Father John's Medicine Helped Him To Rest Well At Night.

For about eight months my baby was very sick and for many nights he would not sleep a wink. I tried many doctors but they did not do him any good. I finally tried Father John's Medicine and it made him rest very well at night. I continued to use it and my baby is healthy today. I have used Father John's Medicine myself since I had the influenza. It has made me as strong as I was before. We are never without it in my house. Father John's Medicine is a member of our family. HARDING OPENS HIS CAMPAIGN IN EAST TO-DAY

Baltimore Speech To-night
Will Be Bid for 60,000 Independent Voters.

HIS EYES ON SENATE

Nominee Anxious for Majority to Support His Big Programme.

HOT FIGHTS IN PROGRESS

Democrats Must Win 21 of Their Races to Control, Republicans But 15.

By a Staff Correspondent of THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.

MARION, Ohio, Sept. 26.—Senator Warren G. Harding, en route for Baltimore to-night, will make his effort in that city to-morrow to win the support of Maryland.

Information reaching the Senator indicates that his address will reach a field of thousands of independent minded voters, men who ordinarily vote their party tickets in State and local elections, but maintain a broader outlook upon national affairs. There are about 30,000 men listed as independents. With women voting, it is reasonable to assume that 60,000 of the Maryland electorate are at least open minded in this campaign. The party that wins the majority of these wins Maryland.

An additional incentive for the Senator is the opportunity to aid O. E. Weller, the candidate for the Senate seat now held by John Walter Smith. Democrat. It is one of the group of Senate seats that the Republicans are striving to gain from the Democrats, a group which consists of California, Idaho, Kentucky, South Dakota, Arizona, Colorado, Nevada, Oklahoma and Oregon. In the Republican calculations, Maryland is put down for Harding, but it is recognized that the contest between Weller and Senator Smith is close and that Weller needs all the assistance that can be thrown to him.

Senate Races All Important.

In beginning the final phase of the Presidential battle of 1920 Senator Harding desires in the five weeks remaining until Election Day to do all in his power to keep the United States Republican, to carry out his plans for governmental reorganization and to carry through the projects of political, economic and social significance upon which he has set his mind.

Among these projects is the revision of certain treaties, including that which now requires American shipping to pay in the Panama Canal tolls equal to those paid by competitive shipping; the rebuilding of the transportation systems; the ending of the state of war with Germany; the institution of a system of frugality in Government which will mean the lopping off of hundreds of thousands of useless tax-eating Federal employees.

The effort to hold a Republican majority in the Senate is scarcely less determined than the effort to place a Republican President at the other end of Pennsylvania avenue. The dramatic episodes of the quarrelsome struggle always swing round the candidate for President, but this year there is no misconception about the necessity, from a Republican standpoint, of holding or increasing a majority in the upper house of Congress to back solidly a Republican President.

The Republican majority in the present Senate is two. The Republican membership is forty-nine, and the Democratic membership forty-seven. Thirty-four Senators are to be elected in thirty-three States, Alabama electing two, because, in addition to the regular expiration of the term of Senator Oscar W. Underwood, the appointment of R. B. Comer, in succession to Senator Bankhead, also expires in November.

Republicans Must Elect 15.

One other ad interim term expires, that of Senator Carter Glass, of Virginia, appointed in February to succeed the late Senator Martin. Of the thirty-four, nineteen are Democrats, and fifteen Republicans. The Democrats to capture the Senate, must elect at least twenty-one Senators; Republicans to keep control, must elect at least fifteen.

The Democrats start practically assured of electing eleven Senators from the following States: Alabama, two seats; Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, North Carolina, South Carolina and Virginia, one each.

Republicans are certain of Pennsylvania, Vermont and Kansas, and almost certain of New Hampshire. The Democrats had hoped to beat Senator George H. Moses of New Hampshire, a target of Administration hatred, but their chances sadly depreciated when Senator Moses won re-election by a vote of 2 to 1.

