BIG CROWD SEES N. Y. A. C. BOXING

Florio Beats Martin With Solar Plexus Blow.

A crowd that backed the gymnasium to the roof gathered last night to witness the final of the New York A. C. monthly boxing show. By far the best bout and the one to wake up the Mercury Foot levers of the fight game was the 145 pound final between Nick Florio of the Paulist A. C. and C. Martin of the Parkenelle A. C. of Brooklyn.

At the clang of the bell they sailed into each other with the mallets work, using like sledge hammers. Matters were even for about two minutes, but Martin began to tire, when all of a sudden Florio landed a fierce solar plexus wallop and doubled up Martin in the center of the ring.

The Brooklyn man did not fall, but he moved as if paralyzed, and nothing was left but to quit.

$10,000 AUTO PRIZE FOR NOVICE DRIVER

Jimmy Murphy Beats Big Field in 250 Mile Race at Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 28.—Jimmy Murphy, a novice as a driver, steering a Duesenberg, won the Los Angeles Speedway opening event of 250 miles and captured the $10,000 first money to-day. His time was 2:22:15.59. Ira Vail was second and Joe Thomas third. There were eighteen starters.

A wheel on Klein's Peugeot collapsed and put the car out of the race. Twelve cars were left in the race. Engine trouble forced Dutton's Stutz out in its 152d lap. Goodson turned his moon over to Roscoe Searles in the 151st lap.

A sprained wrist put Goodson out of the running. Boyer was still leading at 156 laps, with Murphy second. Pullen third and Vail fourth. The positions were unchanged at 184 laps and the time was picking up, the leaders averaging 104.1 miles an hour.

Joe Thomas gave the fans the biggest thrill of the race in his ninetieth lap, when he went into the northeast turn too slow to make the incline and skidded completely around. He straightened his car out and continued the race.

At 190 miles an hour on a track of one mile and a quarter, a distance so short in comparison with the speed that the cars flicked past the grand stand with a rushing sound that once heard are never to be forgotten.

The day was ideal for the speedsters. The lack of sunshine kept the wooden track at a temperature very easy on tires and affording by coolness of the air, ideal carburetion.

Over the vast field hung a flock of airplanes, eight of them drifting in scout formation, while their engine brothers of the mundane earth roared around the vast bowl.

The time for twenty-eight laps was 20:08.05, an average of 104.3 miles an hour. The time for thirty-six laps was 28:30.55, an average of 102.5 miles an hour. Milton was leading and Klein was second. Murphy was third and Durant was driving a consistent race in fourth place.

Milton and Klein were having a great battle for first place, but a few yards separating them at any time. Durant was forced into the pits with motor trouble in his fortieth lap.

As Milton finished his forty-sixth lap the tread flew from his left rear tire and he limped his way to the pits. In the forty-ninth lap Klein pulled Milton and went into first place. Pullen was in third place.

What could more readily bring the deep flush to her cheeks, the sparkle to her eyes, the sweetness to her lips, displaying at once the dimples in rounded cheek and elbow and the slender suppleness in lithe form? TIME IS when TIME WAS when old rose and silver in a captivating, flaunting frock danced its perky way into the heart of. pert, personal, infinitely graceful in its folds and drapings, quite blots out the colorful peak of fashion that held Milady of the Old Rose and Silver propensities. It is no longer sufficient to be merely in vogue, to wear a costume that simply avers the season. To-day is the Moment of the Individual, the time when every discerning woman recognizes the poignant truth that she is the possessor of an individual, alluring beauty which but needs the proper medium of dress to give it expression. And so, Milady of Sophisticated Fashion demands of her apparel one supreme requisite—that it bear that personal touch in line, in tinting, in delicate adornment, that will reveal the changing lights in her eyes, the delicate contour of her face, and the peculiarly individual curves of her form. It is this need that Stewart & Co. have sought to fill. And perhaps more signally than ever before have they approached this goal in their present collection of Advance Spring Costumes.
