

NEW YORK HERALD.

JAMES GORDON HENNETT, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

OFFICE N. W. CORNER OF FULTON AND NASSAU STS.

VOLUME XXX. No. 331

AMUSEMENTS THIS EVENING.

BROADWAY THEATRE, Broadway, -SAR.

THE PATENT OPERA HOUSE, 26 Broadway, opposite

THE STATE OF THE COUNTRY—The Crisis of the Republican Party.

With the return of peace comes the crisis to the republican party. It is a crisis of life or death, perpetuity or dissolution.

The people of the loyal States poured out their treasures of men and money for the war without stint; but in the absence of able generals to command our armies, and without an efficient War Department to furnish the needful supplies and reinforcements in every quarter, all the sacrifices of the people would have come to nothing.

But, as the war party, the republicans had all the advantages of the popular side of the question of Union or disunion. They stood before the country upon the single and all-absorbing issue of the suppression of the rebellion by force of arms, and upon this ground the cause of the Union party and the cause of the Union were regarded by the people of the great North as one.

The republican party, victorious from the war, is now called to the practical work of government, to the difficult business of repairing damages, including the restoration of the Southern States and Southern whites and blacks on the new basis of universal liberty; the regulation of our national finances, tariffs, taxes, &c., and the rectification of our unsettled balances with foreign Powers.

In 1824 the old republican party of Jefferson, which was more inclined to red than black, collapsed in the squabble of the politicians for the Presidency. In the scrub race of that year General Jackson first came into full view as the man of the people, and as the man under whom to resuscitate with new blood the old effete Jeffersonian party.

With the first election of Jackson to the Presidency, rallied around him. It held the government without a break for twelve years, when, under Van Buren, it was in 1840 swept from power by a resolute tornado. Andrew Polk, in 1844, the democracy recovered their position, to be turned out again in 1848. In 1852, on the platform of Henry Clay's great peace measures of 1850, the party carried the country, North and South, by an overwhelming electoral and popular vote.

In 1856 the party narrowly escaped defeat. It was saved only through the assistance of Fillmore as a second opposition candidate. In 1860, through its own dissensions, the great national democratic party, with the Presidency in its grasp, was broken up and dissolved.

Now what was the secret of these misfortunes to the old democracy? We need not travel far to find it. The party was controlled by a radical sectional clique of managing politicians—a haughty, imperious Southern clique, full of ultra Southern ideas, and setting themselves up as the rightful masters of the country and the rightful dictators of democratic principles and measures.

Four cases of attempted deadly assault received the attention of the police authorities yesterday. Of the principals in these were committed for trial a man giving his name as Henry Thore, and his residence as 143 Thompson street, arrested on charge of being one of a party of three who early yesterday morning attacked and discharged a pistol at policeman Griffiths, in West street, near Charlton, while the latter was engaged in taking into custody one of their confederates, a supposed thief, John Smith, aged twenty, charged with stealing in the street early yesterday morning.

The health officials of our port have decided to permit all the passengers, both cabin and steerage, of the steamship Atlanta who show no cholera symptoms, and who design going to the West, to leave the vessel. Those whose cases are considered doubtful, but in whom the disease has not yet developed itself, will be sent to Ward's Island for further detention. Our Sanitary Police still continue their work of preparing the city against the approach of the cholera. During the week ending on Saturday last four hundred and eighty-four notices were served by them to individuals for the cleansing of unhealthy localities, and three hundred and ninety-three places were cleaned under notices previously served.

The City Inspector's report gives three hundred and eighty as the number of deaths occurring in the city during the week ending yesterday, being fifty less than in the preceding week last year.

Intelligence has just been received of the death from cholera, in August last, at Amoy, China, of Dr. William Irving, our Consul at that port.

The stock market was steady yesterday, but heavy in the afternoon. Governments were weak. Gold was strong, and closed at 147 1/2.

There was not a great deal of activity in commercial circles yesterday, and neither foreign nor domestic merchandise sold to any great extent. The markets were firm, however, and for some articles an advance was asked. Groceries were dull. Cotton was steady. Petroleum was a shade lower. On Change four was moderately active, without decided change. Wheat and corn were lower. The demand for the former was moderate, while the latter was very active. Pork was irregular and lower. Beef was steady, with a moderate demand. Lard was dull, irregular and decidedly lower. Whiskey continued dull and nominal.

