

RUSSIA'S GRANDMA AS PATRIOT IN EXILE

Mme. Breshkovskaya Writes Again From Siberia to an American Friend.

RECOVERS FROM ILLNESS

From her prison at Irkutsk, the undaunted revolutionist has written again to Alice Stone Blackwell, the suffragist leader of this city, and the letter reveals the unflinching courage of a remarkable person.

"Every minute when I am out of doors," she wrote, "I am followed by a row of policemen and one of them enters the house and even the apartment where I am staying."

"It is not difficult to wait, having so many excellent moments in life as are a part of my existence. Do not be sorry for my eyes. The oculist says my eyes will serve me long enough to be carefully used."

"My address is only Catherine Breshkovskaya, Irkutsk, Russia. All the post-bureaus of Siberia are well informed of my presence and they find me in every corner of this immense country. If I am sent away I will inform you."

A postcard mailed three weeks later than the letter was also received by Miss Blackwell. Mme. Breshkovskaya wrote that she was ill, but was recovering her strength.

"The weather," she complained, "is awful. Notwithstanding the frost of 40 degrees below zero it is only today that the beautiful snow has been frozen over. Until now its flowing waves have filled the town with wholesome mists. Every nook in Siberia has its own poison. It is not only the cold, but there is no danger now. Letters reach me and I am happy. My daughter prays for me and well."

Mme. Breshkovskaya is 45 years of age. She was in this country eleven years ago and made a deep impression upon Julia Ward Howe, Jane Addams and other well known women. She returned to Russia carrying more than $10,000 that had been collected here for the cause of revolution.

The following letter was arrested on the charge of belonging to an illegal party and was put in the fortress of St. Peter and St. Paul. No formal charges were prepared against her for a year and a half.

It was generally believed that her chief offense had been her activity in America in denouncing the Russian government for revolutionary funds.

OSBORNE TRIAL OPENS; WILLETT STAR WITNESS

Admitting He Is Hostile, He Testifies That Warden Committed Perjury Before Dr. Diedling—Defendant Bitterly Attacked by Prosecution.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., March 13.—For the first time since his conviction two years ago of trying to buy a judgeship ex-Congressman William Willett was in a court room today, this time doing his best to convince the jury that he was not guilty of the crime for which he is being tried.

Willett's testimony, though given often nervously, almost with trepidation, was to the effect that Mr. Osborne as warden of Sing Sing when Willett was confined there put every obstacle possible in the way of any investigation of the prison.

Assistant District Attorney Fallon, who is prosecuting the case for Mr. Osborne, called together all the convicts implicated and said, "Well, there the records are, so that Mr. Weeks could not find out, so that such things went on at Sing Sing. Do make them feel sure that Mr. Weeks could not touch them the warden, according to Mr. Fallon, said also, "I think I should call to your attention that the records have been lost."

Mr. Fallon explained that the records referred to were the stenographic reports of proceedings before the court of the Mutual Welfare League, which Mr. Osborne founded, which resulted from the confession of James Harvey, a young convict whom Mr. Fallon called "this man." He spoke of Mr. Osborne as "this man."

It was in his testimony three weeks later, on October 8, before Dr. Diedling, that Warden Osborne is alleged to have committed perjury in denying that there was such a case as the Harvey case, which he said was the Mutual Welfare court. The State maintains that Mr. Osborne so testified and that his petition to Justice McEachern, dated December 13, contradicted this testimony by stating that these cases had been before the court.

There seemed little or no doubt in his mind, however, that the only room for uncertainty was on the question of how long it would take to hear all the witnesses, address the jury and acquit him, so that he can get a trial on the second day of the trial, which is the usual procedure against his own morals.

He paid little attention to the jury, chosen in the unexpectedly short space of two hours, after he had assured himself that they were all very good men, people, farmers, small merchants, "A good jury," he called it. All his attention was on the witnesses.

MISSING FOR EIGHT YEARS, WANDERER APPEARS TO CLAIM FORTUNE.

Missing for Eight Years, Wanderer Appears to Claim Fortune.

OLEAN, N. Y., March 13.—Keith Dalrymple, the missing heir to the Dalrymple thousands, which have been kept in trust here by W. A. Dusenbury during an eight year search for the young man, has appeared in Buffalo. He is accompanied by Dr. W. C. Palmer, from whom he ran away eight years ago. The physician announces that he found Dalrymple in a hospital in Missouri, in which State he has had himself made a guardian of the property of the young man, who has been declared incompetent.

Dr. Palmer says he found Keith Dalrymple in a Missouri hospital, and that he is a young man with a good education and a good physique. He is now in the hospital in connection with Jefferson City, Missouri, where he was given in charge of one Dr. Palmer.

Keith Dalrymple disappeared from his home in Olean, N. Y., in 1908. He was the son of the late Edward P. Dalrymple, and his guardian, W. A. Dusenbury, is vice-president of the First National Bank of Olean.

Keith and his brother Hugh shared the comfortable fortune of their parents, about $100,000 being left to each. Hugh, considerably older than Keith, married, but died. His first wife is now trying to have the divorce set aside so that she can share in the estate.

