

Photos of Plattsburg Camp Copyright, Underwood & Underwood.

General view of Camp Oglethorp, the first of the "Plattsburg" camps to open, with the battalion paraded.

R OF "THE N OF 1916"

Only Needed
30,000 That es Will Undergo aining in Seven-
"Plattsburg"
Summer

Robert Bacon (with the rifle), ex-Ambassador to France, and formerly a partner of J. P. Morgan & Co. At Camp Oglethorp.

Drilling with a three inch field piece at Camp Oglethorp. The "Plattsburg idea" comprises intensive training in all branches of the service.

Major Peter Murray, 10th U. S. Infantry, in command of the five camps at Plattsburg this summer.

Trench digging is part of the training of the modern soldier. Men who never swung a pick before are learning it. (Camp Oglethorp.)

There are few idle moments at Plattsburg, but the newsboys are quick to seize them and their wares go like hot cakes.

Learning the manual of arms. Before their four weeks are over this "awkward squad" will have acquired the snap and cadence of regulars. (Plattsburg camp.)