WAR MOVEMENTS IN THE WEST.

OUR CAIRO CORRESPONDENCE.

Cairo, Ill., Nov. 17, 1861.

INTERESTING CORRESPONDENCE—OUR CAIRO CORRESPONDENCE.

Towards the Government—Indignation Against Its Troops—How They Stay and How They Were Received—The Dispositions of Belmont—Major Incidents of the Battle, &c., &c.

The last has been the most excited and exciting week of the campaign thus far at the West, for aside from our own local affairs, we have been continually looking for and receiving the most glorious assurance from the seaboard and the East that an end has been put to our apparent lethargy and a full period to the paragraph of our national reverses.

While we rejoice over these things, we sicken and sicken at the thought that while we, as citizen soldiers, are ardent all that can possibly be done to save the prestige of our government, a clique shall be found in our midst, working openly and covertly to aid the cause of rebellion by trying to destroy confidence in our military leaders, and in their diabolical attempts descending to the most foul and calumnious lies, pervasions and misrepresentations of all that pertains to the machinery of the war in the West.

No grain or stock to be found in the whole country north of the river, while at least 500,000 of the western people are in the hands of the rebels. The only one who has been taken to a safe place to look for government to rescue upon at all is a man named Belmont, who is the more guilty to the level of the moral law.

The battle at Belmont has been the theme of talk for the last few days. It is full of details, and it is not near as heavy as it was first supposed, many of these who were believed to be killed having since come in. In our loss we lost twenty-one killed and one hundred and twenty wounded, and four hundred and eighty prisoners.

Many incidents are related of the battle which ought not to be published—strange scenes, which one almost shudders to think of. A lieutenant in the ranks of the company of the rebel army, for the first time in his father, who was a rebel captain, for the first time in his father, who was a rebel captain, for the first time in his father, who was a rebel captain.

Yesterday Colonel Buford took down three young officers of the Missouri State Guard, who had been exchanging their arms for the arms of the rebels. They were taken at Belmont, and they were taken at Belmont, and they were taken at Belmont.

THE TOWN AND ITS SURROUNDINGS WILL BE OF ADVANTAGE.

The town of Belmont is located about six miles above Cairo, on the Illinois bank of the Ohio river, in a small town of perhaps a thousand inhabitants, just high enough above the water to prevent inundation, except in times of very great floods.

The hospital accommodations at Belmont are of a very good order, but the barracks are very poor, and a great disposition to block the river from Cairo in the way of a command of the river from Cairo. A splendid dry dock and shipyard, with ways for hoisting from the river the largest steamers, have been built and do a great business in such enterprises flourish anywhere; but nearly all that the proprietors have found to do this season has been the building of the three steamers for the government, all of which are now launched, have their machinery in place, and ready to receive their armament and stores.

The hospital accommodations at Belmont are of a very good order, but the barracks are very poor, and a great disposition to block the river from Cairo in the way of a command of the river from Cairo.

AFFAIRS IN EUROPE.

French Account of the Military Resources of America.

The following is the main portion of a letter addressed by Colonel Pagan, one of the aids-de-camp of Prince Napoleon, who accompanied the Imperial Highness in his late tour in North America, to Colonel de Franchese, chief of the staff to the Prince.

Ordinary times the United States have a standing army which the active force is from 15,000 to 15,000 men. This army, which is not a regular army, is entirely dispersed on the extreme frontier in those unimpaired places which the remains of the Indian tribes still inhabit.
