

Despite Spectacular Rally Frank T. Anderson Finally Loses Indoor Tennis Match to S. Howard Voshe

VOSHELL CHECKS A TENNIS RALLY

Stops Frank T. Anderson in Last Set of Spectacular Match.

WINNER IS HARD PRESSED

Veteran's Generalship Overcomes Youth's Speed and Flashy Placements.

Frank T. Anderson was the first of the contenders to go down to defeat in the national indoor tennis championship at the Seventh Regiment Army yesterday...

The situation instead of discouraging Anderson only gave him an opportunity to show his fighting qualities and to prove as he has in the past, that he is the best when he has to play a hard-fought, during which he stroked nobly and placed with great skill...

The Rally Is Halted.

The gallery rose at that point with a cheer that resembled the enthusiastic outburst of a crowd of baseball fanatics. It was great work on the part of the youngster, and he deserved the applause...

Throughout the match Vosshell played with cool, unerring judgment, and most of the errors charged against him were due to hurried returns of Anderson's swift shots.

Decisions Reversed.

The dull sky made conditions unfavorable, but with the aid of artificial light the players found little to complain of. At times, however, the ball traveled so swiftly that the officials had difficulty following its flight and numerous decisions were reversed after the umpire had questioned the spectators nearest the court in question.

HIGH LIGHTS AND SHADOWS IN ALL SPHERES OF SPORT

By DANIEL. Copyright, 1920, by the Sun-Herald Corporation.

MOBILE, Ala., March 29.—As index to the needs of the contesting clubs and a medium for bringing out the weak spots the series between the Giants and the Red Sox already has been of great value to John McGraw and Edward Barrow. The New Yorks have been getting some fine pitching from their veterans, and they have been fielding as well as could be expected, but they have not been batting and they have not been as intelligent as they should have been on the bases.

The Giants' fielding very often has been phenomenal. Fletcher has been playing the game of his life and Frank Frisch has been giving repeated indications of the fact that he may be expected to be the greatest third baseman in the league this year.

The Red Sox infield has been playing a great game. McInnis is not yet up to his standard. McNally is going great guns at second base and Scott is the same old Scott at shortstop.

H. L. Herbert, chairman; William A. Hazard, secretary and treasurer; Harry Payne Whitney, Devereux Milburn, J. Cheever Cowdin, Louis E. Stoddard, John C. Groome, Robert E. Strawbridge, W. Plunket Stewart, W. Cameron Forbes, Dudley P. Rogers, H. B. Talbot, Jr., Francis L. Conroy, Carleton F. Burke and Col. William Lassiter.

The meeting of the executive committee is usually part of the business of the annual meeting, which was held this year on January 20. On that occasion, however, the delegates adjourned with a great deal of business unfinished.

Barrow seemed greatly interested in the why and wherefore of Bodie's taking French leave at Jacksonville. Bodie may be too slow for the Yankees, but he would make a good man for Barrow. On the New York Americans the outfielder is a slow man among a lot of other slow ones.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD. MANHATTAN, N. J., March 29.—Field trial fanatics and also those interested in bench show specimens were out in force here to-day for the opening event, the Members' Derby, at the fifteenth annual field trials held by the English Setter Club of America on the grounds of the Friends of the Hunting Dog.

Because of the number of youngsters listed to start in the Members' Derby, many of which were bred in the pen, quite a lot of speculation was created as to the winner of this much coveted event, which is almost as much prized by the member being fortunate in winning the winner dog as a winner in the free for all.

It was quite some battle for first place between Jersey Hiker and Ruth Boaz. Both displayed splendid hunting ships, would be settled yesterday and that the annual handicap would be ready for announcement. It appears, however, that one or two dates on the schedule are in doubt and the association prefers to have the list complete before announcing it.