ROGUE POLITICAL ADDRESSES.—It appears that the signature of Mr. Francis B. Cutting to the published call for a public meeting to ratify the nominations of Mozart Hall for Mayor and Corporation Counsel is a clear case of forgery, without the least shadow of authority, and that Mr. Cutting supports Marshall O. Roberts, and is "opposed to any candidate who during the rebellion failed to give a hearty support to the Union cause."

There are no doubt, other names used by these rascals without authority; but forgery is forgery, whether it involves money or character. The Citizens' Association has made a bad beginning for reform in attaching itself as a tail to the kite of Fernando Wood.

THE STATE OF THE COUNTRY—The Crisis of the Republican Party.

With the return of peace comes the crisis to the republican party. It is a crisis of life or death, perpetuity or dissolution.

The people of the loyal States poured out their treasures of men and money for the war without stint; but in the absence of able generals to command our armies, and without an efficient War Department to furnish the needful supplies and reinforcements in every quarter, all the sacrifices of the people would have come to nothing.

But, as the war party, the republicans had all the advantages of the popular side of the question of Union or disunion. They stood before the country upon the single and all-absorbing issue of the suppression of the rebellion by force of arms, and upon this ground the cause of the Union party and the cause of the Union were regarded by the people of the great North as one.

The republican party, victorious from the war, is now called to the practical work of government, to the difficult business of repairing damages, including the restoration of the Southern States and Southern whites and blacks on the new basis of universal liberty; the regulation of our national finances, tariffs, taxes, &c., and the rectification of our unsettled balances with foreign Powers.

In 1824 the old republican party of Jefferson, which was more inclined to red than black, collapsed in the squabble of the politicians for the Presidency. In the scrub race of that year General Jackson first came into full view as the man of the people, and as the man under whom to resuscitate with new blood the old effete Jeffersonian party.

With the first election of Jackson to the Presidency, rallied around him. It held the government without a break for twelve years, when, under Van Buren, it was in 1840 swept from power by a resolute tornado. Andrew Polk, in 1844, the democracy recovered their position, to be turned out again in 1848. In 1852, on the platform of Henry Clay's great peace measures of 1850, the party carried the country, North and South, by an overwhelming electoral and popular vote.

In 1856 the party narrowly escaped defeat. It was saved only through the assistance of Fillmore as a second opposition candidate. In 1860, through its own dissensions, the great national democratic party, with the Presidency in its grasp, was broken up and dissolved.

Now what was the secret of these misfortunes to the old democracy? We need not travel far to find it. The party was controlled by a radical sectional clique of managing politicians—a haughty, imperious Southern clique, full of ultra Southern ideas, and setting themselves up as the rightful masters of the country and the rightful dictators of democratic principles and measures.

Four cases of attempted deadly assault received the attention of the police authorities yesterday. Of the principals in these were committed for trial a man giving his name as Henry Thore, and his residence as 143 Thompson street, arrested on charge of being one of a party of three who early yesterday morning attacked and discharged a pistol at policeman Griffiths, in West street, near Charlton, while the latter was engaged in taking into custody one of their confederates, a supposed thief, John Smith, aged twenty, charged with stealing in the street early yesterday morning.

The health officials of our port have decided to permit all the passengers, both cabin and steerage, of the steamship Atlanta who show no cholera symptoms, and who design going to the West, to leave the vessel. Those whose cases are considered doubtful, but in whom the disease has not yet developed itself, will be sent to Ward's Island for further detention. Our Sanitary Police still continue their work of preparing the city against the approach of the cholera. During the week ending on Saturday last four hundred and eighty-four notices were served by them to individuals for the cleansing of unhealthy localities, and three hundred and ninety-three places were cleaned under notices previously served.

The City Inspector's report gives three hundred and eighty as the number of deaths occurring in the city during the week ending yesterday, being fifty less than in the preceding week last year.

Intelligence has just been received of the death from cholera, in August last, at Amoy, China, of Dr. William Irving, our Consul at that port.

The stock market was steady yesterday, but heavy in the afternoon. Governments were weak. Gold was strong, and closed at 147 1/2.

