

HOLLAND TAKES FRESH STEPS FOR DEFENCE Troops in Zealand Reinforced as Germans Mass Near Bruges.

SHIPMENTS OF FOOD ARE BEING HELD UP

Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun. LONDON, April 5.—Despatches from the Hague dated yesterday say that the recent suspension of furloughs of army and navy officers and men were described as a "precautionary measure" in a short statement read by the President of the Second Chamber at the opening of the Dutch Parliament.

Holland is resolved to maintain her neutrality, the President said, and the suspension of the order did not come as a consequence of present political entanglements, but was decided upon by the Government because of certain information which came to the Government.

The meeting of the Dutch Committee included all Ministers, the second Chamber and the members of Parliament. In addition to the Government statement that the action of military authorities was not caused by any action of belligerents, it is stated that the military measures have nothing to do with the belligerents.

Another Dutch Ship Torpedoed. Simultaneously with the British statement arrived the news of the torpedoing of the Elzheim Helena near the North Hinder Light. The crew of the vessel reached the North Hinder Light and was transferred to the Government rescue ship Atlas.

The reinforcement of the Dutch troops in Zealand had been followed by a strong German concentration in the neighborhood of the coast. By order of the military commanders no potatoes can leave the province of Zealand. Ships laden with hundreds of tons of them destined for Belgium were stopped at the Vlieger Rotterdamse Courant, commenting on the sinking of the Elzheim Helena, says bitterly.

Germany May Plan Invasion. The situation in Holland is followed with the closest attention. The German allegation that England intends landing troops in Holland is absolutely untrue. On the other hand, it is pointed out that whatever the German intention may be she has always uttered the excuse that she did it because her enemies had done or were about to do so.

Quick Mobilization. A description of the sudden military activity in Holland recently is given by a general who had an especially good opportunity while in Holland to learn of the movement of troops.

New Italian War Minister. Gen. Paolo Morone to Succeed Gen. Zupelli, Who Resigned. Rome, April 5.—The resignation of Gen. Zupelli as War Minister has been accepted by King Victor Emmanuel. Gen. Paolo Morone, formerly commander of an army corps, has been appointed to succeed him.

ARTILLERY BUSY AT SALONICA. A Few Prisoners Reported Captured by the French. PARIS, April 5.—Artillery firing took place all along the line of contact between the allied and Teutonic forces at Salonica yesterday, according to a dispatch received here.

To Protect Shipments. The Dutch Government will regard an unfriendly any attempt to interfere with the shipments of foodstuffs against Germany as due to the belief that she has organized a campaign against Dutch shipping.

ATTACK ON CANADA SILLY, SAYS BERLIN CHANCELLOR

Continued from First Page. Germany is equal to the task of distribution of food supplies. "Our enemies forget that in cases in which there is a real shortage of foodstuffs, it is able to make use of moral reserves which enable her to stand by her standards of life, which have risen remarkably during the last decade. What she means, for instance, if the consumption of meat should temporarily be lowered to the level of the '70s? I should think our adversaries would remember how strong was the German race of those days."

The Chancellor admitted that living conditions in Germany were not easy, but that every citizen in the nation was meeting them bravely. "Concerning Germany's method of retaliation for the blockade the Chancellor said: "The American note of November 5, 1915, gave an exact description of British violations of the nations' laws, but as far as I know it has not been answered up to this day. No fair minded neutral, no matter whether he favors us or not, can doubt our right to defend ourselves against this war of starvation, which is contrary to international law. No one can ask us to permit our arms of defence to be wrested from our hands."

Mr. Aquitti also mentioned the principle of nationality. If he puts himself in the position of this unconquered and unconquerable ally, can he really suppose that Germany ever shall of her own free will deliver into the hands of reactionary Russia the nations between the Baltic and the Volynian swamps which have been freed by her and by her allies, no matter whether they are Poles or Lithuanians or Latvians or of the Baltic?"

Concerning the progress made by Germany during the past year the Chancellor said: "When I was last at headquarters I stood with the Emperor at a place to which I had accompanied him one year previously. The Emperor remembered this and deeply moved, pointed out the enormous changes that had taken place since that time. Then the Russians were started. Now I do not speak of the British and French at that time had attacked Gallipoli and were hoping to arouse the Balkans against us. Now the Bulgarians stand firmly on our side. Then we were engaged in the defensive Champagne battle, and now, at the Emperor's word, resound the cannon in the Verdun battle. Deep gratitude is due to the army and to the nation filled the Emperor's heart."

GERMAN DESCRIBES HORRORS OF VERDUN

Soldiers More Than Heroes, Officer Declares in Berlin Newspaper. SHOWS NO CONFIDENCE. Special Cable Dispatch to The Sun. AMSTERDAM, via London, April 5.—The Berlin Voelische Zeitung, April 5, contains a noteworthy article by a German officer named Ross, a man of Scotch descent, who before the war was editor of a Munich newspaper.

The article is in the nature of a personal narrative of the battle of Verdun, the writer describing from the German point of view the terrific character of the struggle, and also apparently implying the existence of despair on the part of the German public at the failure of the attack.

"I was last at headquarters I stood with the Emperor at a place to which I had accompanied him one year previously. The Emperor remembered this and deeply moved, pointed out the enormous changes that had taken place since that time. Then the Russians were started. VERDUN WILL NOT FALL, SAYS PRINCE

Andre Poniatowski Asserts Germans Are Sacrificing Flower of Their Army. HERE ON FRENCH MISSION. Prince Andre Poniatowski, who is attached to the French War Office, arrived aboard the French liner Espagne yesterday on his second official visit to this country since seven months. He expects to remain ten days, overseeing the work of purchasing aeronautical supplies for his Government.

The article is in the nature of a personal narrative of the battle of Verdun, the writer describing from the German point of view the terrific character of the struggle, and also apparently implying the existence of despair on the part of the German public at the failure of the attack.

Lake, in command of the relief force which is attempting to aid the beleaguered British Mesopotamian force at Kut-el-Amara, reported to the War Office today that the Tigris corps attacked and carried the Turkish position at Umm-el-Hannah on the Tigris, about twenty-three miles east of Kut-el-Amara.

Mayor to Aid City Employees to Attend and Still Get Vacations. From Maine to Montana, from Florida to Michigan, enrolment cards for the summer military training camps are pouring into the recruiting headquarters on Governors Island at a rate which is the despair of the office force and the delight of those interested in military training for business and professional men and college students.

Revised dates for the Oglethorpe, Tenn. camps are May 3 to May 30, June 3 to 30, July 3 to August 3. The last named is the student camp. The training will be under direction of Lieut.-Col. D. W. Ketcham of Fort Monroe. The Oglethorpe camp will accommodate about 1,200.

Major Mitchell has written a letter to heads of city departments laying emphasis on the duty of every city employee to prepare himself for military service. The letter in part follows: "I suggest to you that you make inquiry among your employees to learn how many will desire to attend the training camps and advise them that if the work of the department permits a vacation of eleven working days in addition to the period of four weeks for training will be granted to men who wish to attend the camps and take the course of training. You should of course grant leave of absence in accordance with these suggestions only after consideration of the needs and requirements of your department."
