

SHOWS HE MENTIONED "OBLIGATION TO ASK FOR ASKING BIG QUESTIONS TO-DAY"

was frankly pleased with the testimony of Mr. Shonts, so far as it was allowed to go yesterday on this particular point. Without forming an opinion as to the final weight to be given to the memorandum of Mr. Shonts, they pointed out that its truth has been confirmed in several important particulars by Mr. Shonts. He had admitted that he had asked the question to the Stevens contract, developed at the meeting, and that he had admitted that he called Mr. Lane aside and told him his reasons for favoring the proposed contract. Finally, he admitted that he used some of the very words quoted in the memorandum.

There was, nevertheless, it was admitted, a divergence between the memorandum of Mr. Shonts and the testimony of Mr. Shonts as to the possible motives that prompted Mr. Lane to object to the contract. It appeared from the memorandum that the objections of Mr. Lane were raised to the proposal because of its extravagance and his doubt of Stevens' equipment for performing the work. Mr. Shonts, on the other hand, said that Mr. Lane had a candidate for the job himself and the possibility was not overlooked that the testimony of Mr. Shonts had been extended so far as to lead him to misunderstand or to misinterpret the reference of Mr. Shonts to the obligations of Mr. Lane. Should Mr. Shonts take this attitude toward the matter his testimony would be in accord with that of Mr. Morgan, the testimony of Mr. Shonts going to him to indicate his belief at that time that out of the commissions to Mr. Stevens was to come a fund whose purpose could not be named except by having told on Thursday of his visit to Mayor Gaynor early in 1910. Mr. Shonts brightened up the morning session of the committee yesterday by giving another view. This view to J. P. Morgan and was made early in 1909. He told of the apparently dire straits in which the Interborough-Municipal corporation found itself at that time. He decided, without telling his directors anything about it, to go and see Mr. Morgan as the man most likely to be able to finance the company out of its difficulties.

Letter to Freedman.
Out of this visit early on and with respect to one of them, Mr. Colby, following the letter to Mr. Freedman by Mr. Shonts on September 13, 1910:

DEAR ANDY: Mr. Belmont and I spent a couple of hours with you and with respect to one of them, Mr. Colby, following the letter to Mr. Freedman by Mr. Shonts on September 13, 1910:

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

Colby Explains.
"I will explain," said Mr. Colby, when Mr. Shonts objected to the reading of the memorandum of the record of the testimony here discloses a rising note of domination on the part of J. P. Morgan & Co. and a crescendo of exactions on the part of J. P. Morgan & Co. I do not disclose a single note of dissent to the demands of J. P. Morgan & Co. on the part of the Interborough, the only thing that I have been able to do anything else but accept Mr. Morgan's aid. This letter indicates that this was not a fact and therefore I think it is my duty to read it."

"I am sure," said Mr. Colby, "that Morgan & Co. ever had any desire to dominate our transactions it was never manifested to me," said Mr. Shonts. "Their attitude toward me was one of respect. They thought they were trying to take advantage of our position."

"I am sure," said Mr. Colby, "that Morgan & Co. ever had any desire to dominate our transactions it was never manifested to me," said Mr. Shonts. "Their attitude toward me was one of respect. They thought they were trying to take advantage of our position."

"I am sure," said Mr. Colby, "that Morgan & Co. ever had any desire to dominate our transactions it was never manifested to me," said Mr. Shonts. "Their attitude toward me was one of respect. They thought they were trying to take advantage of our position."

"I am sure," said Mr. Colby, "that Morgan & Co. ever had any desire to dominate our transactions it was never manifested to me," said Mr. Shonts. "Their attitude toward me was one of respect. They thought they were trying to take advantage of our position."

"I am sure," said Mr. Colby, "that Morgan & Co. ever had any desire to dominate our transactions it was never manifested to me," said Mr. Shonts. "Their attitude toward me was one of respect. They thought they were trying to take advantage of our position."

"I am sure," said Mr. Colby, "that Morgan & Co. ever had any desire to dominate our transactions it was never manifested to me," said Mr. Shonts. "Their attitude toward me was one of respect. They thought they were trying to take advantage of our position."

"I am sure," said Mr. Colby, "that Morgan & Co. ever had any desire to dominate our transactions it was never manifested to me," said Mr. Shonts. "Their attitude toward me was one of respect. They thought they were trying to take advantage of our position."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

"I don't think it prudent to write more than is contained in this letter, and wish very much you could be with us, for I believe the situation is such as to require the earliest and most complete consideration of the Public Service Commission took action on my application."