There was not a great deal of activity in commercial circles yesterday, and neither foreign nor domestic merchandise sold to any great extent. The markets were firm, however, and for some articles an advance was asked. Groceries were dull. Cotton was steady. Petroleum was a shade lower. On Change four was moderately active, without decided change. Wheat and corn were lower. The demand for the former was moderate, while the latter was very active. Pork was irregular and lower. Beef was steady, with a moderate demand. Lard was dull, irregular and decidedly lower. Whiskey continued dull and nominal.

ROGUE POLITICAL ADDRESSES.—It appears that the signature of Mr. Francis B. Cutting to the published call for a public meeting to ratify the nominations of Mozart Hall for Mayor and Corporation Counsel is a clear case of forgery, without the least shadow of authority, and that Mr. Cutting supports Marshall O. Roberts, and is "opposed to any candidate who during the rebellion failed to give a hearty support to the Union cause."

There are no doubt, other names used by these rascals without authority; but forgery is forgery, whether it involves money or character. The Citizens' Association has made a bad beginning for reform in attaching itself as a tail to the kite of Fernando Wood.

THE STATE OF THE COUNTRY—The Crisis of the Republican Party.

With the return of peace comes the crisis to the republican party. It is a crisis of life or death, perpetuity or dissolution.

The people of the loyal States poured out their treasures of men and money for the war without stint; but in the absence of able generals to command our armies, and without an efficient War Department to furnish the needful supplies and reinforcements in every quarter, all the sacrifices of the people would have come to nothing.

But, as the war party, the republicans had all the advantages of the popular side of the question of Union or disunion. They stood before the country upon the single and all-absorbing issue of the suppression of the rebellion by force of arms, and upon this ground the cause of the Union party and the cause of the Union were regarded by the people of the great North as one.

The republican party, victorious from the war, is now called to the practical work of government, to the difficult business of repairing damages, including the restoration of the Southern States and Southern whites and blacks on the new basis of universal liberty; the regulation of our national finances, tariffs, taxes, &c., and the rectification of our unsettled balances with foreign Powers.

In 1824 the old republican party of Jefferson, which was more inclined to red than black, collapsed in the squabble of the politicians for the Presidency. In the scrub race of that year General Jackson first came into full view as the man of the people, and as the man under whom to resuscitate with new blood the old effete Jeffersonian party.

With the first election of Jackson to the Presidency, rallied around him. It held the government without a break for twelve years, when, under Van Buren, it was in 1840 swept from power by a resolute tornado. Andrew Polk, in 1844, the democracy recovered their position, to be turned out again in 1848. In 1852, on the platform of Henry Clay's great peace measures of 1850, the party carried the country, North and South, by an overwhelming electoral and popular vote.

In 1856 the party narrowly escaped defeat. It was saved only through the assistance of Fillmore as a second opposition candidate. In 1860, through its own dissensions, the great national democratic party, with the Presidency in its grasp, was broken up and dissolved.

Now what was the secret of these misfortunes to the old democracy? We need not travel far to find it. The party was controlled by a radical sectional clique of managing politicians—a haughty, imperious Southern clique, full of ultra Southern ideas, and setting themselves up as the rightful masters of the country and the rightful dictators of democratic principles and measures.

Four cases of attempted deadly assault received the attention of the police authorities yesterday. Of the principals in these were committed for trial a man giving his name as Henry Thore, and his residence as 143 Thompson street, arrested on charge of being one of a party of three who early yesterday morning attacked and discharged a pistol at policeman Griffiths, in West street, near Charlton, while the latter was engaged in taking into custody one of their confederates, a supposed thief, John Smith, aged twenty, charged with stealing in the street early yesterday morning.

The health officials of our port have decided to permit all the passengers, both cabin and steerage, of the steamship Atlanta who show no cholera symptoms, and who design going to the West, to leave the vessel. Those whose cases are considered doubtful, but in whom the disease has not yet developed itself, will be sent to Ward's Island for further detention. Our Sanitary Police still continue their work of preparing the city against the approach of the cholera. During the week ending on Saturday last four hundred and eighty-four notices were served by them to individuals for the cleansing of unhealthy localities, and three hundred and ninety-three places were cleaned under notices previously served.

The City Inspector's report gives three hundred and eighty as the number of deaths occurring in the city during the week ending yesterday, being fifty less than in the preceding week last year.

Intelligence has just been received of the death from cholera, in August last, at Amoy, China, of Dr. William Irving, our Consul at that port.

The stock market was steady yesterday, but heavy in the afternoon. Governments were weak. Gold was strong, and closed at 147 1/2.

