

BRYAN REUSES TWO RUN-WATKINS NAMED BY DRYS

Prohibitionists Put Up Ohio Man as Their Nominee for Presidency.

CONDEMN OLD PARTIES Hays Says G. O. P. Convention Did Not Pass Law and Order Plank.

LINCOLN, Neb., July 22.—Ohio got its third Presidential nominee for the 1920 campaign when the Prohibition National Convention tonight nominated Aaron S. Watkins of Germantown, after learning from William J. Bryan that he would not accept the nomination won on the second ballot after he and R. H. Patton each had received eighty-five votes on the first.

Delegates to the convention were Bryan was disappointed when informed by the Associated Press tonight that Bryan had flatly refused to accept the nomination. It had been believed generally he would accept, but he had made his plans with that view.

The convention was in recess when despatches from Boston, where Bryan had been quickly spread, and a funeral could not have given a more disconsolate appearance around the Prohibition headquarters.

Edwards Long Search. The despatches from Boston evaded a search by hundreds of persons for Bryan during the last twenty-four hours, during which time Bryan, although a national figure and on a national speaking tour, had been unintentionally completely hidden from friends, relatives and the public.

Bryan's telegram declining the nomination was as follows: "Please deliver the following message to the chairman of the Prohibition National Convention now in session at Lincoln: Having been away from the railroad and telegraph facilities for the last twenty-four hours I have not received your telegram notifying me of the nomination tendered me by the Prohibition party convention. I am sorry to hear of the nomination and I am sorry to hear of the nomination."

"I profoundly appreciate the honor done me in tendering this nomination and I fully share in the conviction of the prohibitionists that the permanent policy of our country and in the strict enforcement of the Volstead act without any weakening of its provisions. I also share the conviction of the prohibitionists that the failure of the Democratic and Republican parties to pledge their candidates to such a policy, but I cannot in justice to the Prohibition party nor to myself accept the nomination."

"I have not decided yet how I shall vote this fall. But whatever I may feel it is my duty to do in this campaign, I expect to continue as a member of the Democratic party and to serve my country through it."

Pinch John Barleycorn Riding in Town Hearse

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD. SEYMOUR, Conn., July 22.—Federal liquor agents in this vicinity have been stopping everything that moves on wheels in their search for illegal liquor cargoes, but funeral processions managed to escape so far today.

A hearse proceeding solemnly through the main street of this village without coaches trailing behind attracted the attention of the agents. They stopped it, although with misgivings because of the presence beside the driver of a man garbed as a priest and carrying a prayer book in his hands. Inside the hearse were several gallons of high proof whiskey.

The driver and the "priest" were arrested. A fusion in records of Republican National Convention and there is no omitted plank on law and order or on the prohibition question. The facts are as follows:

The original draft of the platform (formulated by the sub-committee) of the Committee on Resolutions contained a plank on law and order which read as follows: "The equality of all citizens under the law has always been a policy of the Republican party. Without obedience to law and maintenance of order our American institutions must perish. Our laws must be impartially enforced and speedy justice should be secured with regard to the sale and manufacture of liquor."

This plank was discussed by the sub-committee on the very day the published report of the decision of the Supreme Court with respect to the Volstead act reached the members of the sub-committee. This decision seemed to make the entire plank as meaningless and useless as a plank, saying was believed in the right to be right. Of course it went without saying that we stood for the Constitution and enforced its laws. The plank was therefore struck out by unanimous vote of the sub-committee.

The suggestion that some such plank was adopted undoubtedly grows out of these earlier stages of the proceedings in the sub-committee and to the unfortunate erroneous publication of the so-called law and order plank in a Chicago newspaper as having been recommended in the report of the sub-committee, which was not the case. No such plank was adopted at the convention, and the official edition of the platform as issued by the Republican National Committee has been carefully verified in every particular with the official records of the convention and of its committees and is correct as printed.

Mr. Watkins, the Presidential nominee, is a professor of literature in a German university. He is 58 years old, a professor in Ada College, Ohio, for several years and was Vice-Presidential candidate on the Prohibition ticket in 1908 and 1912. He was born on a farm near Stuyvesant, Ohio, and is 58 years old. He preached seventeen years in the Methodist Church before starting teaching and was nominated for Governor of Ohio on the Prohibition ticket in 1908 and 1912.

In accepting Mr. Watkins said his campaign plans were up to the National Committee, but he knew it "would be an active campaign."

ANTI-SALOONISTS PLAN TO GRILL COX

Nominee's Friends on Executive Committee Postpone Open Denunciation.

INVESTIGATION ORDERED Records of Both Candidates Will Be Gone Into for Benefit of the League.

Special to THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD. WASHINGTON, July 22.—Because of the somewhat nebulous results of the White House conference last Sunday between Woodrow Wilson and James M. Cox, who hopes to succeed him, Democratic politicians here are keeping an anxious eye on the behavior of George White, just selected to head the Democratic National committee, and therefore to run the Cox campaign.

