position of the rebel army would have been taken prisoners, as they were surrounded on three sides, the only mode of escape being a narrow defile in the mountain, which the artillery would soon have made impassable.

THE OPERATIONS OF MONDAY.

Flight of the Rebel Army—Prisoners and Cannon Captured—Howell Cobb Captured—McClellan in Hot Pursuit of the Enemy, &c. &c.
After the flight of South Mountain and Burkittsville Gap, fought respectively by the forces of Burnside and Franklin on Sunday, the enemy having been driven from their position, fell back rapidly to Boonestown, and thence southward to Sharpsburg, and began crossing the Potomac above and below Sharpsburg.

Franklin's corps, supported by Couch's division, passed through Burkittsville Gap, which he captured as he advanced, striking the road leading direct from Boonestown to Harper's ferry, and those moving in the direction of the latter place, gaining the Ridge mountain, which flanked the enemy's position, and brought them within good range of our artillery.

Franklin's corps fought a brilliant battle on Sunday evening, about having great advantages of position. Hancock's brigade made a charge up a hill and captured a battery of six pieces, Howell Cobb and nine hundred of his Virginia. Cobb is wounded and a prisoner. The Sixth Virginia regiment was taken entire, and fragments of many other regiments.

On Sunday Longstreet marched back from Hagerstown to reinforce those troops fighting at the gap. He arrived in time to join in the rout. Brigadier General Garret of Virginia, Colonel Strange of the Nineteenth Virginia, and Colonel James of the Third South Carolina battalions, were all killed at South Mountain Gap on Sunday evening. We have taken, since Friday last, about six thousand prisoners, with less than the usual proportion of officers.

The mountains are full of straggling, starving, and demoralized rebels, who are giving themselves up as fast as they can find their way into our lines. On Thursday last Jackson crossed the Potomac at Williamsport, and marched towards Harper's Ferry, which place he invested. On Saturday he captured Maryland Heights on the north, and Loudon Heights on the south side of the river. On Sunday he attacked the ferry, but was repulsed. On Monday morning at daylight he renewed the attack, and the place was surrendered by General Dixon G. Miles at seven o'clock.

The body of the brave, gallant and lauded General RENO is now at the establishment of Mr. Weaver, an undertaker in this city. It has been embalmed and enclosed in a splendid coffin. He looks very natural and is clothed in full uniform.

BRINGING IN THE PRISONERS.
A detachment of three hundred men, with a train of cars sufficient to carry two thousand prisoners, were sent up to Frederick to-day to bring down the rebels captured by McClellan's army in the battle of last Sunday.

NEWSPAPER ACCOUNTS.
The news that reaches here from the front, coming through a variety of sources, and of course only to be gathered piecemeal, is a gloriously encouraging one. The reports of the day are full of interest, and since they left Frederick, and yesterday fought their four hours in general engagement, they are sent here in rapid order, and with the most accurate and reliable news.

Between two and three o'clock the rebels were found drawn up in line of battle, their left covering Turner's position, and their right extending to Crampton's gap. Our right was led by General Hooker in advance, with General Franklin in support, and the rebels' corps in the center. General Hagerman's corps was in the rear, and was in a reserve position. Some portions of it may have participated in the fight.

THE BATTLE FIELD.
Our army occupied for the night on the battle field, which the rebels extended some three miles from the Potomac to the ridge. The rebels left their killed and many of their wounded on the battle field. My men were ordered to bury the dead, and to take care of the wounded. They were engaged, immediately on the right, and can, therefore, give no estimate of the general loss on either side. They found the ground over which they passed very muddy, and in places very deep, and in a corn field where a desperate stand was made, there was marked evidence of the severity with which they had been engaged.

THE REPORTS FROM HARRISBURG.
The prisoners, one hundred in number, captured yesterday by the New York and Illinois cavalry and sent to Harrisburg, were this morning brought to this city and sent to Camp Parson, a resident of the city of Harrisburg, and among the number. He has been furnishing information to the enemy since their raid into Maryland.

THE BATTLE OF MONDAY.
The troops captured at Harper's Ferry have arrived, having been paroled immediately. They are now at the camp at night, and give the following particulars of the surrender:
The attack on Sunday was successfully repulsed, but on Monday morning the enemy opened from seven different directions, and after two hours firing Colonel Miles displayed the white flag. At the same time a piece of shell struck him in the leg, and the member was soon amputated from the effects of which he died that night. Our loss was light—less than two hundred killed and wounded. The rebels captured amount to about six thousand. They are the Eighty-eighth, Sixteenth, and Thirty-second (Ninth Vermont, Thirty-ninth, One Hundred and Eleventh, and One Hundred and Twenty-sixth New York, Twelfth New York State Militia, and an Indiana battery, besides the Maryland horse guards.

Over Five Thousand Union Soldiers Arrived from Richmond.
Our Fortress Monroe Correspondence.
The past two or three days has witnessed the clearing out of the numerous Richmond prisons, consequent upon the discharge of most of our convalescent sick and wounded prisoners by the rebels. On Thursday, the 11th inst., Capt. James Millward, Jr., left here on board of the steamer Cannonous, as flag ship, accompanied by several other vessels, to Aiken's Landing, on a flag of truce, General Dix having received notice from the rebels that a number of prisoners were to be released on parole.

THE OHIO STATE FAIR.
The State Fair promises to be a perfect success. Entries up to this evening amount to over 1,000, in respect of doubling that amount to-morrow. The stock exhibition will be large and fine.
The Yankess have evacuated Corinth, burning the houses to the ground before they left. They are retreating to the north, laying the whole country waste and burning houses.

AFFAIRS IN WESTERN VIRGINIA.
The Rebels at Charleston.
No particulars of the Charleston fight have been received. All reports, however, agree that the rebels were severely handled, and repulsed with great loss. Lightburne gave the citizens an hour's leave to leave the town before the place was destroyed. Lightburne's forces marched through the town, and perfect order, taking the Ripley road, going to Ravenswood, on the Ohio river, where they arrived evening, bringing his baggage train through in steamers have been sent to his assistance.
