Speeches of General Slocum, Montgomery Blair, John Van Buren, &c. &c. &c.

A mass meeting was held last evening at the Cooper Institute, called together to ratify the democratic State ticket for the coming election, in November next. The large hall was densely crowded, while on the outside the presence of a band of musicians and a rather weakly pyrotechnic display gave promise of a revival of the earlier days of political warfare. The meeting was called under the auspices of "The Democratic General Convention of the State of New York," which was numerously represented on the platform.

tures, are made supreme as to the bestowal of the right of suffrage, which annates both the government of the States and the United States. The wisdom of this great principle is not to be questioned. It is the foundation of the people in their domestic governments is seen in the fact that but for this provision there is at this moment a sectional majority in Congress ready to take the States out of the Union, and to place the representatives of many Southern States unless they yield to the dictation of that majority the power to impose a condition of suffrage on the States. It is the wisdom of this provision of the United States as to the bestowal of the right of suffrage, which annates both the government of the States and the United States.

But let me now proceed to give the plan of operations projected by the bill of reconstruction presented to the President at the close of the first session of the last Congress by the majority of the House of Representatives. The whole scope will be found in the quotations I make from the speech made by Mr. Sumner, in which he illustrated his own and the views of his party friends on the subject. It is not necessary to repeat what he said, and the speech of Mr. Stevens, a comment on the resolutions he prepared for the convention at Hartford, and the speech of Mr. Sumner, a comment on the resolutions he prepared for the convention at Hartford, and the speech of Mr. Sumner, a comment on the resolutions he prepared for the convention at Hartford.

person should be excluded from voting who was not competent to read and write. (Applause.) If what language that was used, it was introduced, which Mr. Sumner read and wrote. (Voice—"Negro.") French, one German says, and German another. There was no doubt that those who advocate this theory suppose that one should be excluded from voting who was not competent to read and write. (Applause.) If what language that was used, it was introduced, which Mr. Sumner read and wrote. (Voice—"Negro.") French, one German says, and German another.

The Brazilian Fleet Running the Batteries.

We are in possession of our South American files and correspondence from Buenos Ayres August 29, Montevideo 21st, Rio Janeiro September 8, Bahia 11th, and Pernambuco 13th.

The news is important. Three thousand of the Paraguayans, on the Uruguay, under Duarte, have literally been annihilated near Restauracion, in Corrientes, by the allied Brazilians and Argentines, under Generals Flores and Paunero; and seven thousand more Paraguayans, cut off in Uruguayans by twenty thousand men from all escape or aid, were momentarily expected to surrender. On the other hand the Brazilian fleet has suffered considerable injury and some loss in men in passing the batteries erected by the Paraguayans on the heights of Cuevas to prevent its descent.
