NEGRO RIOT IN WASHINGTON.

Serious Negro Riot at the Capital—Two White Men Killed and Several Others Wounded—Incendiary Speech of Mr. Forney—Buildings Gated.

WASHINGTON, June 3, 1868. A great deal of excitement has prevailed among the residents of Washington this morning on account of the barbarous assassination of several white men last night by negroes.

Late at night three white men were going up Pennsylvania avenue, and happening to pass a negro made some remark, which the latter replied to by calling the white men rebels. One of the white men called after the negro, who retreated a short distance and then suddenly turned, drew out a razor and cut his pursuer across the wrist, severing an artery and producing death almost immediately. The negro then retreated. In another section of the city a soldier of the Twelfth infantry was set upon and cut with a razor across the ribs, the wound being of such a fearful character that death shortly followed.

The house of a conservative judge of election was entered and gutted by a negro mob, and, but for the strategy of a policeman, the office of the National Intelligencer would have been demolished. Night was made hideous by negro crowds yelling and playing hide-and-seek music.

Forney made a very incendiary speech to a negro mob, telling them there were no rebels in the city with hostile intentions towards the colored people. The impression is general that every negro is armed with a razor, and that other fatal collisions are inevitable.

Justice Harper, of Washington, held an inquest this morning on the body of the murdered Faulkner. The principal witness was W. E. Dunn, a private watchman on duty in the square between Sixth and Seventh streets, who makes the following statement:—The deceased and Albert Johnson were walking down the avenue just east of the Metropolitan Hotel, when a colored man passed them and Johnson made a remark to him, which he (Mr. D.) did not understand, and the colored man stopped and approached them, but again turned, proceeded across Sixth street and down the avenue. Johnson and deceased crossed the street, when the former stopped, and Faulkner followed the man. Faulkner observed to take something out of his pocket, and observed to have been a "nigger." When he reached the mouth of the alley the man suddenly turned and made a pass or a blow at the deceased, and the man Mr. Dunn immediately ran down and found that blood was running profusely out of the sleeve of the coat of the deceased, and he immediately started after the colored man, following him into Marble alley, but losing sight of him in the cross alley running to Ninth street. As he (the watchman) crossed the avenue he blew his whistle for aid from the police.

When he returned he found Faulkner at the door of Clark's drug store lying on the steps and officers Hill, Lawler and Fox with him. The deceased had also made an attempt to pursue the colored man, and his track was marked by the blood across the avenue to the mouth of Marble alley, and there diagonally across the avenue to the corner of Fourth and a Half street. Dr. Dexter was immediately called, and the officers started with the wounded man. Dr. Dexter's office, a few doors above in front of the corner of Eleventh street, and found that the man had just died, about ten or fifteen minutes after the wound was inflicted. His body was immediately taken to the Fourth ward station house and word was sent to notify the father of deceased.

The following particulars of the disturbance last night have been learned:—At the attack made on the drug store on the corner of Seventh and H streets quite a number of short muskets, clubs and pistols were shown and several shots fired, but none with effect as far as known. A young man nineteen years of age, named George Hendley, in the employ of Mr. George K. Hall, coachmaker, was quite badly injured in this affair. He was standing on the pavement near the drug store when some one cried out "Inrah for Given," with some other remark, and a colored man ran up and struck at the young man on the cheek, and Hendley struck a second time he was knocked senseless and gutter. When he returned to consciousness some man was standing over him cutting at him with a razor, and his hat bears the marks of this assault, being cut into strips. When he reached his home on H street, near Sixth, it was found that he had received two cuts, making painful flesh wounds, one on each hip. Dr. Palmer dressed these wounds, and he is also attended by Dr. P. Craghan. He is injured also in the breast, and so acute were his pains until he was examined by the physician that he was very apprehensive that he had been shot.

By some means the name of Mr. Joseph E. Hodgson, the brother-in-law of Hendley, was connected with this affair, and it was rumored that Mr. Hodgson had been killed, but there was no foundation for the report.