John Rose, foreman, gardener, Mount Pleasant. James Triggs, farmer, North Salem. The undersigned, foreman of a gas company, Scarsdale. Joseph Wiley, builder, New Rochelle. Robert Hewitt, farmer, Pelham. William W. Bullock, carpenter, New Castle.

John Rose, foreman, gardener, Mount Pleasant. James Triggs, farmer, North Salem. The undersigned, foreman of a gas company, Scarsdale. Joseph Wiley, builder, New Rochelle. Robert Hewitt, farmer, Pelham. William W. Bullock, carpenter, New Castle.

John Rose, foreman, gardener, Mount Pleasant. James Triggs, farmer, North Salem. The undersigned, foreman of a gas company, Scarsdale. Joseph Wiley, builder, New Rochelle. Robert Hewitt, farmer, Pelham. William W. Bullock, carpenter, New Castle.

HIDE THE SUBWAY OFFER INFORMALLY SHONTS NOTE

Hide the Subway Offer Informally Shonsts Note

And last Friday, said Mr. Whitney, he told Frank Moss, the committee's counsel, about the unprinted Shonsts letter. This is the letter which Whitney related in "Saturday Morning." "Put it on top of the pile of papers you bring," said Mr. Moss, "and when I ask you for them I can pick it off the top and ask you 'What's this?' I did that, but then Senator Thompson and Lawson began questioning me about 'secret archives' and 'secret files.' That was about the thing. I also told Senator Thompson and later made an engagement at the Harvard Club, which he failed to keep, that it was important to inquire into the L third tracking. But apparently it does not pay to help the Thompson committee."

Mr. Wilcox in his letter recalled that the Shonsts letter was not a proposition by the Interborough but a draft of one which Mr. Wilcox hoped Mr. Shonsts would bring to present as an offer. The next day after Shonsts was submitted to Mr. Wilcox Mr. Shonsts met with disapproval on the part of the executive committee of the Interborough board and the offer was withdrawn.

Mr. Wilcox in his letter recalled that the Shonsts letter was not a proposition by the Interborough but a draft of one which Mr. Wilcox hoped Mr. Shonsts would bring to present as an offer. The next day after Shonsts was submitted to Mr. Wilcox Mr. Shonsts met with disapproval on the part of the executive committee of the Interborough board and the offer was withdrawn.

Mr. Wilcox in his letter recalled that the Shonsts letter was not a proposition by the Interborough but a draft of one which Mr. Wilcox hoped Mr. Shonsts would bring to present as an offer. The next day after Shonsts was submitted to Mr. Wilcox Mr. Shonsts met with disapproval on the part of the executive committee of the Interborough board and the offer was withdrawn.

Mr. Wilcox in his letter recalled that the Shonsts letter was not a proposition by the Interborough but a draft of one which Mr. Wilcox hoped Mr. Shonsts would bring to present as an offer. The next day after Shonsts was submitted to Mr. Wilcox Mr. Shonsts met with disapproval on the part of the executive committee of the Interborough board and the offer was withdrawn.

Mr. Wilcox in his letter recalled that the Shonsts letter was not a proposition by the Interborough but a draft of one which Mr. Wilcox hoped Mr. Shonsts would bring to present as an offer. The next day after Shonsts was submitted to Mr. Wilcox Mr. Shonsts met with disapproval on the part of the executive committee of the Interborough board and the offer was withdrawn.

Mr. Wilcox in his letter recalled that the Shonsts letter was not a proposition by the Interborough but a draft of one which Mr. Wilcox hoped Mr. Shonsts would bring to present as an offer. The next day after Shonsts was submitted to Mr. Wilcox Mr. Shonsts met with disapproval on the part of the executive committee of the Interborough board and the offer was withdrawn.

THE STORE FOR MEN. The hat men wear with a dinner suit. Light, soft, black felt, black silk faced and lined. $6. John Wanamaker Broadway at Ninth, New York.

NO TARGETS IN CHARITY INQUIRY, SAYS STRONG. Institutions of Particular Denominations Not Singled Out for Attack. At the close of the charities hearing in the Bar Association rooms the attention of Commissioner Charles H. Strong was called to the statement by Gov. Whitman that the investigation was not aimed at the institutions of any particular religious denomination.

HEIR TO $150,000 KILLS HIS WIFE AND HIMSELF. John C. Boyle, Son of Late Liquor Dealer, Had Suffered From Nervousness. As his wife Mary lay asleep early yesterday John Boyle, 34 years old, son and principal heir of the late John C. Boyle, a wealthy liquor dealer, shot himself and his wife in their apartment at 230 West Ninety-seventh street.

WANTS ANOTHER INQUIRY. Assemblyman Proposes Legislative Study of Charities. ALBANY, N. Y., March 13.—Suggesting that the investigation of charitable institutions now under way by Gov. Whitman's commission has as one of its objects the determination of the question of whether the present supervision of charitable institutions is the best that can be expected under present conditions, incidentally the faults existing in a comparatively few institutions have been pointed out.

GOTHIC ARROW COLAR. LATEST NOVELTIES in garden requisites, etc., are described in Garden Department the Sunday Sun.