According to the private views of these men here, "Ed" Moore was ditched because he was entirely too anti-Wilson in the campaign, but the Democratic National committee, and therefore to run the Cox campaign. According to the private views of these men here, "Ed" Moore was ditched because he was entirely too anti-Wilson in the campaign, but the Democratic National committee, and therefore to run the Cox campaign.

What the publication of his record as drawn up will mean to Cox was seen when it was announced that two members of this committee will be George Baker and Wayne B. Wheeler, two dry crusaders, who have been battling with the Ohio Governor for the last ten years. Baker is bitter anti-Cox statements at the San Francisco convention.

"The friends of law enforcement," said Wheeler in Washington on June 14, before the Democratic convention, "are the last hope of the wets in their program for nullification. Cox's record makes him an impossibility if national prohibition is to be effectively sustained and enforced. He has served the wets long and faithfully."

Wheeler then went on to quote William J. Bryan's remarks that Cox was as bad as if not worse than Gov. Edwards from a dry point of view. Cox's Friends in Compromise. Recalling these statements tonight Cox's friends wondered whether it would not have been better to have let the league denounce Cox and have it over with. The best they could do, however, was to get three southerners on the committee to balance the influence of Baker and Wheeler.

The committee appointed to-day will not make its report on the dry records of the two Presidential nominees until after Cox has made his acceptance speech. They expect him to go on record in that talk. Sam W. Small, revisited and dry lecturer, appeared before the committee in the afternoon, promising that the Democratic nominee would make no move for the abolition of the Volstead law if he is elected.

The executive committee decided to pursue its usual course in the Congress. "This course is to use all their strength to defeat wet candidates for Congress and Senate. Declaration by Committee. The formal declaration of campaign policy made by the committee reads: "Following the historical non-partisan policy of the Anti-Saloon League of America from its organization to the present time, the league is in support of its executive committee taking action in favor of no candidate for President of the United States."

But in accordance with an established rule, a subcommittee of the executive committee has been appointed, carefully and impartially to ascertain the official records, public utterances and present attitude of each candidate for the information of the constituency of the league. "The executive committee further emphasizes the fact that the prohibition battle ground of the present campaign is chiefly where it has been, and will become a national issue. Therefore the committee urged the several State leagues immediately and vigorously to put forth the strongest possible effort for the election of Congressmen and United States Senators who will stand for the maintenance of the Volstead enforcement code as construed by the Supreme Court of the United States."

WIFE OF A DAUGHTER DENIES HURLING HER DAUGHTER TO DEATH

Mother Says Five-Year-Old Fell as Auto Came Along. Mrs. Marie Marino, 25 years old, of 2048 Bergen street, Brooklyn, denied yesterday when put on the stand in her own defense that she had thrown her five-year-old daughter Anselma under the wheels of an automobile at Eastern Parkway and St. Mark's Place, Brooklyn, on June 17. The girl died in St. Mary's Hospital and Mrs. Marino was charged with manslaughter.

She pleaded that she was overpowered by a quarrel with her husband, James, saying that he asked her to help him get a divorce with a request to sign an affidavit that her unborn child is not his. This woman said she was starting for a trolley car to look for a doctor for her daughter just in time to see the child run down. Marino gave a different version, testifying that she was overpowered by a quarrel with her husband, James, saying that he asked her to help him get a divorce with a request to sign an affidavit that her unborn child is not his.

Shamrock May Win The Race To-Day. The fishermen at Sandy Hook, the weather for to-day's race will furnish gusty going for the Cup boats. A succession of thunder squalls hovered around the horizon all day and these will be followed, the fishermen say, by northwest winds, which will be strong and of the sort that carry away topmasts when skippers cling too long to their club tips.

Shamrock's new topmast, according to those who went out to look her over on her return from the shipyard, is an alpine topmast. That is, a hollow, elliptical tube, such as those with which alpine are braced. Since Shamrock's skipper has taken Captain "Jack" Applegate on board to advise him on currents, tides and winds around the Hook, there have been numerous rumors that Captain Adams of the Resolute would engage some ancient mariner to sail with him. Uncle "Pete" White is mentioned. He, according to the Sea Bright correspondent, "has produced records of a storm along the Jersey coast that are only eclipsed in nautical strategy" by Captain Jack himself.

"Resolute is a fine boat," Mr. Nicholson said. "Herreshoff has designed a craft that is a wonder to windward better than Shamrock."

SAILOR BLAMED FOR RESOLUTE ACCIDENT Loss of First Race Due to Carelessness. The first explanation of the accident that cost the Resolute the first race for the America's Cup was told yesterday by a member of the New York Yacht Club, who had the story direct from an officer on the American defender. Published accounts said the Resolute parted her throat halyard, the rope that supports her mast, but did not enter into detail. What actually happened was that a sailor on the Resolute, who was ordered to slack off the steel rope around the drum to secure it, let it slip off the winch around which it is coiled.
