

MEXICO GAVE 'SAFE CONDUCT' TO MASSACRED

Americans Slain at Santa Ysabel Had Official Passports.

NO RECKLESSNESS BY WATSON PARTY

Carranzistas Reported a Garrison of 1,000 Soldiers as Protection.

"SLAY THE GRINGOS," NEW VILLA ORDER

Report of 10 More Americans Being Massacred Is Not Confirmed.

Official information has reached the State Department at Washington that the Americans massacred near Santa Ysabel, Mexico, went to their death under guarantees of safe conduct by the Carranzistas—not in reckless disregard of warnings.

Holmes, the only survivor of the massacre, says all of the Watson party left safe in making the trip.

Mexican immigration authorities at Juarez gave a general passport to the party and the Governor of Chihuahua furnished a personal passport to Watson.

Watson was notified that 1,000 Carranzista soldiers had gone to Cusi-barranca to garrison the mining district, where the Americans were going and that the situation was safe for the party to proceed.

These particulars are set forth in a long report from the United States Collector of Customs at El Paso, who also described how the Watson party left safely for the Villa Ysabela.

Senator Gore introduced his resolution for the establishment of a neutral zone along the Mexican boundary to be policed jointly by United States and Mexican forces until order is restored and American lives and property in Mexico are rendered secure.

It is regarded certain that unless the situation rapidly improves the Senate will act.

A report that ten more Americans have been massacred—this time in the vicinity of Madero—reached the border yesterday, but the latest advice does not confirm the rumor.

A former Villa officer, recently arrested by Gen. Rosalia Hernandez, arrived in El Paso last night from Mexico with the report that Gen. Villa has issued a proclamation to the effect that he would kill all "Gringos" and to destroy their property and then head south into the interior of Mexico.

WATSON PARTY GOT SAFETY ASSURANCES

Did Not Discard Any Warnings, Says Official Report.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Facts which have accumulated at the State Department concerning the circumstances of the massacre of the seventeen Americans and one Canadian near Santa Ysabel, Mexico, by Villista bandits completely disprove the original statements made at the Department and the White House tending to show that the Americans went into the bandit infested district heedless of warnings.

These facts are summed up in a long report from Collector of Customs Cobb at El Paso and a brief despatch from United States Consul Thomas D. Edwards at Juarez. They show:

1. That Consul Edwards, acting on what he declared to have been instructions from Washington, applied for and obtained from the Carranzista immigration authorities at Juarez a general passport covering all members of the party and from the Carranza Government of the State of Chihuahua a personal passport for himself.

2. That the Carranzista authorities at Chihuahua assured Watson that it was his duty to see that the Carranzista operations at the mines, as they had sent a garrison of 1,000 soldiers to guard the properties at Cusi.

Edwards' instructions. At the State Department there was a lack of unanimity among officials as to the accuracy of Edwards' statement that he had received from the Carranzista authorities a general passport for protection for the Cusi Mining Company's mining properties.

According to Secretary Lansing, such instructions as far as he has been able to ascertain were never sent. Other officials of the Department said just as positively that instructions were sent but were limited to the Carranzista properties of the company and were not issued for the purpose of getting assurances that Americans returning to these properties would be specially protected.

Still other officials of the Department insisted that the only instructions sent to Edwards were of a general character advising him to impress on the Carranzista authorities the necessity of protecting American properties generally, but not mentioning the Cusi mines.

In his telegram to the State Department today Consul Edwards, replying to an

UPHOLD THE FLAG—GIBBONS.

Cardinal Approves Plan to Foster Loyalty of New Citizens.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—Unqualified approval of the national conference on immigration and Americanization to be held in this city on Wednesday and Thursday was given by Cardinal Gibbons in a letter to Frank Trumbull, chairman of the National Americanization Committee, yesterday. The letter was in response to an invitation to Cardinal Gibbons to attend the congress.

The letter says: "Though my official duties and increasing age prevent my doing all I should like to do, allow me to assure the committee of my heartiest sympathy with the work.

"I have no doubt, now should our fellow citizens and compatriots be undivided in their loyalty and devotion to the Stars and Stripes.

"I may be sure, my dear friend, that you and our national leaders for the best interests of our beloved America. Faithfully yours,

"JAMES CARDINAL GIBBONS."

Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, who has been the leading spirit in advancing the movement in Pennsylvania, will give a dinner Wednesday night at her home, and there will be a musical concert at the Metropolitan Opera House Thursday night, at which Col. Roosevelt will be the principal speaker.

MUCH SKATING TO-DAY.

Even Central and Prospect Parks Will Be Available.