It is in the following twenty-one States and between the candidates named that the fight for Senate control now rages: Arizona—Senator McFieus A. Smith (D.), Ralph Cameron (R.). California—Senator James D. Phelan (D.), Samuel M. Shortridge (R.). Colorado—A. B. Collicott (D.), Samuel D. Nicholson (R.). Connecticut—Augustine Lonergan (D.), Senator Frank B. Brandegee (R.). Idaho—Senator John F. Nugent (D.), Frank R. Gooding (R.). Indiana—Thomas Taggart (D.), Senator James Watson (R.). Illinois—Peter A. Wallin (D.), William B. McKinley (R.). Iowa—Claude R. Porter (D.), Senator Albert B. Cummings (R.). Kentucky—Senator J. C. W. Beckham (D.), Richard Ernest Smith (R.). Maryland—Senator John Walter Smith (D.), O. E. Weller (R.). Missouri—Breckinridge Long (D.), Senator Selden P. Spencer (R.). Nevada—Senator Charles H. Henderson (D.), T. L. Odell (R.). Miss Anne Martin (Ind. R.). New York—Harry C. Walker (D.), Senator James W. Wadsworth, Jr. (R.). North Dakota—H. P. Perry (D.), F. Ladd (R.). Ohio—W. A. Julian (D.), Frank B. Willis (R.). Oklahoma—Scott Ferris (D.), John W. Harrell (R.). Oregon—Senator George Chamberlain (D.), Robert N. Stanford (R.). South Dakota—U. S. G. Cherry (D.), Peter Norbeck (R.). Utah—M. H. Welling (D.), Senator Reed Smoot (R.). Washington—George F. Cottrell (D.), Senator Wesley R. Jones (R.). Wisconsin—Paul Reinsch (D.), Senator Irvin L. Lenroot (R.).

In six States the fight is between new men, as the following Senators, now representing States in that group, are not candidates for re-election: Thomas F. Gore of Oklahoma, Edwin S. Johnson of South Dakota, William F. Kirby of Arkansas and Charles H. Thomas of Colorado, Democrats; S. A. J. Gronna of North Dakota and Lawrence J. Sherman of Illinois, Republicans.

Odds Against Democrats.

The Democrats must make a net gain of two in the listed States if they are to capture Senate control, and they are asserting that they will gain Republican seats in Missouri and Utah. The Republicans' best chances to win Democratic seats appear to be in California, Idaho and South Dakota, Maryland and Kentucky.

In Missouri Senator Spencer is hard pushed by the Democrats by Breckinridge Long, Assistant Secretary of State. The Republicans count on carrying the State for the national ticket and thus saving Spencer.

In Iowa the opposition of organized labor to Senator Cummins because of his authorship of the Esch-Cummins railroad reorganization act is helping the Democrats. Senator Cummins has been ill and is unable to make a vigorous personal campaign. Labor leaders have undertaken to stir up the Iowa farmers because of the rate provisions of the railroad act, but Republicans count on holding the State safely.

In Utah the outcome of the fight by Senator Smith for re-election is in real doubt. Opposing him is a Democratic Representative who was elected to the House two years ago despite the handling of that year's trend against the Democrats. Smith's chances have been greatly improved, according to Mr. Harding's information.

Republicans are convinced they have a fine chance to defeat Senator Phelan in California.

In Idaho former Gov. Gooding is the candidate of the Republicans against Senator Nugent. The two opposed each other two years ago when a Senator was to be elected for an undisturbed term and Senator Nugent was won by a small vote. Former Gov. Gooding at that time did not have the support of Senator William E. Borah. This year he has. On that fact Republicans build a definite expectation of taking Nugent's seat.

Both Sides Claim Indiana.

Both Democrats and Republicans lay claim to Indiana, the real fighting ground of the Senatorial campaign. All the power of the Democratic organization of which he is the chief, is being exerted to support Mr. Taggart against Senator Watson. The Democrats are confident they are winning an important victory in the Hoosier State. But Senator Watson is not without his own following. That confidential polls he has just completed show Indiana will go heavily Republican and he forecasts Senator Watson's certain victory.