There was not a great deal of activity in commercial circles yesterday, and neither foreign nor domestic merchandise sold to any great extent. The markets were firm, however, and for some articles an advance was asked. Groceries were dull. Cotton was steady. Petroleum was a shade lower. On Change four was moderately active, without decided change. Wheat and corn were lower. The demand for the former was moderate, while the latter was very active. Pork was irregular and lower. Beef was steady, with a moderate demand. Lard was dull, irregular and decidedly lower. Whiskey continued dull and nominal.

ROGUE POLITICAL ADDRESSES.—It appears that the signature of Mr. Francis B. Cutting to the published call for a public meeting to ratify the nominations of Mozart Hall for Mayor and Corporation Counsel is a clear case of forgery, without the least shadow of authority, and that Mr. Cutting supports Marshall O. Roberts, and is "opposed to any candidate who during the rebellion failed to give a hearty support to the Union cause."

There are no doubt, other names used by these rascals without authority; but forgery is forgery, whether it involves money or character. The Citizens' Association has made a bad beginning for reform in attaching itself as a tail to the kite of Fernando Wood.

THE STATE OF THE COUNTRY—The Crisis of the Republican Party.

With the return of peace comes the crisis to the republican party. It is a crisis of life or death, perpetuity or dissolution.

The people of the loyal States poured out their treasures of men and money for the war without stint; but in the absence of able generals to command our armies, and without an efficient War Department to furnish the needful supplies and reinforcements in every quarter, all the sacrifices of the people would have come to nothing.

But, as the war party, the republicans had all the advantages of the popular side of the question of Union or disunion. They stood before the country upon the single and all-absorbing issue of the suppression of the rebellion by force of arms, and upon this ground the cause of the Union party and the cause of the Union were regarded by the people of the great North as one.

The republican party, victorious from the war, is now called to the practical work of government, to the difficult business of repairing damages, including the restoration of the Southern States and Southern whites and blacks on the new basis of universal liberty; the regulation of our national finances, tariffs, taxes, &c., and the rectification of our unsettled balances with foreign Powers.

In 1824 the old republican party of Jefferson, which was more inclined to red than black, collapsed in the squabble of the politicians for the Presidency. In the scrub race of that year General Jackson first came into full view as the man of the people, and as the man under whom to resuscitate with new blood the old effete Jeffersonian party.

With the first election of Jackson to the Presidency, rallied around him. It held the government without a break for twelve years, when, under Van Buren, it was in 1840 swept from power by a resolute tornado. Andrew Polk, in 1844, the democracy recovered their position, to be turned out again in 1848. In 1852, on the platform of Henry Clay's great peace measures of 1850, the party carried the country, North and South, by an overwhelming electoral and popular vote.

In 1856 the party narrowly escaped defeat. It was saved only through the assistance of Fillmore as a second opposition candidate. In 1860, through its own dissensions, the great national democratic party, with the Presidency in its grasp, was broken up and dissolved.

Now what was the secret of these misfortunes to the old democracy? We need not travel far to find it. The party was controlled by a radical sectional clique of managing politicians—a haughty, imperious Southern clique, full of ultra Southern ideas, and setting themselves up as the rightful masters of the country and the rightful dictators of democratic principles and measures.

Four cases of attempted deadly assault received the attention of the police authorities yesterday. Of the principals in these were committed for trial a man giving his name as Henry Thore, and his residence as 143 Thompson street, arrested on charge of being one of a party of three who early yesterday morning attacked and discharged a pistol at policeman Griffiths, in West street, near Charlton, while the latter was engaged in taking into custody one of their confederates, a supposed thief, John Smith, aged twenty, charged with stealing in the street early yesterday morning.

The health officials of our port have decided to permit all the passengers, both cabin and steerage, of the steamship Atlanta who show no cholera symptoms, and who design going to the West, to leave the vessel. Those whose cases are considered doubtful, but in whom the disease has not yet developed itself, will be sent to Ward's Island for further detention. Our Sanitary Police still continue their work of preparing the city against the approach of the cholera. During the week ending on Saturday last four hundred and eighty-four notices were served by them to individuals for the cleansing of unhealthy localities, and three hundred and ninety-three places were cleaned under notices previously served.

The City Inspector's report gives three hundred and eighty as the number of deaths occurring in the city during the week ending yesterday, being fifty less than in the preceding week last year.

