GRANT

THE HOME OF DANIEL LAWRENCE. With having been arrested for causing the death of the late General, the case, and consideration of the 26th inst., as previously reported.

Major William J. Stank's Despatch. HEADQUARTERS, SECOND CORPS, March 2, 1865.

A heavy rain fell during the entire day, rendering less probable the resumption of active operations at present.

THE DARK NIGHTS OF THE REBELS. The dark night of the 25th inst. was favorable for the desertion from the rebel ranks, fifteen of whom reached these headquarters prior to nine o'clock this evening.

Our picket lines are but a short distance from the enemy's, often times in plain sight; and yet it is difficult for a person unaccustomed to seeing and conversing with deserters to appreciate the fortitude and determination required to travel from the one to the other.

It frequently made the subject of anxious thought for weeks prior to the attempt. Every opportunity was eagerly sought to study and become acquainted with the position of our lines to prevent becoming bewildered in the dark.

For the effort arrives, with steady step and unshaken heart the deserters—wary of fighting in a cause which he has come to believe is utterly hopeless, weary of his rags and his little ration of corn meal—moves past the pickets, the first step of danger, and then, on stumbling through the black darkness, expecting each moment to hear the crack of the rifle and the whir of the ball; crouching behind a stump and straining his ear to catch the repetition of a sound which has startled him; plunging into some filthy, slimy pool, with which the woods in this vicinity abound, and laying there in the dark, freezing water until satisfied that the noise from his fall has attracted no attention, from habit and hope of the promised reward clinging to his market and accoutrements through all—and so he moves on until, with a suddenness which causes his heart to leap to his throat, he hears the challenge which he had forgotten to expect.

"Who goes there?" and in a moment afterwards he is beside the camp fire of his old enemy, eating with no greater eagerness the potatoes and dumplings which he has stolen from the table of the rebel than he would do from the table of the Union.

It is in conversation with one of the deserters, who related to me the above, that I learned that the rebels were moving the cotton, tobacco and other valuables from Petersburg. He further stated that it was reported that the rebels had evacuated their lines, and that certain it is that different precautionary steps have been taken by the Jeff Davis army, which causes him to believe that the rebels are about to evacuate their lines.

THE ARMY RAILROAD EXTENSION. The new station at the terminus of the military railroad, near the city of Washington, is now in progress. The trains are now running regularly, and a new time table, according to the present schedule, has been published for the benefit of all concerned.

PERSONAL. Captain Charles F. Smith, Fifty-third Pennsylvania regiment, for some time commanding the First Division Ambulance Corps, has been appointed Adjutant-General of the Army, and ordered to report to that office, now on duty in Washington.

Mr. Theodore C. Wilson's Despatch. CAVALRY CORPS, ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, March 2, 1865.

PAYING THE DEBT. By direction from the Lieutenant General commanding the army of the United States, the paymaster, Major J. B. Barry, will have the honor of the commander of the Second Corps, and there pay the sick and wounded men in hospital belonging to the regiments they pay at the front.

THE REBELS' RATION. Until further orders two issues of fresh beef per week will be made to the troops of this army in lieu of the one issue heretofore directed in circular of February 18, 1865, from headquarters, Army of the Potomac.

Captain Snyder, of General Deviss' staff, has been promoted a Major, and has reported for duty in the field with the First Division, Army of the Potomac.

THE RAIL AND THE MILITARY STATIONERS. A very remarkable stillness has prevailed "on the line" for the last few days, attributable, perhaps, to the rain which we are now experiencing.

MR. WM. H. MERRIAM'S DESPATCH. HEADQUARTERS, ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, IN THE FIELD, March 5, A. M.

THE RAIN AND IMPROVABLE ROAD. Last night a heavy rain fell, and the roads hitherto well impassable, will be wholly so. Of course all offensive operations will be impeded by the storm, and so continue until the storm abate and the weather generally improves. For this reason, it may be added, there is no exciting news.

THE RECALL OF FERRISS. Colonel Mulford yesterday exchanged, with the usual and now well known formalities, fifteen hundred prisoners, receiving in return a similar number of our men. Nothing of startling importance occurred in connection with the exchange.

GENERAL HINGSTON, the alleged peace commissioner, was delayed a day or two in his passage through the lines to Richmond. He finally succeeded, and has not yet returned from his conference with the rebel negotiators. He is expected to return to-day or to-morrow.

Mrs. General and her family, accompanied by two ladies, two small children and a servant, passed through the army lines yesterday, on their way to South Carolina. They propose to return to Carolina, Pennsylvania.

CAPTAIN BOWEN LINGARD, one of the Assistant Adjutants General to Lieutenant General Grant, on the day of the President's pardon, has been promoted a Major, and has reported for duty in the field with the First Division, Army of the Potomac.

THE STOCK OPERATIONS IN BEVERLY. A report of Henry E. Oliver and Levi Reed, Commissioners of the Corporation Tax, made in compliance with an order of the State Senate, reveals some of the tricks by which worthless stock is palmed off upon an unsuspecting public.

THE REMOVAL OF THE STATE CAPITOL. A correspondent of the Bohemian Republic writes:—The removal of the Capitol from Albany is a question of some importance to the State. The removal of the Capitol from Albany is a question of some importance to the State.