All the park lakes in the city will be open for skating to-day. The red ball went up last evening at Central Park. This is usually the last to be frozen to be required on Central and Prospect parks are expected to swarm the ice to-day.

It was announced too in the Brooklyn office of the Park Department that a cold night would mean skating in Prospect Park this morning.

It was also announced that the Metropolitan skating rink at the Metropolitan Hotel will be open for skating to-day.

Miss Gilder, who has been noted as a critic of music, literature and art, was also a writer of essays and a special correspondent for the New York Tribune.

Then the Tribune discovered her sex, according to her autobiographical notes, she was discharged. Through Miss Kate's editor, the Century Magazine, reporter of that time, she got a letter to the Herald, which secured her the position of book reviewer.

Soon afterward, with her brother, Richard Watson Gilder, she joined the editorial staff of the Scribner's Magazine, which afterward became the Century.

Then in 1881, with her brother, Joseph B. Gilder, she started the Critic, which for many years was a standard literary guide. Her husband, the poet, William H. Gilder, at the age of 18 she began her work in journalism, starting as reporter on the Morning Register.

It is regarded certain that unless the situation rapidly improves the Senate will act.

A report that ten more Americans have been massacred—this time in the vicinity of Madero—reached the border yesterday, but the latest advice does not confirm the rumor.

A former Villa officer, recently arrested by Gen. Rosalia Hernandez, arrived in El Paso last night from Mexico with the report that Gen. Villa has issued a proclamation to the effect that he would kill all "Gringos" and to destroy their property and then head south into the interior of Mexico.

These particulars are set forth in a long report from the United States Collector of Customs at El Paso, who also described how the Watson party left safely for the Villa Ysabela.

Senator Gore introduced his resolution for the establishment of a neutral zone along the Mexican boundary to be policed jointly by United States and Mexican forces until order is restored and American lives and property in Mexico are rendered secure.

It is regarded certain that unless the situation rapidly improves the Senate will act.

A report that ten more Americans have been massacred—this time in the vicinity of Madero—reached the border yesterday, but the latest advice does not confirm the rumor.

A former Villa officer, recently arrested by Gen. Rosalia Hernandez, arrived in El Paso last night from Mexico with the report that Gen. Villa has issued a proclamation to the effect that he would kill all "Gringos" and to destroy their property and then head south into the interior of Mexico.

These particulars are set forth in a long report from the United States Collector of Customs at El Paso, who also described how the Watson party left safely for the Villa Ysabela.

Senator Gore introduced his resolution for the establishment of a neutral zone along the Mexican boundary to be policed jointly by United States and Mexican forces until order is restored and American lives and property in Mexico are rendered secure.

It is regarded certain that unless the situation rapidly improves the Senate will act.

HINT WADDOG GOT JOBS FOR RELATIVES

Ousted Officeholders Charge Secretary's Kindred Are Favored.

THREE IN PLACES HERE Niece, Nephew and Cousin Draw Salaries in Internal Revenue Office.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—Unqualified approval of the national conference on immigration and Americanization to be held in this city on Wednesday and Thursday was given by Cardinal Gibbons in a letter to Frank Trumbull, chairman of the National Americanization Committee, yesterday. The letter was in response to an invitation to Cardinal Gibbons to attend the congress.

The letter says: "Though my official duties and increasing age prevent my doing all I should like to do, allow me to assure the committee of my heartiest sympathy with the work.

"I have no doubt, now should our fellow citizens and compatriots be undivided in their loyalty and devotion to the Stars and Stripes.

"I may be sure, my dear friend, that you and our national leaders for the best interests of our beloved America. Faithfully yours,

"JAMES CARDINAL GIBBONS."

Mrs. E. T. Stotesbury, who has been the leading spirit in advancing the movement in Pennsylvania, will give a dinner Wednesday night at her home, and there will be a musical concert at the Metropolitan Opera House Thursday night, at which Col. Roosevelt will be the principal speaker.

It was announced too in the Brooklyn office of the Park Department that a cold night would mean skating in Prospect Park this morning.

It was also announced that the Metropolitan skating rink at the Metropolitan Hotel will be open for skating to-day.

Miss Gilder, who has been noted as a critic of music, literature and art, was also a writer of essays and a special correspondent for the New York Tribune.

Then the Tribune discovered her sex, according to her autobiographical notes, she was discharged. Through Miss Kate's editor, the Century Magazine, reporter of that time, she got a letter to the Herald, which secured her the position of book reviewer.

Soon afterward, with her brother, Richard Watson Gilder, she joined the editorial staff of the Scribner's Magazine, which afterward became the Century.

