

WORLD'S GREATEST CITY IS STILL RURAL IN SPOTS

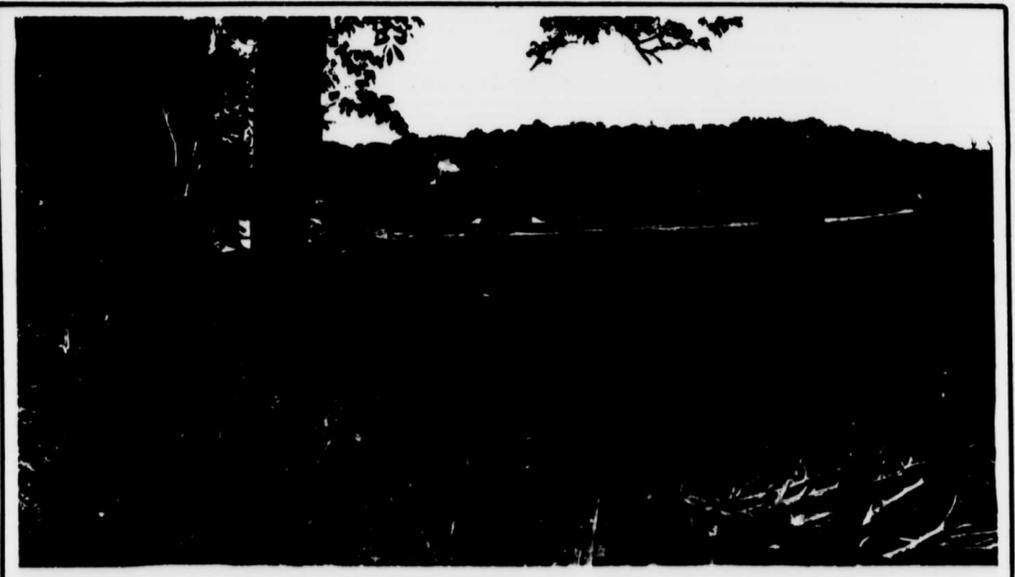

THE COWS STILL GRAZE ON THE PEACEFUL BANKS OF SPUYTEN DUYVIL CREEK.

LOWER END OF MANHATTAN ISLAND AT NIGHT. NO SUGGESTION OF COUNTRY HERE.

Photo by Urown Bros.

THE OLDEST TREE ON MANHATTAN ISLAND, THE GIANT TULIP AT INWOOD. OPEN FIELDS AND FORESTS ONLY ONE SUBWAY LENGTH FROM THE BATTERY. A few days ago it was announced that owing to an error of some 300,000 in the British census New York has been since 1911 larger than London. The above photographs show the world's greatest city as one of striking contrast between the urban and the rural.