also disturbed because it will be possible for men to register and then cast their votes immediately. This they may make it easy for professional repeaters to get in their work.

The New Jersey Committee of One Hundred, which includes ex-State Senator Everett Colby, Col. George Harvey and United States Senator Hughes, issued a statement yesterday saying that the "time has come when the corrupt measures of a few years ago will no longer be tolerated." New Jersey is declaring that it "will take extreme measures to see to it that those who tamper with the election returns are brought to justice and their names are publicly exposed."

Alfred N. Chandler, chairman of the campaign committee of the Committee of One Hundred, said a continuous photographic record of the voting lines in each district will be kept in order to make it possible to prosecute repeaters. A party of woman suffragists headed by Mrs. Thomas G. Haight, wife of Federal Judge Haight, asked County Judge George J. Tennant in Jersey City yesterday to assist Hudson county in getting an honest record of the voting lines. The appeal to Under Sheriff James Clarke, Supreme Court Justice Swayze and County Judge Tennant will confer today on the question whether the registration should be at 9 o'clock, when the polls close at 1 P. M. The election law provides, or at 9 o'clock, when the registration ends.

Suffragists will make a great "drive" through Passaic and Bergen counties today. They will hold forty open air meetings and will wind up in the Paterson High School, where addresses will be made by William Jennings Bryan and Senators Borah of Idaho and Hughes of New Jersey.

EQUAL FINES FOR WOMEN TOO.

Judge for Suffrage, but With Responsibility for Guilt. An excise case in which a woman was the defendant before Justice Russell, Freschi and Garvin in Special Sessions yesterday and led to an expression of opinion on suffrage from the bench. After Adam Nathanson was convicted of selling whiskey to Detectives Conolly and Pallace on Sunday, August 22, in this place's saloon at 1549 First avenue, E. C. McMahan, her counsel, made this plea:

"This woman shouldn't be punished severely. She wasn't the bartender there, and she was induced on her side by the bartender. To which Assistant District Attorney Wilcox replied:

HUMAN SKYSCRAPER JOINS SUFF PARADE

Letter Carrier, 6 Feet 5 Inches Tall Will Be Dressed as Uncle Sam.

ACTRESSES HELP CAUSE

An Uncle Sam has been found to march in the suffrage parade on October 22, and he is one of Uncle Sam's letter carriers. He walked into the headquarters of the Empire State Campaign Committee yesterday and introduced himself as Eric Blomquist of 519 East 144th street.

The members of the parade committee tilted their heads upward to take a view of his proportions, and said they thought he'd do. He is 6 feet 5 inches tall, and athletic. He had seen the call the suffragists sent out Wednesday for a tall, handsome man to walk with Miss Columbia, garbed in the stars and stripes, at the head of the National Woman Suffrage Association section in the parade and wondered if he filled the requirements.

The suffragists told him that the name of the woman who would take the part of Miss Columbia was being kept a secret, but he was willing to take a chance that she would be an appropriate male impersonator. He was dressed as Uncle Sam, and was about even with Miss Hedwig Reichler and Mrs. Inez Millholland Hoesewagen.

Six actresses are making a special effort to enlist saleswomen in the department stores. Ten of the New York firms have announced that they will give their women employees up to one-half day of full complement, Saturday afternoon, on the day of the parade, that they may march without losing the half day's wages. They have also put parade posters up in the rest rooms of their stores. The girls are from Altman's, Bonwit, Teller & Co., Lord & Taylor, Gimbel's, Bergdorf's, H. & B., and the other stores.

'COUNT' INDICTED AS WIVES IDENTIFY HIM

Authorities Seeking Other Women Whom They Suspect London Married.

An indictment for bigamy was issued against "Count" Max London yesterday and he will be arraigned in General Sessions Monday. He is now held under $10,000 bail. In the meantime Assistant District Attorney Zander and Detective Russo will try to find up more women who they have heard were married to the "Count." On the other hand, the police are trying to identify the women who were married to the "Count" in London. The "Count" is said to have married a woman named Rose of Alhambra, N. Y. She says the "Count" lived with her long enough to get her $1,000 and $2,000 from her sister and then disappeared.

When the "Count" was arrested at 121 Convent avenue, The Bronx, he was living with a woman who also posed as his wife and Mrs. Embree was the first to identify him. She was married to the "Count" in London on September 9, 1911, at the City Hall under the name of Count de Passy. Her name was Lella Florence James. She was the first to identify him. The statute under which the "Count" is being prosecuted is one which provides that a person may be punished in the county in which he is found if charged with bigamy. Both marriages of the "Count" are said to have been performed out of this county. Mr. Embree said he had no doubt as to the legality of the second.