U. S. WARSHIP PROTECTS AGAINST MASSACRE OF ARMENIANS.

many of what Mr. Lansing told Count von Bernstorff at his conference with the latter yesterday.

The summary sets forth the American position as follows:

That any settlement of the Lusitania case necessarily depends on future submarine warfare.

That the United States is disposed to regard the German declaration of intention to sink armed enemy liners without warning as nullifying previous German assurances to the United States, and for that reason the United States has seen fit to ask such modification of the new German terms as will completely remove this doubt.

That whereas the United States in its memorandum to the Entente Powers (German assurances) assumed the character of warships, nevertheless in the event of a failure of the Entente Powers to agree to disarm their ships the United States would not presume to renounce the law as it stands, but was prepared to stand by the legal right of merchant ships to arm for defense.

That the American people have been deeply stirred by the fate of the Christians ruthlessly slaughtered in Armenia.

That the Government of the United States, having received precise and reliable information of the massacres, no longer can doubt that authorities of the Turkish Government are responsible for hitherto unparalleled atrocities, which have shocked the conscience of the world.

That the United States is promoted to express to the Turkish Government the confidence that the authors of the atrocities will be punished.

That the American people have been deeply stirred by the fate of the Christians ruthlessly slaughtered in Armenia.

That the Government of the United States, having received precise and reliable information of the massacres, no longer can doubt that authorities of the Turkish Government are responsible for hitherto unparalleled atrocities, which have shocked the conscience of the world.

That the United States is promoted to express to the Turkish Government the confidence that the authors of the atrocities will be punished.

That the American people have been deeply stirred by the fate of the Christians ruthlessly slaughtered in Armenia.

SAFETY OF ARMED SHIPS NOT ASKED, BERLIN TO SAY

Continued from First Page.

That any settlement of the Lusitania case necessarily depends on future submarine warfare.

That the United States is disposed to regard the German declaration of intention to sink armed enemy liners without warning as nullifying previous German assurances to the United States, and for that reason the United States has seen fit to ask such modification of the new German terms as will completely remove this doubt.

That whereas the United States in its memorandum to the Entente Powers (German assurances) assumed the character of warships, nevertheless in the event of a failure of the Entente Powers to agree to disarm their ships the United States would not presume to renounce the law as it stands, but was prepared to stand by the legal right of merchant ships to arm for defense.

That the American people have been deeply stirred by the fate of the Christians ruthlessly slaughtered in Armenia.

That the Government of the United States, having received precise and reliable information of the massacres, no longer can doubt that authorities of the Turkish Government are responsible for hitherto unparalleled atrocities, which have shocked the conscience of the world.

That the United States is promoted to express to the Turkish Government the confidence that the authors of the atrocities will be punished.

That the American people have been deeply stirred by the fate of the Christians ruthlessly slaughtered in Armenia.

That the Government of the United States, having received precise and reliable information of the massacres, no longer can doubt that authorities of the Turkish Government are responsible for hitherto unparalleled atrocities, which have shocked the conscience of the world.

That the United States is promoted to express to the Turkish Government the confidence that the authors of the atrocities will be punished.

That the American people have been deeply stirred by the fate of the Christians ruthlessly slaughtered in Armenia.

Brush them with

COLGATE'S RIBBON DENTAL CREAM

A Dentist's Dentifrice

EVENLY heated apartments day and night hold tenants. The "Spencer Heater" will do this, and require but little of the janitor's time during the day—none at night.

SEES ROOSEVELT THE VICTOR

Henry Allen of Kansas Explains Sentiment for Colonel.

THE KING OF TABLE MAIDS

SEES ROOSEVELT THE VICTOR

Henry Allen of Kansas Explains Sentiment for Colonel.

THE KING OF TABLE MAIDS

SEES ROOSEVELT THE VICTOR

Henry Allen of Kansas Explains Sentiment for Colonel.

THE KING OF TABLE MAIDS

SEES ROOSEVELT THE VICTOR

Henry Allen of Kansas Explains Sentiment for Colonel.

THE KING OF TABLE MAIDS

SEES ROOSEVELT THE VICTOR

Henry Allen of Kansas Explains Sentiment for Colonel.

THE KING OF TABLE MAIDS

SEES ROOSEVELT THE VICTOR

Henry Allen of Kansas Explains Sentiment for Colonel.

When Differences Started.

When Differences Started.