Then in 1881, with her brother, Joseph B. Gilder, she started the Critic, which for many years was a standard literary guide. Her husband, the poet, William H. Gilder, at the age of 18 she began her work in journalism, starting as reporter on the Morning Register.

It is regarded certain that unless the situation rapidly improves the Senate will act.

A report that ten more Americans have been massacred—this time in the vicinity of Madero—reached the border yesterday, but the latest advice does not confirm the rumor.

A former Villa officer, recently arrested by Gen. Rosalia Hernandez, arrived in El Paso last night from Mexico with the report that Gen. Villa has issued a proclamation to the effect that he would kill all "Gringos" and to destroy their property and then head south into the interior of Mexico.

These particulars are set forth in a long report from the United States Collector of Customs at El Paso, who also described how the Watson party left safely for the Villa Ysabela.

Senator Gore introduced his resolution for the establishment of a neutral zone along the Mexican boundary to be policed jointly by United States and Mexican forces until order is restored and American lives and property in Mexico are rendered secure.

It is regarded certain that unless the situation rapidly improves the Senate will act.

A report that ten more Americans have been massacred—this time in the vicinity of Madero—reached the border yesterday, but the latest advice does not confirm the rumor.

A former Villa officer, recently arrested by Gen. Rosalia Hernandez, arrived in El Paso last night from Mexico with the report that Gen. Villa has issued a proclamation to the effect that he would kill all "Gringos" and to destroy their property and then head south into the interior of Mexico.

These particulars are set forth in a long report from the United States Collector of Customs at El Paso, who also described how the Watson party left safely for the Villa Ysabela.

Senator Gore introduced his resolution for the establishment of a neutral zone along the Mexican boundary to be policed jointly by United States and Mexican forces until order is restored and American lives and property in Mexico are rendered secure.

It is regarded certain that unless the situation rapidly improves the Senate will act.

A report that ten more Americans have been massacred—this time in the vicinity of Madero—reached the border yesterday, but the latest advice does not confirm the rumor.

A former Villa officer, recently arrested by Gen. Rosalia Hernandez, arrived in El Paso last night from Mexico with the report that Gen. Villa has issued a proclamation to the effect that he would kill all "Gringos" and to destroy their property and then head south into the interior of Mexico.

THROUGH OF 3,500 APPLAUDS OSBORNE

Hints Stifling of Commerce May Lead His Nation to Drop Neutrality.

WAR POLICIES ASSAILED Ruler Says Belligerents Violate International Law Repeatedly.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17.—King GUSTAV in his speech from the throne at the opening of the Riksdag to-day delivered what was regarded by the majority of the Deputies as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

KING OF SWEDEN WARNS ENGLAND

Hints Stifling of Commerce May Lead His Nation to Drop Neutrality.

WAR POLICIES ASSAILED Ruler Says Belligerents Violate International Law Repeatedly.

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 17.—King GUSTAV in his speech from the throne at the opening of the Riksdag to-day delivered what was regarded by the majority of the Deputies as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

The King called attention to the "usurpation of power by the belligerents." Although he mentioned no names the contents of the speech were interpreted as a warning to England against further acts in hindrance of Sweden's commerce.

Papen Papers Yield More Proof of Organized Plots

Show Frequent Payments to Koenig and Von Skal and Agents in Mupitions Centres—One Was for "Dumdum Sport."

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Further evidence of the far reaching nature of Capt. von Papen's financial transactions in connection with German propaganda in the United States has been disclosed by a closer examination of the check stubs and documents taken from the recalled military attaché by the British authorities.

The check stubs in the now famous dossier, which was turned over to the American Embassy here, show many entries of payments to Paul Koenig, head of the Hamburg-American Steamship Company's secret service in New York, who recently was indicted for plotting to blow up the Welland Canal in Canada.

The items are conveniently and significantly labelled "For secret service work." The payments range from $100 to $500. There are many of them, and they are the most frequent of any payments noted in the stubs.

Next in frequency is the name of G. von Skal, to whom payments were made through the Yorkville National Bank and the Fourth National Bank of Philadelphia. There are frequent items of payments to the German Consulate at New Orleans.

The extent of Capt. von Papen's activities is shown by a large number of payments through Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne of New York and the Harriman National Bank. Through the same account payments were made to Taylor Ryan of Buffalo.

Other significant items show payments to Max von Hoesen at New Haven for "dumdum sport." Another item is Glaeser of Bridgeport, to whom payment was made in December. Through Amick & Co. of New York a payment of $300 was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.

The carelessness with which Capt. von Papen recorded small items is evidenced by the manner with which he entered payment for amount of breakfast at the Club in New York before the Grand Jury was made to the Berg Fuse Factory. The name of von Ingel appears many times.