THE ITALIAN QUESTION.

OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.

Two hundred young men from Terol, a town near the Pontifical frontier, assembled in the town of Cognigni, under the command of a certain Perelli, an ex-gendarme officer, and a lieutenant named Gagliani. The band also included a trumpeter, and an organ bearing the Italian flag.

Of course, the fifty-three prisoners will be subjected to a searching judicial examination, and we may then expect to learn positively under whose instigation they acted. It will doubtless appear the more extraordinary that their leader, Perelli, should have been so ready to pardon an inner consciousness of his own fitness to inaugurate such a movement.

For the love of Catholic unity when ever implanted in the mind, grows greatly for the utility of others; and it is not only to be expected, but to be desired, that the faithful should be united in a like devotion to the same cause.

Address of the Most Holy Father Pius the Ninth to the Secret Consistory, in Rome, June 28, 1867--Catholic Unity, a Council, the Reconstruction of the Church and Probable Prospects of the World.

REVEREND BROTHERS--Among our many afflictions we are consoled by one reflection, that we can enjoy the fruits of the Holy Spirit, and that we can again speak to you in this distinguished assembly.

From the London Times, July 2, 1867. The House of Commons distinguished itself last night, by the adoption of a resolution, which will be a great step towards the progress with the Reform Bill.

Without benches refused to allow the clause to be accepted without a division. An overwhelming majority supported the clause, but a minority of sixty-three members of dissension, who were extremely noisy, were a spring of danger.

OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE. "Red" has made a move upon black soap more than 100 of the world's great men, who "red" may at once suggest to you the ancient man who brought his coat of color into fashion, and who, they say, is now being laid in a fresh stock for a few friends with some of the great men of the world.

OUR SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE. The following reply has been received to the published charge of alleged ill-treatment towards a young woman who applied for assistance at the Girls' Lodging House.

Mr. McCulloch, forsooth! Why, he is the most guilty party of all. He it is who, through gross negligence and incapacity, has caused the government to be defrauded of hundreds of millions of dollars.

Chief Justice Chase and Mr. McCulloch together are mainly the authors of this gigantic internal revenue system. That, with its vast patronage and power was created as a political machine, and in connection with the national banks, which were instituted by these men, was intended to control the political affairs of the country.

Our Vice Consul at Havana, as it appears, reports the yellow fever as having assumed a malignant form there, and that the Board of Health now issue foul bills of health only. These facts, we trust, will stimulate our quarantine officers and all others charged with the duty of looking to the health of this metropolis.

MUCH AND ABOUT NOTHING. The three columns statement from Secretary Seward in reference to the late political adventures and misfortunes of Señor Don Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna. This lengthy narrative, however, is brought to a close with a somewhat important announcement to Señor Santa Anna, if he still lives, to wit--that having voluntarily entered the enemy's camp he must take his chances.

STEAMBOAT RACING ON THE HUDSON. Reports from the county have and the adjoining districts of Connecticut represent that the destruction and suffering of the inhabitants are becoming extreme in consequence of the famine in that part of the island.

THE BANKRUPT LAW IN CHARLESTON. The first case in this State, coming under the provisions of the new bankrupt act, was decided in the United States Court to-day. Judge Bryan charged the jury that the suspension by a banker, merchant or trader to meet his commercial paper at maturity and non-acceptance of payment within fourteen days, although without fraud, created an act of involuntary bankruptcy.

THE NATIONAL GAME. The game of base ball between the Athletics, of Philadelphia, and the Troyen Club, of the Troyen Club, was played this afternoon, and was witnessed by an immense concourse of people. The game from the commencement was all in favor of the Athletics, resulting in a score of fifteen for the Athletics and eleven for the Troyens.

THE NATIONAL SANGERFEST.

Third Day of the Convention of German Singers in Philadelphia--The First Grand Concert--One Thousand Singers and an Orchestra of Sixty Performers in the Academy of Music.

The concert commenced with the overture to "Oberon," the first director, Leopold Engelke, leading the band. The sixty instruments were very badly balanced, the brass element being so much in the ascendant that some of the most beautiful string solos in the overture were entirely drowned.

Next followed Herber's "Hymn to Hertha," which was sung by all the New York societies, under the direction of the German Harmonic Society. The music was made the selection or not, but a worse one could scarcely be made to exhibit the qualifications of the singers.

The next piece was the Twenty-fourth Psalm, by Otto, and was sung by the German Harmonic Society, under the direction of Charles Leishow. It is an admirable work, and may be said among the masterpieces of the past.