As the procession was marching towards the First ward last night, when F street, forty or fifty colored men stopped at the corner of Eleventh street, and running into Smith's restaurant one of them knocked the proprietor down with a bottle, while others, it is alleged, robbed the money drawer of $43 and carried off a number of bottles of liquor. There is a conflict of statements in regard to this affair, some denying that the parties concerned in the outrage belonged to the procession, while others assert positively that they left the procession to make the depredation and afterwards joined the line again. Some persons in one of the ward delegations, in passing the house of Captain Daniels, corner of Thirteenth street and New York avenue, threw several stones at it, breaking some of the windows. It is not known that there was any provocation. One or two shots were fired at the corner of Seventh and M streets, and one of the windows of Cassin's drug store was broken.

The restaurant of Charles Bradenberry, on Virginia avenue, near Delaware avenue, was stoned by colored men at about nine o'clock last night, and a number of windows broken, and some of the windows of the residence of officer Belford, adjoining, were also burst in, and Mr. B.'s wife was struck on the shoulder by one of the missiles. Officer Hopkins was near at the time, and by a good deal of persuasion succeeded in inducing the crowd to stop. The attack, which it is supposed was made because a fight occurred between some soldiers and colored men near there yesterday morning.

The city is comparatively quiet this evening, notwithstanding the public mind is keenly apprehensive of coming violence from the unruly colored element, which is now in an inflammable condition. Rumors have been heard on every hand that the negroes are plotting attacks on a number of persons who took an active part against the radical party on Monday last. Included among those devoted to destruction, rumor states, is the office of the Intelligencer. The editors of that paper addressed a communication to the Superintendent of the police, yesterday informing him that the intelligence had been furnished to them that an assault upon their office was threatened for this evening. Although they did not feel apprehensive, they deemed it only proper that the statement should be laid before the Board. The Board of Police, after holding a consultation on the matter, replied that no fears of violence need be entertained; that the arrangements of the police force were amply sufficient for any emergency.

An excitement was raised early this evening by an altercation that occurred between two negroes about the election, which terminated in a fight. One was knocked down with a bottle, but succeeded in escaping, pursued by the crowd, both white and black, numbers of whom charged that he attempted to use the negro's favorite weapon, a razor. The police arrested him and took him to the station house. Several other disturbances occurred in different parts of the city, but the negroes have not, up to the present time, made any kind of demonstration.

section of the act shall take effect on each State, Territory, or District, and the President of the United States shall annually proclaim the day of the ratification of the amendments to the constitution of the United States, proposed by the Thirty-ninth Congress, and the day shall be observed as a national holiday. The New Tarif Bill Postponed by the Ways and Means Committee until Next December.

The Sub-Committee of Ways and Means, Messrs. Moorhead and Maynard (Republicans) and Mr. Niblack (Democrat) reported to the full committee today a long bill for an increase and revision of the tariff, when Mr. Brooks offered the following preamble and resolution:—

Whereas, from five to fifty per cent of additional imposts were imposed by the act of June 30, 1864, and subsequent acts to offset the internal Revenue taxes of the act of June 30, 1864; and whereas, it was then understood and pledged that this additional external tariff was to provide a means for the payment of the tax; and whereas by the act of the present session articles have been laid on.

Therefore, be it resolved, That it is the sense of the Committee of Ways and Means that in any new bill reported the duties on imports ought to be reduced, so far as to offset the tax on the articles laid on by the act of June 30, 1864, in consequence of the internal Revenue tax, or tax on manufactures, in the act of June 30, 1864, which have been abandoned in the act of March 31, 1868.

Mr. ALLISON offered the following as a substitute:—That it is inexpedient at this late period of the session to undertake any revision of the Tarif laws, except to provide for the payment of the duties on articles which may manifestly bear heavily and unnecessarily on any particular object or interest.

On motion all these propositions were laid upon the table, Messrs. Brooks and Niblack dissenting.

After some discussion it was voted to postpone the bill reported by Mr. Moorhead till December next—years, 4 and 5—which, it is understood, disposes of the Tarif law, and offers some few articles, such as copper, zinc, and perhaps sugar. Sugar will not be touched, as requested by the refiners.

The following is said to be the vote in the Committee on the Tarif bill, as reported by the center: The vote on the Tarif bill, as reported by the center, was five against four—Yeas—Messrs. Chandler, Allison, Grosvenor, Brooks and Niblack. Nays—Messrs. Maynard, Logan and Moorhead.