In Wisconsin the Democrats would be written as Republicans because the Democrats maintain claims because of Republican factionalism. One is Illinois, the other Wisconsin. Republicans do concede that Senator Harding is being in either State but, particularly with regard to Wisconsin, the Democrats profess high hopes. They declare the breach between Senator Lenroot, up for re-election, and Senator Robert M. La Follette is such as to give the Democrats a chance to win. Despite the Republican inclination of the State of Oregon, Democrats assert likelihood of the return of the Senatorial seat to the Republican fold. His hold in Oregon is not confined to the Democratic party.

Both parties claim Kentucky and Ohio. Each expects to win a Senator in Ohio because each expects its Presidential candidate to carry Ohio.

With regard to Kentucky, the Republicans count on pulling through with Richard P. Ernst, while the Democrats meet this attitude with the assertion that Senator Beekman never has been defeated for office in Kentucky.

The election in North Dakota of Prof. Ladd, the Republican candidate, is almost a foregone conclusion. Republicanism is a Non-Partisan League Republican, and defeated Senator Gronna in the primaries. Despite his connection with the league, he has given aid and nation to Republican leaders that he will stand with them in the organization of the Senate against the League of Nations. He will part company with his fellow Republicans only on economic issues.

Fight Against Overconfidence.

In the East the Senatorial campaign is marked by two hot fights, one in New York and one in Connecticut. Senator Wadsworth of New York and Senator Brandegee of Connecticut are targets of attack, particularly because of their record of opposition to woman suffrage. Senator Brandegee partly soothed suffrage opposition by a late appeal to the Connecticut Legislature to ratify the Federal amendment.

Republicans, who some weeks ago were considerably worried over these two States, now profess to feel assured of the reelection both of Wadsworth and Brandegee, but Democrats continue to hope and battle for their defeat.

The foregoing survey and its indications are based almost entirely upon the information that comes to the headquarters here of the Republican candidate for President. It takes into account the usual elements of a hard fought political battle, and is not colored by the expectation of a great countrywide landslide, such as was indicated by the Republican majority of more than 65,000 in Maine.

COX IS IRRITATED AT 'DRY' QUESTION

Democratic Candidate Accuses Wayne B. Wheeler of Trickery for Republicans.

By a Staff Correspondent of THE SUN AND NEW YORK HERALD.

CHRYSTIE, Wyo., Sept. 26.—Gov. Cox is facing a new angle of the wet and dry issue. Following inquiries as to his position which have developed in many of his Western audiences he has now been faced by a question from the Anti-Saloon League.

The Governor instead of answering the question directly opened up with an attack on Wayne B. Wheeler, counsel for the league, in which he charged Wheeler with being an adjunct of the Republican party and made the further assertion that he did not see how Wheeler could explain to the conscientious members of his organization his support of the Presidency of the United States of a brewer who is apologizing for his holdings.

The Governor to-day said that Mr. Wheeler acting for the league, had asked him whether he was for or against any proposal to change the Volstead law, while he had asked Senator Harding whether he stood by his recorded vote on the Eighteenth Amendment and the Volstead law.

“The question to me,” Gov. Cox continued, “was based on further developments. The one to Senator Harding was not.”

“The habitual trickery of Wheeler, which we are used to in Ohio, by the way, is obvious in the face of his off repeated statement that the Anti-Saloon League was only interested now in what might be done with the Volstead act, and yet he made no attempt whatsoever to ascertain Senator Harding's stand on that issue, himself says is the real issue. This would all seem to be a carefully devised partisan plan. In fact, one would have expected it from Will H. Hayes, the Republican chairman. “That it was prepared as a protection to the Republican candidate rather than as an attempt to ascertain his views is perfectly clear. This idea would seem to be strengthened by the coincidence of events. On the day preceding Mr. Wheeler's statement representatives of the Prohibition party made public in Chicago a letter from George Christian, Jr., Senator Harding's secretary, in which two striking things appeared. First, that the Senator was interested in the brewery business, and second, that if the Volstead act were changed by Congress the Senator would not improperly impose his will on the law-making body.

“If Mr. Wheeler is an honest man, why does he not present the records of both Senator Harding and myself on the case? He is a Non-Partisan League Republican, and defeated Senator Gronna in the primaries. Despite his connection with the league, he has given aid and nation to Republican leaders that he will stand with them in the organization of the Senate against the League of Nations. He will part company with his fellow Republicans only on economic issues.