Intelligence has just been received of the death from cholera, in August last, at Amoy, China, of Dr. William Irving, our Consul at that port.

The stock market was steady yesterday, but heavy in the afternoon. Governments were weak. Gold was strong, and closed at 147 1/2.

There was not a great deal of activity in commercial circles yesterday, and neither foreign nor domestic merchandise sold to any great extent. The markets were firm, however, and for some articles an advance was asked. Groceries were dull. Cotton was steady. Petroleum was a shade lower. On Change four was moderately active, without decided change. Wheat and corn were lower. The demand for the former was moderate, while the latter was very active. Pork was irregular and lower. Beef was steady, with a moderate demand. Lard was dull, irregular and decidedly lower. Whiskey continued dull and nominal.

ROGUE POLITICAL ADDRESSES.—It appears that the signature of Mr. Francis B. Cutting to the published call for a public meeting to ratify the nominations of Mozart Hall for Mayor and Corporation Counsel is a clear case of forgery, without the least shadow of authority, and that Mr. Cutting supports Marshall O. Roberts, and is "opposed to any candidate who during the rebellion failed to give a hearty support to the Union cause."

There are no doubt, other names used by these rascals without authority; but forgery is forgery, whether it involves money or character. The Citizens' Association has made a bad beginning for reform in attaching itself as a tail to the kite of Fernando Wood.

CITY POLITICS.

The Mayoralty.

A meeting of the Board of the Democracy of the city and county of New York was held yesterday evening, for the purpose of making nominations for Mayor and Corporation Counsel. Three delegates from each ward attended. Marshall O. Roberts was unanimously nominated for Mayor. Mr. Timothy Cronin was unanimously nominated for Corporation Counsel. A committee of six was appointed to inform the candidates of their nomination.

ADDRESS OF THE UNION PARTY.

To the Electors of the City of New York.—The Democracy of the city and county of New York, in a meeting of the Board of the Democracy of the city and county of New York was held yesterday evening, for the purpose of making nominations for Mayor and Corporation Counsel. Three delegates from each ward attended. Marshall O. Roberts was unanimously nominated for Mayor. Mr. Timothy Cronin was unanimously nominated for Corporation Counsel. A committee of six was appointed to inform the candidates of their nomination.

The Democracy of the city and county of New York, in a meeting of the Board of the Democracy of the city and county of New York was held yesterday evening, for the purpose of making nominations for Mayor and Corporation Counsel. Three delegates from each ward attended. Marshall O. Roberts was unanimously nominated for Mayor. Mr. Timothy Cronin was unanimously nominated for Corporation Counsel. A committee of six was appointed to inform the candidates of their nomination.

The Democracy of the city and county of New York, in a meeting of the Board of the Democracy of the city and county of New York was held yesterday evening, for the purpose of making nominations for Mayor and Corporation Counsel. Three delegates from each ward attended. Marshall O. Roberts was unanimously nominated for Mayor. Mr. Timothy Cronin was unanimously nominated for Corporation Counsel. A committee of six was appointed to inform the candidates of their nomination.

The Democracy of the city and county of New York, in a meeting of the Board of the Democracy of the city and county of New York was held yesterday evening, for the purpose of making nominations for Mayor and Corporation Counsel. Three delegates from each ward attended. Marshall O. Roberts was unanimously nominated for Mayor. Mr. Timothy Cronin was unanimously nominated for Corporation Counsel. A committee of six was appointed to inform the candidates of their nomination.

The Democracy of the city and county of New York, in a meeting of the Board of the Democracy of the city and county of New York was held yesterday evening, for the purpose of making nominations for Mayor and Corporation Counsel. Three delegates from each ward attended. Marshall O. Roberts was unanimously nominated for Mayor. Mr. Timothy Cronin was unanimously nominated for Corporation Counsel. A committee of six was appointed to inform the candidates of their nomination.

The Democracy of the city and county of New York, in a meeting of the Board of the Democracy of the city and county of New York was held yesterday evening, for the purpose of making nominations for Mayor and Corporation Counsel. Three delegates from each ward attended. Marshall O. Roberts was unanimously nominated for Mayor. Mr. Timothy Cronin was unanimously nominated for Corporation Counsel. A committee of six was appointed to inform the candidates of their nomination.

The Democracy of the city and county of New York